

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

LEASES.

THE subject of Leases will be considered under the following heads:—I. The nature of a lease, the different kinds of leasehold estates or tenancies, and how they are created. II. The rent reserved upon leases, and the remedies for its recovery. III. The covenants usually inserted in leases in relation to rates and taxes, and the preservation, repair, and insurance of the demised property. IV. Covenants restrictive of the use of the demised property, and against assignment or sub-letting without the lessor's consent. V. The condition of re-entry, and the relief afforded by equity against a forfeiture thereunder. VI. The effect of alienation by lessor or lessee as regards the rent and the covenants and conditions of the lease. VII. By what modes other than forfeiture, a tenancy may be determined, and the rights of the parties at the determination thereof. VIII. Leases under powers. IX. Other matters relating to leases; and X. Stamps on leases and agreements for leases.

Division of the subject.

I. The nature of a lease, the different kinds of leasehold estates or tenancies, and how they are created.

A lease is an assurance or contract whereby land or any other thing capable of being demised is let by one person to another for an interest less in point of duration than the lessor has therein. A lease may be for lives, or for a term of years, or from year to year, or at will.

Definition of a lease.

A lease for a term of years is where a person lets to another for a certain and definite period. A lease for one year, or for a half year, or for a quarter of a year, is a lease for a term (a), so is a lease for a given number of years, if a person shall so long live (b).

Lease for a term of years.

Tenancy from year to year.

A tenancy from year to year is a tenancy determinable (except in cases coming within the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883) at the end of the first or any subsequent year by either party giving to the other a half-year's notice to quit, and continuing from year to year until so determined. As regards holdings subject to the above Act, a year's notice expiring with a year of tenancy is substituted for the half-year's notice (c).

Tenancy at will.

A tenancy at will is where a man lets to another and either party may put an end to the tenancy at pleasure.

Tenancy from year to year was originally a tenancy at will.

A tenancy from year to year was originally a mere tenancy at will, on which the Courts engrafted a condition that reasonable notice should be given to determine it, which notice was ultimately settled at a half-year's.

Tenancy on sufferance.

A tenancy on sufferance is where a person who entered by a lawful title continues in possession after his estate has determined.

Lease for more than three years must be by deed.

Under the joint operation of the Statute of Frauds(d) and the 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106 (e), all leases are required to be by deed, except leases not exceeding three years whereupon the reserved rent amounts to two-thirds of the full improved value.

Tenancy from year to year, how created.

A tenancy from year to year may be created by an express agreement either in writing or by parol to that effect, or it may arise by implication. Thus if one lets lands to another at an annual rent without any express provision as to the length or terms of the tenancy, the latter becomes tenant from year to year.

Lessee holding over, and paying rent, becomes tenant from year to year.

If a tenant holds over after the expiration of his lease, he is at first a mere tenant on sufferance, but if the landlord subsequently receives rent, the tenant becomes tenant from year to year, subject to such covenants and conditions in the lease as are applicable to that species of estate (f), and the same rule applies where a person takes possession and pays rent under an instrument purporting to be a demise for years from a corporation, but which is invalid as such, as not being under seal (g).

Covenants to repair, to insure, and as to mode of cultivation, and a condition of re-entry on breach of covenants have been held applicable to a yearly tenancy (h).

An instrument purporting to be a demise, but void as such under the Act 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, as not being under seal, may be sued on in equity as an agreement for a lease, and specific performance will be decreed (i).

Instrument void as a lease may be sued on as an agreement.

The position of the parties under an agreement for a lease, of which specific performance will be enforced, including such an instrument as is mentioned in the last paragraph, was, before the Judicature Act, different at law and in equity. At law, the intended lessee took no interest by virtue of the instrument, but if he entered into possession and paid rent, he became by reason of such payment a tenant from year to year upon the terms of the instrument (k). In equity, he was regarded as holding on the same terms as if a lease had been actually granted. Since the Judicature Act, the equitable rule prevails in every branch of the Court (l).

Rights and obligations of parties under an agreement for a lease.

If an agreement with a yearly tenant provides that he may at his option have a lease for a specified term, but no time is stipulated within which the option is to be exercised, the landlord may at any time call on the tenant to exercise it, and in default may determine the tenancy, but until this is done, the option continues (m). And an option of this kind passes by an assignment of the tenant's interest, and if he becomes bankrupt passes to his trustee, and to a purchaser from the trustee (n).

Effect of agreement by landlord not to turn out tenant so long as he pays the rent.

Sometimes an agreement purporting to create a yearly tenancy contains a clause to the effect that the landlord will not turn out the tenant so long as he pays the rent. In Brown v. Warner (o), an agreement of this nature was considered by Lord Eldon as a valid agreement for a future lease; and in another case, where the landlord was himself only a lessee for eight years, V.-C. Malins treated the tenant as entitled in equity under such an agreement to remain in possession during the continuance of the landlord's interest (p). In a later case, where the lessor held for a long term, it was held that the lease must be limited in duration to the tenant's life (q).

Mortgagor in possession, the nature of his tenancy.

A mortgagor of land in his own occupation is sometimes described as a tenant at will to the mortgagee, but it would be more correct to say that he is a tenant on sufferance, and any person who subsequently to the mortgage is let into the occupation of the property by the mortgagor (except under a lease duly made pursuant to the statutory power) is, as regards the mortgagee, in the same position (r). If, at the date of the mortgage, the land is in the occupation of a tenant, the mortgagee takes it subject to the tenancy, whether it be from year to year or otherwise, and if (as is usual) the mortgagor continues to receive the rent, he does so under an implied authority from the mortgagee, which authority the mortgagee may at any time countermand by notice to the tenant (s).

II. The rent reserved on leases, and the remedies for its recovery.

to the lessor. A power of distress is incident by common law to rent reserved on a lease.

Except in cases coming within the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883, or in case of the tenant's bankruptcy, the right of distress for rent in arrear may be exercised at any time within six years from the time when the rent became due or an acknowledgment in writing of the same was made to the landlord or his agent(t), provided that the lease is still subsisting; and if the lease has determined, a distress may be made at any time within six calendar months from its determination, provided that the landlord's title continues and the tenant is still in possession(u).

Right of distress may be exercised for six years, if lease continues, and if it has determined for six months afterwards.

The executors of a deceased landlord have the same right of distress for rent accrued in his lifetime as the landlord would have had if living(x).

Executors of landlord have same right of distress.

The goods of a tenant cannot be taken by an execution creditor without first paying to the landlord one year's rent in arrear(y), but this preferential right does not exist (like the right of distress) after the tenancy has determined(z).

Preferential right of landlord over ordinary creditors.

If a tenant fraudulently or clandestinely conveys away goods in order to prevent the landlord from distraining them, the landlord may at any time within thirty days after such conveying away seize the goods wherever they are, and other powers are by statute given to landlords in such case(a). But this power of distraining goods fraudulently removed applies only where they would have been distrainable if they remained on the premises, and cannot be exercised if at the time of seizure the tenancy has determined(b).

Right of landlord to seize goods fraudulently removed.

If a tenant becomes bankrupt, and the landlord after the commencement of the bankruptcy distrains upon his goods for arrears of rent, the distress is available only for one year's rent accrued due prior to the order of adjudication, but he may prove under the bankruptcy for the surplus(c).

If tenant is bankrupt, right of distress limited to one year's rent.

What goods may be distrained.

Things protected from distress.

Under the joint operation of sects. 87 and 163 of the Companies Act, 1862(c), as interpreted by judicial decisions, a distress cannot be levied on the goods of a company which is being wound up without the leave of the Court in any case where the rent in arrear is a debt due from the company to the landlord, and proveable as such. But the rule does not apply where the landlord is a stranger to the company. Thus, if A. lets to B., and B. underlets to, or declares himself a trustee for a company, the Act does not prevent A. from distraining for rent due to him from B., or from seizing any goods of the company which may happen to be on the premises, and which are seizable by him according to the ordinary law of distress(d). Leave will be given to a landlord to distrain for rent accrued after the winding-up, in cases where the company retains possession for the convenience of the winding-up, and the realization of the property to better advantage(e).

In holdings to which the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883(f), applies, a landlord cannot distrain for rent which became due more than one year before the making of the distress(g). Where, according to the ordinary course of dealing between the landlord and tenant, the payment of the rent has been allowed to be deferred until the expiration of a quarter or a half year after the date at which it legally became due, the rent is for this purpose to be deemed to have become due at the expiration of such quarter or half year(h).

All goods found on the premises, whether belonging to the tenant or to a stranger (other than such as are specially protected by law) are distrainable for rent.

Beasts of the plough and implements of husbandry, or of a man's trade or profession, are also privileged, if there is a sufficient distress besides (i).

By the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888 (k), the wearing apparel and bedding of the tenant or his family, and the tools and implements of his trade to the value of 5*l.*, are protected from distress, unless the lease or interest of the tenant has expired, and possession of the premises has been demanded seven days before the distress.

Law of Distress Amendment Act protects wearing apparel, &c.

Where live stock belonging to another person has been taken in by the tenant of an agricultural holding to be fed at a fair price, such stock cannot be distrained by the landlord, where there is other sufficient distress to be found, and if no other sufficient distress can be found, there cannot be taken by distress a sum exceeding the price agreed to be paid for the feeding, or so much of it as remains unpaid, and agricultural or other machinery hired by the tenant, and live stock belonging to others, and which is on the premises for breeding purposes, cannot be distrained for rent in arrear (l).

Things protected by Agricultural Holdings Act.

A landlord or other person levying a distress may sell the goods and chattels distrained without causing them to be previously appraised, unless the tenant or owner of the goods requires an appraisement; and for the purposes of sale the goods must, at the request of the tenant or owner of them, be removed to a public auction room or some other fit place, and there sold. The tenant or owner may, on giving security for costs, have fifteen days within which to replevy. Distress can only be levied by a bailiff certificated by a county court judge (m).

Rent may be recovered for six years by action on covenant.

The words "yielding and paying" in a reservation of rent amount to a covenant for payment (p). Under such a covenant, or the more formal one generally inserted in leases, it is apprehended that six years' arrears of rent and no more may be recovered by action (q).

No apportionment of rent by the common law.

According to the common law, rents reserved on a lease and other rents were not apportionable; consequently if the lessor died between two rent days, the entire rent for the current year, if the lease was a continuing one, went to his heir-at-law or other the person on whom the reversion devolved; and if the lease determined on his death, the whole of the rent for that half-year was lost (r).

11 Geo. 2, c. 19; 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 22.

The Acts 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, and 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 22, were passed to remedy some of the inconveniences arising from this state of the law, but as the operation of these Acts was only partial, a more complete remedy was provided by the Act 33 & 34 Vict. c. 35, by which it is enacted as follows:—

33 & 34 Vict. c. 35.

Rents to accrue from day to day and be apportionable.

Sect. 2. From and after the passing of this Act all rents, annuities, dividends, and other periodical payments in the nature of income (whether reserved or made payable under an instrument in writing or otherwise) shall, like interest on money lent, be considered as accruing from day to day, and shall be apportioned in respect of time accordingly.

c. 42, s. 3. But it is apprehended that the last-mentioned enactment, so far as regards rent, has been repealed by implication by sect. 9 of 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57. The point must, however, be considered as doubtful, until settled by a judicial decision.

(r) See 1 Swanston, 337, note, and the cases there cited.

Sect. 3. The apportioned part of any such rent, annuity, dividend, or other payment, shall be payable or recoverable in the case of a continuing rent, annuity, or other such payment, when the entire portion of which such apportioned part shall form part shall become due and payable, and not before, and in the case of a rent, annuity, or other such payment determined by re-entry, death, or otherwise, when the next entire portion of the same would have been payable if the same had not so determined, and not before.

Apportioned part of rent to be payable when next entire portion becomes due.

Sect. 4. All persons and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, and also the executors, administrators, and assigns respectively of persons whose interests determine with their own deaths, shall have such or the same remedies at law and in equity for recovering such apportioned parts as aforesaid, when payable (allowing proportionate parts of all such allowances) as they respectively would have had for recovering such entire portions as aforesaid if entitled thereto respectively; provided that persons liable to pay rents reserved out of or charged on lands or other hereditaments of any tenure, and the same lands or other hereditaments shall not be resorted to for any such apportioned part forming part of an entire or continuing rent as aforesaid specifically, but the entire or continuing rent, including such apportioned part, shall be recovered and received by the heir or other person who, if the rent had not been apportionable under this Act or otherwise, would have been entitled to such entire or continuing rent, and such apportioned part shall be recoverable from such heir or other person by the executors or other parties entitled under this Act to the same by action at law or suit in equity.

Persons to have same remedies for apportioned parts as for entire portions.

The above Act applies to a will made before, and confirmed by a codicil made after, its passing, and (according to judicial dicta) to every will coming into operation after its passing (s). well as a residuary devise, and under it a current half-year's rent is apportionable between the heir or the devisee of the land and the testator's personal estate (u).

If a lease is assigned between two rent days, the rent is apportioned by section 2, and as the case is not within the proviso in section 4, the lessor has a separate right of action against the assignor for the proportion of rent up to the date of the assignment, and against the assignee for the proportion accruing afterwards (x).

III. The covenants usually inserted in leases in relation to rates and taxes, and the preservation, repair and insurance of the demised property.

What are usual covenants in a lease.

The usual covenants in a lease for a term of years are, on the part of the lessee, (1) to pay the rent; (2) to pay rates and taxes; (3) to keep the demised premises in repair during the term; (4) to deliver them up in good repair and condition at the end of the term; (5) to permit the landlord to enter and view state of repair, and to do specific repairs on notice (y); and (6) to insure against fire, if this is intended and stipulated for. If the lease is of a farm, there are generally covenants as to cultivation. Other covenants are often stipulated for, but cannot be insisted on upon an open contract. These will be considered in a subsequent section.

The term "dividends" includes bonuses, &c., payable out of revenues of public companies, but not private partnerships.

(u) Capron v. Capron, 17 Eq. 288; Hasluck v. Pedley, ubi supra.

Under the 5th section of the Act the term "dividends" includes all payments made by the name of dividend, bonus, or otherwise out of the revenue of trading or other public companies. But this definition does not extend to the dividends and income of a private partnership. Jones v. Ogle, 8 Ch. 192. See In re Griffith, 12 Ch. D. 655, as to what is a public company as distinguished from a private partnership.

(x) Swansea Bank v. Thomas, 4 Ex. D. 94. If the assignor is the original lessee, the whole rent could be recovered against him under the covenant.

(y) Blakesley v. Whieldon, 1 Hare, 176. It is doubtful whether, in the absence of stipulation, a covenant to do specific repairs after notice could be insisted on.

Rates and Taxes.

A covenant to pay "all rates, taxes, and assessments payable for or in respect of the demised premises," without any exception, includes not only ordinary rates payable by the tenant, but also taxes and assessments imposed by Parliament, and which, in the absence of agreement, a tenant is allowed to deduct from his rent, e.g., sewers rate and land tax (z). The property or income-tax is, however, an exception, as it is provided by the Act imposing it that the tenant is to deduct it from the rent, and that no contract, covenant, or agreement between landlord and tenant or any other persons touching the payment of taxes and assessments to be charged on their respective premises shall be deemed to extend to property or income-tax, nor be binding contrary to the true intent and meaning of the Act (a).

General covenant to pay rates and taxes without exception, includes sewers rate and land-tax, but not the landlord's property tax.

Tithe rent-charge is not a tax or assessment, and is therefore not included in a general covenant to pay rates, taxes, and assessments (b).

Nor tithe rent-charge.

Nor does a covenant in the above form apply to charges thrown by an Act of Parliament on the owner, although as an additional security power is given to levy it against the tenant, e.g., the expense of paving and sewerage a street or abating a nuisance under a local Act (c). But if the terms of the covenant are to pay all taxes, assessments, &c., imposed on the landlord or tenant in respect of the premises, charges of this kind are within the covenant (d).

Nor to charges thrown by Act of Parliament on the owner; but secus, if the covenant extends in terms to all assessments and charges imposed on the landlord in respect of the premises.

Liability of tenant for life
or for years, or at will, or from year to repairs.

Every tenant for a term of years, or from year to year or at will, is liable at law for actual waste, e.g., pulling down houses or walls, cutting timber, cutting fruit-trees in a garden or orchard, opening mines, altering the nature of the property by converting meadow into arable, &c. (e). But no action for waste will lie unless there is injury to the inheritance in one of the following ways, viz., by diminishing the value of the estate, or increasing the burden on it, or destroying identity and thus impairing the evidence of title (f). Thus it is not waste to erect new buildings whereby the value of the estate is increased (g), or to pull down a ruinous barn without rebuilding it, if the estate is not injured thereby (h).

An act of waste by a tenant is a present injury to the reversion, for which the lessor may bring an action during the term (i).

It is apprehended that, in the absence of express covenant, a lessee for life (k), or for a term of years, is liable under the Statute of Gloucester (l) for permissive waste, i.e., for allowing the property to fall into decay for want of necessary repairs (m); but the question is of little practical importance, as a covenant by the lessee to do repairs is an ordinary part of a lease, and can be insisted on under an open contract.

equity cannot interfere against the former for permissive waste. Powys v. Blagrove, 4 D. M. & G. 458; In re Courtier, 34 C. D. 136.

(m) In some cases doubt has been thrown on this. See Herne v. Benbow, 4 Taunt. 764. But in others the liability is clearly laid down. See Cheetham v. Hampson, 4 T. R. 319; Gregory v. Mighell, 18 Ves. 328; Yellowly v. Gower, 24 L. J. Ex. 289. See also Woodhouse v. Walker, 5 Q. B. D. 404; Davis v. Davis, 38 C. D. 499.

A tenant at will is not liable for permissive waste (n). A tenant from year to year (who occupies an intermediate position) is bound, it has been said, to keep the premises wind and water tight, but not to do substantial repairs, such as new roofing (o).

Under a general covenant by a lessee to keep the premises in good repair and to deliver them up in good repair and condition at the end of the term, it is not sufficient to keep them in the same state of repair as they were in at the commencement, if they were then in bad repair. The class and description of the house may, however, be taken into account, viz., whether it is an old or a new one, and it must be kept and delivered up in good repair with reference to the class to which it belongs (p). The rule is difficult of application.

Construction of covenants to repair.

Where an action is brought during the continuance of the term upon the covenant to repair, the measure of damages is the diminution in the selling value of the reversion by reason of the non-repair (q); and if an action is brought at the end of the term on the covenant to deliver up in repair, the measure of damages is the sum which it will take to put the premises in the state of repair in which the tenant ought to have left them (r).

Measure of damages on breach of covenant to repair.

A tenant who is under no obligation to do repairs cannot require the landlord to do them, nor is it any defence to an action by the landlord for rent, that the house is uninhabitable for want of substantial repairs (s), or by reason of its being infested with noxious insects, or for any other reason, there being no implied condition in a demise of an unfurnished fabric of a house that it is in a reasonably fit state and condition for habitation (t). But a different rule applies to a furnished house, in which case there is an implied condition that it is fit for occupation, and that the tenant may rescind the contract on the ground that it is infested by bugs, or unwholesome for want of proper drainage (u).

Liability of tenant in case of fire.

As regards destruction by fire, it is provided by the statute 14 Geo. 3, c. 78, s. 86, that no action, suit, or process shall be had or prosecuted against any person in whose house or building or on whose estate any fire shall accidentally begin, or any recompense be made by such person for any damage suffered or occasioned thereby; but agreements between landlord and tenant are excepted. In the absence, therefore, of any special stipulation, the lessee is not bound to rebuild a house accidentally burnt down, but if he enters into a general covenant to repair, without any exception, he is liable to restore any house or buildings which may be destroyed by fire, tempest, lightning, or any other accident (v). It should be borne in mind also that a fire caused by negligence has been held not to be accidental within the meaning of the above enactment (w).

In absence of stipulation, lessee not bound to rebuild in case of fire, but he must do so under general covenant to repair.

In absence of stipulation, lessee liable to rent although house has been burnt down.

Where there is no obligation on either party to insure, the lessee remains liable for his rent although the house has been burnt down (x); and it has been held that he has no equity to compel the lessor to expend the money received from an insurance office in rebuilding (y). But these decisions must be taken in connection with sect. 83 of 14 Geo. 3, c. 78, which authorizes and requires directors of insurance offices, on the request of any person interested in or entitled unto any houses or buildings which may be burnt down or damaged by fire, to cause the insurance money to be laid out in rebuilding (z). seem, therefore, that if in the above-mentioned cases the lessee had required the directors of the insurance company, before they paid over the money to the lessor, to apply it in rebuilding, they would have been bound to do so (a).

It follows from the foregoing observations that a lease should expressly provide for insurance. If it is arranged that the lessee shall insure, the covenant should state in whose name the insurance is to be. It should also name the office, or provide that the office shall be one approved by the lessor, and the lessee should be bound to produce the policy and the receipts for the premiums.

Proper form
of covenant
by lessee for insurance.

It has been held that a covenant to insure in the joint names of the lessor and lessee is substantially performed if the insurance is in the name of the lessor only (b); but a covenant to insure in the name of the lessor is broken by the lessee adding his own name (c).

Construction
of covenant.

In the case of an underlease where the sub-lessor is himself bound to insure, the covenant in the underlease, if entered into by the under-lessee, should of course be made to correspond with that in the superior lease. Sometimes the arrangement is that the underlessor shall continue to insure as required by the superior lease, and an additional rent is reserved equal in amount to the annual premium.

Covenants to insure in underlease.

If it is not intended that the lessee shall insure, the covenant by him to repair should except accidents by fire, and of course, if it is intended that any of the repairs should be done by the lessor, this should be expressly provided for.

IV. Covenants restrictive of the use of the demised property and covenants against assignment or underletting without the lessor's consent.

Covenant not to carry on trades.

A lease of a house often provides that the lessee shall not carry on particular trades on the premises. A covenant that the premises shall be used as a private dwelling-house only, is broken by permitting the house to be used as a school (d) or charitable institution for the board and education of children (e).

A covenant prohibiting the use of premises as a public-house, or a beer-house, is not broken by the sale of beer, in retail, to be drunk off the premises, the terms "public-house" and "beer-house" having acquired a technical sense (f); but if the term "beer-shop" is used, a sale to be drunk off the premises is a breach of the covenant (g); and it has been decided that for a grocer to sell wine or spirits in bottles is a breach of covenant "not to use premises for the sale of spirituous liquors" (h), but is permitted under a covenant "not to carry on the trade of a seller of wine and spirituous liquors" (i).

Covenant not to assign or underlet, without lessor's consent.

Construction of such a covenant.

A lease frequently contains a covenant not to assign or underlet without the lessor's consent. It is generally considered that such a covenant does not prevent a bequest by will (j). Nor does it extend to a deposit of a lease by way of security (k), nor to an alienation by operation of law, e.g., by bankruptcy or by judgment, even where the judgment is preceded by a warrant of attorney given by the debtor (l), and a trustee in bankruptcy having become entitled by operation of law may afterwards sell and assign in the discharge of his duty without its being a breach of the covenant(m). But the executor or administrator of a lessee is bound by the covenant, if expressly named in it(n).

An underlease is not a breach of a covenant not to assign(o); but a covenant "not to let, set, or demise for all or any part of the term" has been held to prohibit an assignment(p). An assignment by one of two joint tenants to the other is a breach of such a covenant(q).

Underlease not a breach of covenant against assignment. Assignment by one joint tenant to the other.

A covenant not to assign without consent, though common, is not an usual and proper one in the sense that it can be insisted on under an open contract(r). And, indeed, considering how a covenant of this kind can be made an instrument of oppression in the hands of an unscrupulous landlord, it is surprising that its insertion without qualification is so readily assented to. Its legitimate object is to secure a responsible tenant, and it is therefore reasonable to insist on some qualifying words being added, confining its operation to this end. Sometimes this is done by adding "such consent not to be unreasonably or vexatiously withheld," or "such consent not to be withheld if the proposed assignee is a responsible and respectable person."

Covenant not to assign, &c., cannot be insisted on under an open contract.

If words of this kind are added, they do not amount to a covenant by the lessor, but if he refuses his consent improperly the lessee may assign without it(s).

May be qualified.

A covenant not to assign without consent runs with the land so as to bind an assignee at law.

V. The condition of re-entry, and the relief afforded by equity against a forfeiture thereunder.

Proviso for re-entry.

Cannot be insisted on under open contract.

Demand of rent necessary at common law.

The lessee's covenants are usually followed by a proviso or condition enabling the lessor to re-enter in case the rent remains unpaid for a certain time, or in case of a breach of the lessee's covenants, but such a condition could not be insisted on in the absence of stipulation (u).

Before a landlord could re-enter for non-payment of rent, he was, by the common law, obliged to make an actual demand, and in making such demand a number of troublesome formalities were necessary (x). By the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, sect. 210 (y), the service of a writ of ejectment is substituted for an actual demand and re-entry; but a lessor cannot recover under this statute without showing that a half-year's rent was due before the writ was served, and that no sufficient distress could be found on the premises (z). It is usual to provide in the condition for re-entry that the lessor may re-enter for non-payment of rent, whether the same shall have been legally demanded or not. Words to that effect will dispense with the necessity of making a legal demand, or of proving that no sufficient distress can be found (a). If the lease or agreement expressly requires that the rent shall be demanded before a re-entry, the demand need not be accompanied by the Common Law formalities (b), but it must not be made until the expiration of the time allowed for payment (c).

A forfeiture, whether for non-payment of rent or for a breach of covenant, will be waived by a subsequent acceptance of rent, provided that the lessor at the time of such acceptance have notice of the forfeiture; and a distress or action for rent which has accrued subsequently to the breach constituting the forfeiture is a waiver (d). The acceptance of rent is, however, no waiver of forfeiture in respect of subsequent acts or omissions in breach of the same covenant.

Forfeiture waived by acceptance of rent with notice.

It has been long settled that equity will relieve against a forfeiture for non-payment of rent (e). By the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852 (f), a tenant may stay all further proceedings against him by paying the arrears of rent and costs to the landlord or into Court; and by the same Act it is provided that a lessee against whom judgment and execution have been had in action of ejectment for non-payment of rent must proceed for relief in equity within six months after execution; and in case he proceeds in equity within that time, he must, in order to have or continue an injunction against the proceedings at law, bring into Court the arrears of rent and the amount of the taxed costs at law within forty days after the lessor's answer (g).

Equity will relieve against forfeiture for non-payment of rent.

Until recently, the Court had no jurisdiction to relieve the lessee from the consequences of a breach of the covenants other than the covenant for non-payment of rent. But such a jurisdiction has now been conferred by section 14 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, which provides as follows:—

Formerly Court had no jurisdiction to relieve against forfeiture for breaches of covenant. Jurisdiction conferred by recent Act.

- (1.) A right of re-entry or forfeiture under any proviso or stipulation in a lease for a breach of any covenant or condition in the lease, shall not be enforceable, by action or otherwise, unless and until the lessor serves on the lessee a notice specifying the particular breach complained of, and, if the breach is capable of remedy, requiring the lessee to for relief.

(2.) Where a lessor is proceeding, by action or otherwise, to enforce such a right of re-entry or forfeiture, the lessee may, in the lessor's action, if any, or in any action brought by himself, apply to the Court for relief; and the Court may grant or refuse relief, as the Court, having regard to the proceedings and conduct of the parties under the foregoing provisions of this section, and to all the other circumstances, thinks fit; and in case of relief may grant it on such terms, if any, as to costs, expenses, damages, compensation, penalty, or otherwise, including the granting of an injunction to restrain any like breach in the future, as the Court, in the circumstances of each case, thinks fit.

term "lease."

(3.) For the purposes of this section a lease includes an original or derivative under-lease, also a grant at a fee farm rent, or securing a rent by condition; and a lessee includes an original or derivative under-lessee, and the executors, administrators, and assigns of a lessee, also a grantee under such a grant as aforesaid, his heirs and assigns; and a lessor includes an original or derivative under-lessor, and the heirs, executors, administrators and assigns of a lessor, also a grantor as aforesaid, and his heirs and assigns.

(4.) This section applies although the proviso or stipulation under which the right of re-entry or forfeiture accrues is inserted in the lease in pursuance of the directions of any Act of Parliament.

(5.) For the purposes of this section a lease limited to continue so long only as the lessee abstains from committing a breach of covenant shall be and take effect as a lease to continue for any longer term for which it could subsist, but determinable by a proviso for re-entry on such breach.

Exceptions.

(6.) This section does not extend—

(i.) To a covenant or condition against the assigning, underletting, parting with the possession, or disposing of the land leased; or to a condition for forfeiture on the bankruptcy of the lessee, or on the taking in execution of the lessee's interest ; or

- (ii.) In case of a mining lease, to a covenant or condition for allowing the lessor to have access to or inspect books, accounts, records, weighing machines or other things, or to enter or inspect the mine or the workings thereof.

(8.) This section shall not affect the law relating to re-entry or forfeiture or relief in case of non-payment of rent.

(9.) This section applies to leases made either before or after the commencement of this Act, and shall have effect notwithstanding any stipulation to the contrary.

Section 14 does not apply to an agreement for a lease. Consequently if a person who holds an agreement for a lease does any act which, if the lease had been granted, would have involved a forfeiture, he loses the right to insist on specific performance, and the Court cannot relieve him (i).

No relief under Act in case of an agreement for a lease.

VI. The effect of alienation by the lessor or lessee as regards the rent and the covenants and conditions of the lease.

A rent reserved on a lease is by common law incident to the reversion and passes with it on every devolution or alienation. And if the reversion of part of the land comprised in a lease is aliened, the rent is apportionable at common law (k).

Rent follows reversion, and is apportionable on a partial alienation.

The benefit of and obligation under the covenants and conditions in a lease did not, however, pass at common law to a grantee of the reversion. This is remedied by the stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 34, which provides that "all grantees of reversions shall enjoy all advantages, benefits and remedies by action for non-performance of conditions, covenants, or agreements contained or expressed in indentures of lease, which the grantors or lessors themselves had or enjoyed," and also gives a right of action to the lessee against grantees of the reversion.

Benefit of and liability under covenants and conditions made to pass with reversion by statute.

(i) Swain v. Ayres, 20 Q. B. D. 585.

(k) Co. Lit. 148 a.

It has been held that under this Act the assignee of the reversion of part of the demised property may sue the lessee on the covenants in the lease to repair or to pay rent, and in the latter case the rent will be apportioned by the Court or a jury (l).

On alienation of reversion of part of demised land, condition of re-entry for non-payment of rent is available for apportioned part.

But until recent Act condition was gone, as regards breach of covenants, except where lessee himself was alienee.

The stat. 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35 (m), gives to the assignee of the reversion of part of the lands comprised in a lease, where the rent has been legally apportioned, the benefit of all conditions and powers of re-entry for non-payment of the rent in like manner as if such conditions or powers had been reserved to him in respect of such apportioned rent.

The last-mentioned enactment applied to the rent only. If the reversion was severed, the right of re-entry on breach of covenants could not be enforced by the grantee of part (n), unless the grant of part was to the lessee himself so as to cause an extinguishment, in which case the right of re-entry remained intact over that part which remained in the lessor (o).

The Conveyancing Act, 1881, contains the following provisions, applicable only to leases made after the 31st December, 1881:—

Rent and benefit of lessee's covenants and condition of re-entry to run with reversion.

Sect. 10. Rent reserved by a lease and the benefit of every covenant or provision therein contained having reference to the subject-matter thereof, and on the lessee's part to be observed or performed, and every condition of re-entry and other condition therein contained, shall be annexed and incident to and shall go with the reversionary estate in the land or in any part thereof immediately expectant on the term granted by the lease, notwithstanding severance of that reversionary estate, and shall be capable of being recovered, received, enforced and taken advantage of by the person from time to time entitled, subject to the term, to the income of the whole or any part, as the case may require, of the land leased.

Obligation of lessor's covenants to run with reversion.

estate immediately expectant on the term granted by the lease, be annexed and incident to and shall go with that reversionary estate, or the several parts thereof, notwithstanding severance of that reversionary estate, and may be taken advantage of and enforced by the person in whom the term is from time to time vested by conveyance, devolution in law, or otherwise; and, if and as far as the lessor has power to make the lease binding against the person from time to time entitled to that reversionary estate, the obligation aforesaid may be taken advantage of and enforced against any person so entitled.

Sect. 12. Notwithstanding the severance by conveyance, surrender, or otherwise, of the reversionary estate in any land comprised in a lease, and notwithstanding the avoidance or cesser in any other manner of the term granted by a lease as to part only of the land comprised therein, every condition or right of re-entry, and every other condition, contained in the lease, shall be apportioned, and shall remain annexed to the severed parts of the reversionary estate as severed, and shall be in force with respect to the term whereon each severed part is reversionary, or the term in any land which has not been surrendered, or as to which the term has not been avoided or has not otherwise ceased, in like manner as if the land comprised in each severed part, or the land as to which the term remains subsisting, as the case may be, had alone originally been comprised in the lease.

Apportionment of conditions on severance, &c.

It was formerly a rule of law that if a condition was once dispensed with it was gone for ever. As a consequence of this principle, it was held in Dumpor's Case (p), that a condition not to alien without licence was determined by the first licence given. This doctrine is now abolished by the Act 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, which provides in effect that a licence to do any particular act which, without such licence, would create a forfeiture, shall extend only to that act, and that a licence to one of several co-lessees shall not destroy the condition as against the other co-lessees, and that a licence to assign, &c., part of the property shall not destroy the condition as to the rest of the property (q).

Mortgagor in possession may sue for rent.

A conveyance of the reversion by way of mortgage of course passes to the mortgagee the right to the rent and the benefit of all covenants and conditions. But as it is usual for the mortgagee to permit the mortgagor to remain in possession, the Judicature Act, 1873 (r), provides that a mortgagor entitled for the time being to the possession or receipt of the rents and profits of any land as to which no notice of his intention to take possession or to enter into the receipt of the rents and profits thereof shall have been given by the mortgagee, may sue for such possession, or for the recovery of such rents or profits, or to prevent or recover damages in respect of any trespass or other wrong relative thereto in his own name only, unless the cause of action arises upon a lease or other contract made by him jointly with any other person.

Whether lessor can assign right of entry already accrued.

It seems doubtful whether under the stat. 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, s. 5, a lessor can pass to his assignee the right to enter for a breach already committed of the lessee's covenants: at all events, such a right will not pass by the assignment of the reversion, unless expressly mentioned (s).

Effect of destruction of mesne reversion.

As the right to the rent and to sue on the covenants follows the reversion, it was formerly important, where a lease was made by a person who was himself only a termor, or had otherwise a limited interest, that the term or other interest constituting his reversion should not be merged or surrendered. For example, if lands were held by A. for life or for years, with remainder to B., and A. made a lease and afterwards surrendered his estate to B. or took a conveyance from B. which had the effect of merging his (A.'s) estate, the consequence was that, the immediate reversion on the lease being gone, the rent and the benefit of the covenants were gone also. To remedy this, it is provided by 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, s. 9, that in case of the merger or surrender of the reversion expectant on a lease, the estate conferring, as against the tenant under the same lease, the next vested right to the same hereditament, shall for the purpose of preserving the incidents to such extinguished reversion, be deemed the reversion expectant on the lease.

It will be borne in mind that a lessee who has entered into covenants with his lessor remains liable to those covenants after he has assigned the lease to another, and the right to sue the original lessee in such a case passes to a grantee of the reversion by virtue of 32 Hen. 8, c. 34, where the lease is by deed; but not in the case of a tenancy from year to year created by an instrument not under seal (t). It is apprehended, however, that sect. 10 of the Conveyancing Act applies to leases by mere writing where the law does not require a deed, e. g., a lease from year to year, as well as to leases by deed.

Original lessee remains liable to covenants after assignment, and may be sued by grantee of reversion.

VII. By what modes, otherwise than by forfeiture, a tenancy may be determined; and the rights of the parties at the determination thereof, as regards emblements, fixtures, compensation for improvements and other matters.

A lease for a term certain of course determines at the expiration of the term, and no notice to quit is necessary.

Lease for term determines by effluxion of time.

It has been before observed that (except in cases within section 33 of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883) a tenancy from year to year continues until it is put an end to by a half-year's notice to quit from one of the parties, and that such notice must expire at the period of the year at which the tenancy commenced. And if a tenancy from year to year has arisen from the tenant having held over on the expiration of his lease or original tenancy, the general rule is that the notice must expire at the period of the year at which the original term commenced (u). If the tenant dies during the tenancy, his executor or administrator has the same interest in the land as the deceased had, and the same notice to quit is therefore necessary (x).

A half-year's notice to quit is necessary whether the rent be reserved half-yearly or quarterly (y).

Notice to quit primâ facie waived by acceptance or

An acceptance of rent due after the expiration of a notice to quit is a primâ facie waiver of the notice, as it shows the intention of both parties to continue the tenancy; so, also, if the landlord distrains for or demands the rent, he primâ facie affirms the continuance of the tenancy; but the presumption of waiver may be rebutted, and it is a question for the jury, and not for the Court, whether, under the circumstances of the case, the notice has been waived (z).

What notice

under "Agricultural Holdings Act."

Section 33 of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883 (a), provides that where a half-year's notice to quite expiring with a year of tenancy is by law necessary and sufficient for the determination of a tenancy from year to year, a year's notice so expiring is to be necessary and sufficient, unless the landlord and tenant, by writing under their hands, agree that the section shall not apply, in which case a half-year's notice shall continue to be sufficient, but the section does not extend to a case where the tenant is adjudged bankrupt, or has filed a petition for composition or arrangement with his creditors. Nor does the section apply to a yearly tenancy which by express agreement of the parties is determinable by six months' notice to quit (b).

A lease or tenancy may be determined by an express surrender, or by a surrender by act and operation of law. An express surrender requires a deed, unless the estate surrendered is one that can be created by parol (d).

Surrender.
Express surrender must be by deed.

A surrender by act and operation of law arises (1) where the lessee gives up, and the lessor resumes, possession in pursuance of an agreement between the parties that the lease shall come to an end (e); or, (2) where a lessee accepts a new lease commencing immediately, or which is otherwise inconsistent with the continuance of the first lease, even though the second lease may be of shorter duration than the first (f); or, (3) where a new lease is made to a third party, with the assent of the original tenant, who gives up possession (g).

law.

The consent of the original tenant may be implied from the circumstances. Thus, in a case where a bishop's lease had been granted to A., and at the accustomed period a new lease was granted to B., the consent of A. was presumed from the fact that at the time of the renewal B. was in possession of the property and also of the old lease, and that the old lease was, in accordance with the usage at the bishop's office, given up by him to be cancelled (h). But it is apprehended that there can be no implied surrender by the original lessee unless he gives up actual possession. If, therefore, A., a lessee, grants an underlease to B., who takes possession, and a new lease is afterwards granted by the superior lessor to C., no evidence of A.'s consent to the new lease will supply the place of a surrender by deed, so as to enable C. to sue B. on the covenants in the underlease (i).

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (k), the trustee is authorized to disclaim onerous property (l) at any time within three months after the first appointment of a trustee (m), or if such property shall not have come to the trustee's knowledge within one month after such appointment, then at any time within two months after he first became aware of it. The disclaimer operates to determine as from its date the rights, interests, and liabilities of the bankrupt and his property in or in respect of the property disclaimed, and also discharges the trustee from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed as from the date when the property vested in him, but does not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the bankrupt and his property and the trustee from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person.

Trustee may not disclaim without leave of Court, except in certain cases.

A trustee may not disclaim a lease without the leave of the Court except in cases prescribed by general rules (n), and the Court may impose conditions before or on granting leave. Any person interested may by notice require the trustee to decide whether he will disclaim or not, and if he neglects to give notice whether he disclaims or not for twenty-eight days, or for such extended period as may be allowed by the Court, he cannot disclaim afterwards. The Court may, on application by any person interested or under any liability not discharged by the Act in respect of any disclaimed property, make an order vesting it in any such person or in any trustee for him upon such terms

Court may vest disclaimed property in any person interested, or under liability in respect of it.

(k) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 55.

(l) This is not confined to property divisible among the creditors, but extends to any property, as defined by sect. 168, from which no benefit can accrue to the estate. In re Maughan, 14 Q. B. D. 956.

(m) The Court can, under sect. 105, sub-s. 4, enlarge the time for disclaimer; but the trustee must show some good reason for the indulgence he asks. Re Price, 13 Q. B. D. 466.

(n) By the Bankruptcy Rules, 1883, Rule 232, a lease may be disclaimed without leave of the Court where the bankrupt has not sublet or assigned the lease, or created any mortgage or charge thereon, and (a) the rent reserved and real value of the property leased, as ascertained by the property tax assessment, are less than 20*l.* per annum, or (b) the estate is administered under sect. 121 of the Act, or (c) the trustee serves the lessor with notice of his intention to disclaim, and the lessor does not within seven days after the receipt of such notice give notice to the trustee requiring the matter to be brought before the Court.

In what cases a lease may be disclaimed without leave of the Court.

as it thinks fit, but in the case of leasehold property the Court is not to make a vesting order in favour of any underlessee or mortgagee by demise, except upon the terms of making him subject to the same liabilities and obligations as the bankrupt was subject to at the date of the bankruptcy petition; and any mortgagee or underlessee declining to accept a vesting order upon such terms is to be excluded from all interest in and security upon the property, and if there is no person claiming under the bankrupt willing to accept a vesting order on those terms, the Court may vest the bankrupt's interest in any person liable to perform the lessee's covenants, discharged from all estates, &c., created by the bankrupt. Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer may prove as a creditor in the bankruptcy.

It will be seen that the above enactment defines the effect of a disclaimer with more precision than was done by the Act of 1869 (o). Its practical operation may be thus stated—(1.) When the bankrupt is the original lessee, the lessor will be entitled to distrain, or to prove in the bankruptcy for arrears of rent, and also to prove for breaches of covenant up to the date of the disclaimer, subject as to arrears of rent to the operation of section 42. (2.) Where the bankrupt is an assign of the original lessee, the disclaimer will not deprive the lessor of any of his remedies against the original lessee, who will be entitled to prove in the bankruptcy for any money which he may be compelled to pay, and which the bankrupt ought to have paid. He may also apply to the Court for an order vesting the bankrupt's interest in him. (3.) Where the bankrupt has mortgaged by demise, or granted an underlease, the Court will give the mortgagee or underlessee the option of taking a vesting order of the bankrupt's interest. If he consents to take it, he will be liable to the rent and lessee's covenants contained in the original lease as from the date of the petition in bankruptcy,

When the bankrupt is the original lessee, all remedies of the lessee remain in force until disclaimer.

Where the bankrupt is an assign, remedies of lessor against original lessee remain in force after disclaimer.

The mortgagee by demise or underlessee may have a vesting order; but if he declines, mortgage or underlease will cease.

(o) As the cases decided under sect. 23 of the Act of 1869 have no application to the cases which will arise under the new Act, they are not noticed in this edition.

and will be freed and discharged from the rent and covenants (if any) contained in the underlease. If, on the other hand, he declines to take a vesting order, his mortgage or underlease will cease altogether.

Leases may be renewed without surrender of underleases.

The stat. 4 Geo. 2, c. 28, s. 6, enables leases to be renewed without the surrender of any underleases derived out of the old lease, and saves to the lessee under the new lease and to the underlessees the same mutual rights and remedies as if the old lease had been still in existence.

Tenant holding over after demand of possession to pay double annual value of premises.

By the same stat., s. 1, it is enacted that "if any tenant for life or lives, or years, holds over any lands, &c., after the determination of his estate, after demand made and notice in writing given, for delivering the possession thereof, by the landlord, &c., or his agent thereunto lawfully authorized, such tenant so holding over shall pay to the person so kept out of possession at the rate of double the yearly value of the lands so detained for so long a time as the same shall be detained." And by stat. 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 18, it is enacted that "in case any tenant shall give notice of his intention to quit the premises, and shall not accordingly deliver up the possession thereof at the time in such notice mentioned, the said tenant shall thenceforth pay to the landlord double the rent which he should otherwise have paid."

Tenant holding over after expiration of his notice to quit, to pay double rent.

Holding over must be contumacious.

To enable a landlord to recover double value under the 4 Geo. 2, c. 28, the holding over by the tenant must be contumacious. Thus in a recent case A., a tenant of B., after the death of B. accepted a fresh term from his devisee. He afterwards found that the heir of B. disputed the will, and from the circumstances of the case he reasonably and bonâ fide believed that the devisee had no title, and that the land belonged to the heir-at-law. A. thereupon refused to pay rent to the devisee, who gave him notice to quit. As A. did not quit at the expiration of the notice, the devisee, who had established her title, brought an action against him for the double value for wilfully holding over. It was held that the action was not maintainable, as to come within the Act the holding over must be with the consciousness on the part of the tenant that he has no right to retain possession (p).

In a recent case, a landlord, after giving a yearly tenant notice to quit at the end of his year, agreed to let the land to A. from the end of the year, and informed the tenant that he had done so, but the tenant nevertheless held the premises over for another quarter. It was held that the landlord might recover against the tenant as damages the amount of the ordinary damages which he had had to pay in an action brought against him by A. for not giving him possession at the time agreed on and the cost of such action. It was also held that the fact of the landlord having received from the tenant rent for the quarter during which he held over did not preclude him from bringing the action (q).

What damages may be recovered against tenant holding over.

Where a lease or tenancy is for an uncertain period, and determines after the crops are sown and before harvest, the tenant is as a general rule entitled to the crops, or (as they are usually called) to emblements; but if the lease is for a term certain, the tenant has no such right (in the absence of special custom), for it is his own fault if, under such circumstances, he sows the crops. Emblements.

It is now provided by the 14 & 15 Vict. c. 25, s. 1, that where a lease held by a tenant at rack rent shall determine by the death or the cesser of the estate of the landlord entitled for his life, or any other uncertain interest, instead of emblements the tenant shall continue to hold and occupy the lands until the expiration of the then current year of his tenancy, and shall then quit upon the terms of his lease or holding in the same manner as if such lease or tenancy were determined by effluxion of time or other lawful means during the continuance of the landlord's estate; and the succeeding landlord or owner is empowered to receive and recover from the tenant a due proportion of the rent for the period which shall have elapsed from the death or cesser of the estate of the previous landlord or owner.

On death of landlord entitled for life, tenancy continues up to end of current year.

The above Act applies to all tenancies in respect of which there may be a claim to emblements (r).

Law of emblements applies between heir and executors.

The right to emblements is not confined to the case of landlord and tenant. Thus if a tenant in fee dies before harvest, the then growing crops will go to his executors, though if he has devised the land, the devisee will be entitled to the crops as against the executor(s). And where the estates of persons having only limited interests determine by their deaths before harvest, the emblements will go to their personal representatives.

Fixtures, general law as to.

Exception in case of trade and ornamental fixtures.

The general law as to things annexed to the freehold is that they become part of it and cannot be severed by a tenant without the consent of the landlord. But an exception to this general law has long been established in the case of fixtures set up for the purposes of trade (t), or for purposes of ornament or convenience; as, for example, marble, or other ornamental chimney-pieces, marble slabs, grates, or stoves, or the like, provided that they can be separated from the freehold without any material injury (u).

Agricultural fixtures.

Recent statutes have conferred on tenants of farms special rights with regard to what may be called agricultural fixtures. Thus the Act 14 & 15 Vict. c. 25, sect. 3, provides "that if any tenant of a farm or lands shall, with the consent in writing of the landlord, at his own cost and expense, erect any farm-building, either detached or otherwise, or put up any other building, engine, or machinery either for agricultural purposes or for the purposes of trade and agriculture (which shall not have been erected or put up in pursuance of some obligation in that behalf), then all such buildings, engines, and machinery, shall be the property of the tenant, and shall be removable by him, notwithstanding the same may consist of separate buildings, or that the same, or any part thereof, may be built in or permanently fixed to the soil, so as the tenant making any such removal do not in anywise injure the land or buildings belonging to the landlord, or otherwise do put the same in like plight and condition, or as good plight and condition as the same were in before the erection of anything so removed." But the tenant is bound before any such removal to give a month's notice to the landlord or his agent, and the landlord may elect to purchase the matters and things proposed to be removed at a valuation.

And the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883, contains provisions conferring further rights on tenants with regard to fixtures in the case of holdings subject to that Act, which provisions will be mentioned afterwards in connection with the other provisions of that Act.

As a general rule the tenant must in the absence of any express stipulation on the subject, remove fixtures during the term, otherwise they belong to the landlord (x); and this rule equally applies, when the tenancy is determined by the lessor re-entering for a breach of covenant (y). If, however, the tenant is allowed to remain in possession after the expiration of the term, it would seem that he may at any time while so remaining in possession remove fixtures which he might have removed during the term (z). And in Weeton v. Woodcock (a), the rule was thus stated, that the tenant's right to remove fixtures continues during his original term, and during such further period of possession by him, as he holds the premises under a right still to consider himself a tenant (b).

Effect of disclaimer by trustee of bankrupt as regards right to remove fixtures.

Under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869 (c), a disclaimer by the trustee operated as a surrender of the lease as from the date of the adjudication, and it was consequently held that a trustee after disclaimer could not remove the fixtures (d), and that if he removed them first and disclaimed afterwards, the landlord might recover against him their value (e). But under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (f), a disclaimer by the trustee determines the rights and interests of the bankrupt as from its date only, and will therefore, it is apprehended, not prevent the trustee from removing the fixtures during the interval between the commencement of the bankruptcy and the date of the disclaimer. If the trustee does not remove them before applying for leave to disclaim, the Court will give the landlord the option of taking them at a valuation; and, if he declines, will allow the trustee a reasonable time within which to remove them (g).

Covenants as to fixtures.

Where there is an express covenant as to fixtures, the rights of the parties must of course depend on the terms of the covenant. Thus, if it is provided that a lessee may remove the fixtures at the end of the term, he will be allowed a reasonable time for that purpose (h). On the other hand, if a lessee covenants to deliver up to the landlord, at the expiration of the term, fixtures, which, in the absence of such covenant, he might have removed, he thereby deprives himself of the right of removing them. In a case where the lessee covenanted to surrender the premises at the end of the term, "with all locks, keys, bars, bolts, marble and other chimney-pieces, foot paces, slabs, and other fixtures and articles which shall or may at any time during the term be fixed or fastened to the said demised premises or be thereto belonging," it was held that, as the specific articles were all of the nature of landlord's fixtures, the general words were to be interpreted as referring to articles ejusdem generis, and consequently that the covenant did not prevent the lessee from removing the tenant's fixtures⁽ⁱ⁾. In another case a lessee covenanted to surrender the premises "with all wainscots, windows, &c., and other things which then were or at any time thereafter should be thereunto affixed or belonging (looking-glasses and furniture excepted), and together also with all sheds and other erections, buildings, and improvements, which should be erected, built, or made upon the said premises," and it was held that a plate-glass shop front, fixed in its place by wooden wedges, without screws, nails, or glue, and which could be removed without injury to the premises, was within the covenant and could not be removed^(k). Again, where a lessee covenanted to deliver up certain enumerated articles, "and other additions, improvements, and things" which should be anyways fixed or fastened upon the premises, Vice-Chancellor Wood thought that the general words could not be restricted, there being no assignable genus to which the enumerated articles belonged; and the Vice-Chancellor held that the lessee could not make a marketable title to articles in the nature of tenant's fixtures^(l).

It is evident from the above cases, that if it is intended that the lessee shall have the ordinary rights of a tenant with regard to fixtures, care must be taken that the covenants of the lease are so framed as not to prejudice that right.

The relative rights of landlords and tenants of farms at the determination of the tenancy are considerably affected by the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883^(m), which came into force on the 1st January, 1884. The operation of the Act is confined to holdings either wholly agricultural or wholly pastoral, or partly agricultural, and as to the residue pastoral, or in whole or in part cultivated as a market garden, and it does not apply to any holding let to the tenant during his continuance in any employment under the landlord (n).

Outgoing tenant to be allowed compensation for improvements falling within three classes.

Under this Act an outgoing tenant is to be allowed compensation for an improvement made by him during the tenancy and falling within either of the three classes following, viz.:—Class I. Erection or enlargement of buildings, formation of silos, laying down of permanent pasture, making and planting of osier beds, making of water meadows or works of irrigation, making of gardens, making or improving of roads or bridges, watercourses, ponds, wells, or reservoirs, or of works for the application of water power, or for supply of water for agricultural or domestic purposes, making of fences, planting of hops, planting of orchards or fruit bushes, reclaiming of waste land, warping of land, and embankment and sluices against floods. Class II. Drainage; and Class III. Chalking, claying, liming, and marling of land, clay-burning, application to land of purchased artificial or other purchased manure, and consumption on the holding by cattle, sheep, or pigs, of cake or other feeding stuff not produced on the holding (o).

Principle on which compensation is to be assessed.

The compensation provided by the Act is such a sum as fairly represents the value of the improvement to an incoming tenant, but what is justly due to the inherent capabilities of the soil is not to be taken into account (p).

Act does not apply to improvements made before its commencement, with exceptions.

Landlord's consent necessary to improvements of the first class.

Compensation will not be payable under this Act in respect of improvements executed before its commencement, with certain exceptions (q).

As regards improvements of the first class made after the commencement of the Act, the landlord's consent is necessary, and such consent may be given either unconditionally or upon terms as to compensation and otherwise, and in the event of any agreement between the parties any compensation payable thereunder is to be substituted for that under the Act (r).

drainage, done after the commencement of the Act, the tenant must give notice to the landlord of his intention to make it, and upon such notice being given they may agree on the terms as to compensation or otherwise, on which the improvement is to be executed, and any compensation so agreed on is to be substituted for that under the Act, or the landlord may undertake to execute the improvement himself, and charge the tenant with interest on the outlay at 5 per cent., or with such an annual sum payable for twenty-five years as will replace the outlay in that period, with interest at 3 per cent. The landlord and tenant may, if they think fit, dispense with any notice and come to an agreement in the lease or otherwise between themselves (s).

As regards improvements of the third class, where any agreement secures to the tenant fair and reasonable compensation, such compensation will be substituted for that under the Act (t).

Compensation under agreement for improvements of third class may be substituted for that under Act.

Where in the cases of tenancies current at the commencement of the Act, any agreement, or custom, or the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1875 (u), provides specific compensation for any improvement, such compensation will be substituted for that under the Act (t).

Compensation in case of current tenancies.

Deductions are to be allowed for rent, taxes, rates or tithe rent-charge in arrear and for breaches of the tenant's covenants, and for certain other matters (x).

What deductions allowed.

The tenant must give notice of his intention to claim compensation at least two months before the determination of the tenancy, and in such case the landlord may before the end of the tenancy, or within fourteen days afterwards, give a counter notice of his intention to claim compensation. ence between them being settled by arbitration, and for an appeal to the County Court against the award where the sum claimed exceeds 50*l.* (y). It is also provided that a landlord on paying compensation to the tenant may obtain from the County Court a charge on the holding in respect thereof (z).

Restriction in respect of improvements by tenant about to quit.

Tenant may not contract himself out of right to compensation.

Landlord may resume possession of part of holding for certain purposes.

Tenant's property in fixtures, machinery, &c.

With certain exceptions, a tenant will not be entitled to compensation for improvements begun after a notice to quit, or during the last year of a lease (a).

Any contract by the tenant depriving him of his right to compensation for improvements is void (b).

The Act also enables the landlord in case of tenancies from year to year to resume possession of part of the holding for improvement purposes by giving a notice to quit, the tenant to be entitled in such case to a proportionate reduction of rent, and also to have the option of giving up the entire holding (c).

The Act also provides that where after the Act a tenant affixes to his holding any engine, machinery, fencing, or other fixture, or erects any building for which he is not under the Act or otherwise entitled to compensation, and which is not so affixed or erected in pursuance of some obligation in that behalf, or instead of some fixture or building belonging to the landlord, then such fixture or building is to be the property of and be removable by the tenant: But before the removal of any fixture the tenant must pay all rent in arrear and perform all other his obligations to the landlord in respect of the holding. He must also give one month's previous notice in writing to the landlord of his intention to remove it, within which month the landlord may elect to purchase it at a valuation (d).

Until the passing of the Settled Land Act, 1882, it was usual to give to a tenant for life in possession of settled land, or if there was no tenant for life in possession who was sui juris, to the trustees of the settlement, or to the guardians of an infant tenant for life or in tail, a power to grant leases for twenty-one years, and, if the nature of the property required it, building and mining leases.

Powers of leasing usually conferred by settlements.

Where a power of leasing prescribes conditions to be observed in regard to its exercise, care should be taken to comply with them. But a failure to do so, where the failure is one of form and not of substance, will generally be relieved against by the Court in the exercise of its equitable jurisdiction. And independently of the ordinary jurisdiction of the Court in aiding defective execution of a power, the legislature has made special provision for remedying defects in the case of leases. Thus, by the stat. 12 & 13 Vict. c. 26, it is provided that where in the intended exercise of any power of leasing, which by reason of the non-observance or omission of some condition or restriction or by reason of any other deviation from the terms of such power, is invalid against the remainderman, such lease, if made bonâ fide, and the lessee has entered thereunder, shall be considered in equity as a contract for a valid lease under such power, save so far as any variation may be necessary in order to comply with the terms of the power (e); and that where a lease under a power is invalid by reason that at the time of granting thereof the lessor could not lawfully grant the same, but the estate of such lessor in the property shall have continued after the time when such lease might have been granted by him, then the lease is to be valid (f). And by the Act 13 & 14 Vict. c. 17, it is provided that a receipt, or other memorandum in writing or payment of rent confirming an invalid lease, shall, as against the person giving such receipt, &c., be deemed a confirmation (g).

Covenant for renewal by donee of power, when enforceable.

A tenant for life with a power of leasing at the best rent, &c., may, in a lease granted under the power, covenant for a renewal, and the covenant will be enforced if at the time for its performance, the new lease reserves the best rent that can be obtained, and contains any stipulation authorised by the power (h).

Acts to authorize leases of settled estates now consolidated.

If the settlement contained no power of leasing, it was formerly necessary to obtain a private Act of Parliament to remedy the defect. But in 1856, an Act was passed to authorize sales and leases of settled estates, and was followed by amending Acts in subsequent sessions. All these Acts have been repealed, and their provisions consolidated by the Settled Estates Act, 1877 (i).

Act of 1877 enables tenants for life, &c., to grant leases without any application to the Court.

This Act enables any person entitled to the possession or receipt of the rents and profits of any settled estates (as defined by the Act), for an estate for any life, or for a term of years determinable with any life or lives, or for any greater estate, either in his own right, or in right of his wife (in the absence of any express declaration to the contrary in the settlement), and also any person entitled to the possession or receipt of the rents and profits of any unsettled estates as tenant by the curtesy, or in dower, or in right of a wife seised in fee, without any application to the Court, to demise the same except the principal mansion, and the lands usually occupied therewith, for any term not exceeding twenty-one years as regards estates in England, or for any term not exceeding thirty-five years as regards estates in Ireland, to take effect in possession or within one year from the making thereof, provided that the demise be by deed, and at the best rent without any premium, and be not without impeachment of waste (k), and contain a covenant to pay the rent and such other usual and proper covenants as the lessor shall think fit, and a condition of re-entry on non-payment of rent for twenty-eight days; and provided a counterpart be executed by the lessee (l), and the execution of the lease by the lessor is made sufficient evidence of the execution of the counterpart by the lessee (m).

The Act of 1856 (n) contained a clause similar to the above section in the present Act, except that the person to exercise the power was "any person entitled to the possession, &c., for an estate for life," instead of "for an estate for any life." Upon the construction of that clause, it was held that under a trust directing the trustees to receive the rents and apply them in paying certain charges, and to pay the surplus to A. for his life, A. could not exercise the power of leasing, as in such a case the trustees, and not A., are to have the management (o). But this case is not to be taken as a decision that a tenant for life who is to receive the rents and profits during his life through the intervention of a trustee is not within the Act (p).

Construction of similar clause in former Act.

The Settled Estates Act, 1877, also empowers the High Court of Justice to authorize leases of settled estates including building and mining leases, upon the terms and conditions mentioned in the Act.

High Court of Justice may authorize leases.

The power of leasing conferred by sect. 46 of the Settled Estates Act is now supplemented by the more extensive powers contained in the Settled Land Act, 1882, amended by the Settled Land Act, 1884. Under these Acts (q) (which are printed at length in an Appendix to this volume), tenants for life (r) and other limited owners (s) may grant leases of settled land for terms not exceeding, as regards building leases, ninety-nine years, mining leases sixty years, and other leases twenty-one years, subject to the conditions prescribed by the Act (t), and in certain cases may, with the sanction of the Court, make leases for longer terms or building grants in perpetuity (u). It is provided, however, that under a mining lease a portion of the rent reserved, viz., three-fourths, where the tenant for life is impeachable for waste, and otherwise one-fourth part shall be capitalized (x); and it is also provided that before granting a lease, the tenant for life shall give a month's notice of his intention in that behalf to each trustee of the settlement, and also to the trustees' solicitor, if known to him (y), but the notice may be waived (z). The power may be exercised when the tenant for life is an infant by the trustees of the settlement (a), and where she is a married woman with the concurrence of her husband, unless she is entitled for her separate use, in which case the husband's concurrence is unnecessary, and a restraint on anticipation will not prevent her from exercising the power (b).

The powers given by the Act are cumulative, and do not preclude or interfere with the exercise of any powers for the same purpose conferred by the settlement or by any other Act (c). It follows that a lease for twenty-one years may still be granted by a tenant for life under sect. 46 of the Settled Estates Act, 1877, and it may sometimes be found convenient to resort to this power, so as to save the necessity of giving the notice required by sect. 45 of the Act of 1882. Again, where there is an open mine on the settled estate, the tenant for life may lease it for twenty-one years under the former Act, without being obliged to consent to the capitalization of any part of the rent under sect. 11 of the latter Act (d).

Where land is held by trustees on trust for sale, the tenant for life or other limited owner of the proceeds of the sale may exercise the powers of the Act with the leave of the Court (e).

As regards mortgages made after the 31st December, 1881, the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 18, enables a mortgagor while in possession, and also a mortgagee in possession (except where a contrary intention is expressed in the mortgage deed) to make agricultural or occupation leases for any term not exceeding twenty-one years, and building leases for any term not exceeding ninety-nine years, subject to the following conditions:—(1) Every lease must be made to take effect in possession not later than twelve months after its date. (2) It must reserve the best rent that can reasonably be obtained, regard being had to the circumstances of the case, but without any fine being taken. (3) It must contain a covenant by the lessee for payment of the rent, and a condition of re-entry on the rent not being paid within a time therein specified not exceeding thirty-one days. (4) A counterpart must be executed by the lessee and delivered to the lessor, of which execution and delivery the execution of the lease by the lessor is, in favour of the lessee, sufficient evidence. (5) Every building lease is to be made in consideration of the lessee or some person by whose direction the lease is granted, having erected, or agreeing to erect within not more than five years from the date of the lease, buildings, new or additional, or having improved or repaired buildings, or agreeing to improve or repair buildings, within that time, or having executed or agreeing to execute within that time, on the land leased, an improvement for or in connexion with building purposes. (6) In any building lease a peppercorn rent, or a nominal or other rent less than the rent ultimately payable, may be made payable for the first five years, or any less part of the term. (7) In case of a lease by the mortgagor, the lessor must, within one month after making the lease, deliver a counterpart to the mortgagee, or, where there are more than one, to the mortgagee first in priority, but the lessee need not see that this provision is complied with.

enactments is to prohibit leases for more than twenty-one years or three lives, except as regards houses in towns, which may be demised for forty years, and incumbents must obtain the confirmation of the patron and ordinary in order to bind their successors. Other restrictions are imposed by the Acts (g). The remedial clauses in the Act 12 & 13 Vict. c. 26, above referred to do not apply to ecclesiastical leases (h).

IX. Other matters relating to leases.

Lessee estopped from disputing his landlord's title, but may show that it has expired.

A tenant cannot, during his possession of the premises demised, dispute the title of the landlord under whom he entered (i), and this rule extends to an under-tenant (k). But a tenant may show that the landlord's title has expired (l), and he may do that (among other ways) by showing an eviction either actual or constructive. Thus, if a tenant is evicted by a title paramount to the lessor's, he may plead such eviction, and it would seem that it is not necessary that he should wait to be actually evicted, but that if he attorns to a party who has a right to evict him, and has actually commenced proceedings for that purpose, that is equivalent to an eviction (m). But a mere payment of rent to a party who threatens expulsion is not a constructive eviction (n).

Estoppel applicable to action for trespass.

The doctrine of estoppel is applicable to an action for trespass as well as for ejectment (o).

Implied covenant for quiet enjoyment.

Upon every demise, whether under seal or by parol, there is, in the absence of express covenant, an implied contract on the part of the lessor that he has a right to demise, and for quiet enjoyment by the lessee absolutely; and, consequently, if a tenant is evicted by a superior title, or is distrained on for a rent-charge charged on the land by a predecessor in title of the lessor, or is otherwise disturbed in his possession, he may sue the lessor on such implied covenant (p); nor is he bound to show that he has been actually evicted; for if a man demise land to which he has no title, an action on the covenant will lie against him, although the lessee has never entered, because he is not bound to commit a trespass (q); and if a lessor grants a lease knowing that he has no title, and the lessee does not know it, the lease will be set aside (q). But the implied covenant ceases with the lessor's estate. Hence if tenant for life grants a lease for years, the implied covenant ceases on his death (r). If the lease contains an express covenant for quiet enjoyment, without any interruption from the lessor or any person claiming under him, such express covenant restrains the generality of the implied contract (s), and should therefore always be inserted in the interest of the lessor.

Ceases with lessor's estate.

Restrained by the express covenant.

It is a breach of a covenant for quiet enjoyment for a lessor to give notice to a sub-tenant of the lessee to pay his rent to him; and it is no answer to an action on the covenant that the lessee has not observed his own covenants—e.g., to repair (t).

Lessor sued on this covenant cannot plead breach by lessee of his own covenants.

Persons taking an estate in remainder under a settlement made by the lessor are deemed to claim under him within the meaning of the ordinary covenant for quiet enjoyment (u).

What persons are deemed to claim under lessor.

A tenant is bound to keep during his tenancy, and to leave at the end of it, his landlord's property not in any way confounded with his own (x), and the Court may at any time during the tenancy, as well as at the end of it, direct an inquiry to ascertain the boundary (y). In the absence of special stipulation, it is the practice for the lessor's solicitor to prepare the lease, and for the lessee to pay his own expenses and those of the lessor.

Tenant is bound not to confound boundaries.

X. Stamps on leases and agreements for leases.

The present Stamp Act (z) imposes the following duties on leases :—

(1) For any definite term less than a year :	£	s.	d.
(a) Of any dwelling-house or tenement, or part of a dwelling-house or tenement, at a rent not exceeding the rate of £10 per annum	0	0	1

(c) Of any lands, tenements, or heritable subjects, except or otherwise than as aforesaid	} The same duty as a lease for a year at the rent reserved for the definite term.

(2) For any other definite term, or for any indefinite term :

Of any lands, tenements, or heritable subjects :—

Where the consideration, or any part of the consideration, moving either to the lessor or to any other person, consists of any money, stock, or security :

In respect of such consideration } The same duty as a conveyance on a sale for the same consideration.

Where the consideration, or any part of the consideration, is any rent :

In respect of such consideration :
If the rent, whether reserved as a yearly rent or otherwise, is at a rate, or average rate :

Sect. 96. (1) An agreement for a lease or tack, or with respect to the letting of any lands, tenements, or heritable subjects for any term not exceeding thirty-five years, is to be charged with the same duty as if it were an actual lease or tack made for the term and consideration mentioned in the agreement.

Agreements for not more than thirty-five years to be charged as leases.

Sect. 97. (1) Where the consideration, or any part of the consideration, for which any lease or tack is granted or agreed to be granted, does not consist of money, but consists of any produce or other goods, the value of such produce or goods is to be deemed a consideration in respect of which the lease or tack or agreement is chargeable with ad valorem duty, and where it is stipulated that the value of such produce or goods is to amount at least to, or is not to exceed, a given sum, or where the lessee is specially charged with, or has the option of paying after, any permanent rate of conversion, the value of such produce or goods is, for the purpose of assessing the ad valorem duty, to be estimated at a given sum, or according to such permanent rate.

Statement as to value to be deemed true.

(2) A lease, or tack, or agreement, made either entirely or partially, for any such consideration, if it contains a statement of the value of such consideration, and is stamped in accordance with such statement, is, so far as regards the subject-matter of such statement, to be deemed duly stamped, unless or until it is otherwise shown that such statement is incorrect, and that it is in fact not duly stamped.

No additional duty on account of penal rent.

Sect. 98. (1) A lease, or tack, or agreement for a lease or tack, or with respect to any letting, is not to be charged with any duty in respect of any penal rent, or increased rent in the nature of a penal rent, thereby reserved or agreed to be reserved or made payable, or by reason of being made in consideration of the surrender or abandonment of any existing lease, tack, or agreement, of or relating to the same subject-matter.

No additional duty on account of covenant to build.

(2) No lease made for any consideration or considerations in respect whereof it is chargeable with ad valorem duty, and in further consideration either of a covenant by the lessee to make, or of his having previously made, any substantial improvement of or addition to the property demised to him, or of any covenant relating to the matter of the lease, is to be charged with any duty in respect of such further consideration.

Duty on leases by ecclesiastical corporations.

(3) No lease for a life or lives not exceeding three, or for a term of years determinable with a life or lives not exceeding three, and no lease for a term absolute not exceeding twenty-one years, granted by an ecclesiastical corporation aggregate or sole, is to be charged with any higher duty than thirty-five shillings.

Sect. 99. The duty upon an instrument chargeable with duty as a lease or tack for any definite term less than a year of—

- (1) Any dwelling-house or tenement, or part of a dwelling-house or tenement, at a rent not exceeding the rate of ten pounds per annum :

certain cases may be denoted by adhesive stamp.

- (2) Any furnished dwelling-house or apartments :

Or upon the duplicate or counterpart of any such instrument, may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the instrument is first executed.

Sect. 100. (1) Every person who executes, or prepares, or is employed in preparing any instrument upon which the duty may, under the provisions of the last preceding section, be denoted by an adhesive stamp, and which is not, at or before the execution thereof, duly stamped, shall forfeit the sum of £5.

Penalty in certain cases.

- (2) Provided that nothing in this section contained shall render any person liable to the said penalty of £5 in respect of any letters or correspondence.

As regards leases not falling within sect. 99 of the Act of 1870, the lessee is liable to forfeit £10 if he does not stamp it properly within 30 days after its first execution, or, if executed abroad, after its first being received in the United Kingdom (a).

Penalty in other cases.

UNDER POWERS, ETC.

1. THIS INDENTURE made, &c., (date and parties as in Precedent No. VI.) WITNESSETH that in consideration of the rent, &c., the said A. B. (hereinafter called "the lessor") in exercise of the power (h) for this purpose given to him by an indenture dated, &c., and made, &c., (date and parties) or by the will of L. M., late of, &c., dated the — day of —, 18—, and proved on the — day of —, 18—, in the principal probate registry of the High Court of Justice, and of all other powers (if any) him hereunto enabling, doth hereby appoint and demise, &c., (the rest as in Precedent No. VI. to the end).

1. Under a power created by deed or will.

(g) For an interpretation clause in the case of an underlease, see Precedent No. VIII., infra, p. 64.

(h) A power of leasing conferred by a deed or will is not taken away by the Settled Land Act; but if a power for the same purpose is vested by the Act in some other person, the consent of that person is necessary to its exercise. Sect. 56. In the above case it is supposed that the powers given by the deed or will and by the Act are vested in the same person.

2. By a tenant for life, &c., under Settled Land Act.

2. THIS INDENTURE, made, &c., (date and parties as in Precedent No. VI.). WHEREAS under an indenture dated, &c., and made, &c., (date and parties) [or under the will, &c.] the said A. B. is beneficially entitled to the possession of the hereditaments intended to be hereby demised for his life (i) [or for the life of X. Y., or in fee simple, subject to an executory limitation over on failure of his issue, or, in the case of any other limited owner, state the nature of his ownership] (k). NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH that in consideration, &c., the said A. B. (hereinafter called “the lessor”) in exercise of the power for this purpose given to him by the Settled Land Act, 1882, and of all other powers (if any) him hereunto enabling doth hereby demise, &c., (the rest as in Precedent No. VI. to the end) (l).

3. THIS INDENTURE made the — day of —, 18—, BETWEEN E. F. of &c., and G. H. of &c., (trustees of the settlement) of the first part, A. B. of &c., (infant tenant for life) (m) of the second part, and C. D. of &c., (lessee) of the third part. WHEREAS under an indenture dated, &c., and made, &c., the said A. B. who is an infant is, or if of full age would be, beneficially entitled to the possession of the hereditaments intended to be hereby demised as tenant [for life or in tail, or as the case may be]; and the said E. F. and G. H. are the trustees thereof for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1882 (n):

(i) Settled Land Act, 1882, ss. 6—14, 20.

(l) This form will be applicable whether the person granting the lease has a legal or only an equitable estate. In either case the benefit of the covenants entered into with him will, under sect. 10 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, be annexed and incident to and go with the reversion.

(m) The infant is made a party, as the covenants will be entered into with him, but he will not execute the lease.

(n) See the definition of the term “trustees of the settlement” in sect. 2, sub-sect. 8. The above form of recital will be applicable whether the trustees are appointed by the settlement itself or by the Court under sect. 38.

NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH that in consideration, &c., the said E. F. and G. H. for and on behalf of the said A. B. (hereinafter called the "lessor") in exercise of the power for this purpose given to them by the Settled Land Act, 1882, and of all other powers (if any) them hereunto enabling do hereby demise, &c., (the rest as in Precedent No. VI. to the end, omitting the covenant by the lessor for quiet enjoyment).

POWERS, ETC.

4. THIS INDENTURE made the — day of —, 18—, BETWEEN E. F., of, &c. (person appointed by Court to act for infant) of the first part, A. B., of, &c. (infant tenant in fee simple) of the second part, and C. D., of, &c. (lessee) of the third part. WHEREAS F. G., late of, &c., died on the — day of —, 18—, intestate, seised in fee simple of the hereditaments intended to be hereby demised, and leaving the said A. B., who is an infant, his eldest son, and heir-at-law: AND WHEREAS by an order (p) of the High Court of Justice (Chancery Division) dated the — day of —, 18—, and made in the matter of, &c., and of the Settled Land Act, 1882, on the application of the said A. B., by L. M. his next friend, it was ordered that the powers conferred upon a tenant for life by sections 6 to 13 both inclusive, and sections 16 to 20 both inclusive, of the said Act, might be exercised by the said E. F. on behalf of the said A. B. during his minority: NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH that in consideration, &c., the said E. F. on behalf of the said A. B. (hereinafter called "the lessor") in exercise of the power for this purpose given to him by the Settled Land Act, 1882, and of all other powers (if any) him hereunto enabling doth hereby demise, &c., (the rest as in Precedent No. VI. to the end, omitting the lessor's covenant for quiet enjoyment).

4. By person appointed by Court to exercise powers of Act on behalf of infant tenant in fee simple.

5. THIS INDENTURE made the — day of —, 18—, BETWEEN A. B., of, &c., (tenant for life of proceeds) of the one part, and C. D., of, &c., (lessee) of the other part: WHEREAS under the following deeds, namely (state dates and parties) [or under the will of, &c., dated, &c., and proved, &c.] the hereditaments intended to be hereby demised are vested in trustees for sale, and the said A. B. is beneficially entitled during his life to the income of the moneys to arise from the sale of the said hereditaments, and to the rents and profits thereof until such

THIS INDENTURE, made the — day of —, BETWEEN C. D., of, &c. (mortgagor), of the first part, A. B., of, &c. (mortgagee), of the second part, and E. F., of, &c. (lessee), of the third part. WHEREAS under an indenture, &c. (date and parties), the hereditaments hereinafter described are vested in the said A. B. by way of mortgage, and the said C. D., who is entitled to the equity of redemption of the said hereditaments and is in possession thereof, has power under the said indenture to lease the same in manner hereinafter expressed. NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH, that in consideration, &c., the

(a) In this Precedent the mortgagee is made a party, the lessee's covenants being entered into with him as the person entitled to the legal reversion, but it is not intended that he shall execute the deed.
A mortgagor would in most cases prefer not to disclose the mortgage, and to frame the lease as if he were absolute owner. Whether a lease so framed would be binding on the mortgagee, if made under a power created by the mortgage deed, and requiring in express terms that the rent shall be reserved to, and the covenants entered into with, the mortgagee, is doubtful. See Yellowly v. Gower, 11 Exch. 274; 24 L. J. Exch. 289. But as regards leases made under the power conferred on a mortgagor in possession by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, it is apprehended that the omission of all reference to the mortgage would not affect the validity of the lease. The right to grant leases is thereby annexed and made incident to the office and estate of the mortgagor, and as the Act does not state that the rent and benefit of the lessee's covenants shall be reserved in terms to the mortgagee, there seems no reason why a condition to this effect should be implied. Moreover, it is conceived that a reservation of rent, &c. to the mortgagor would, under the operation of sect. 10 of the Act, enure to the benefit of the mortgagee should he subsequently take possession and give notice to the lessee to pay the rent to him.
A lease by a mortgagor under the statutory power will therefore be in the same form as if he were absolute owner, and no separate precedent for such a lease is necessary.

said C. D. in exercise of the power vested in him for this purpose by the said indenture, and of all other powers (if any) him hereunto enabling, hereby appoints and demises unto the said E. F. ALL, &c. (parcels—Habendum to lessee for term, and reservation of rent, supra, p. 54). AND the said E. F. hereby covenants with the said A. B., and also by way of separate covenant with the said C. D., in manner following, that is to say: THAT he the said E. F., his executors, administrators, and assigns (all of whom are hereinafter included in the expression "the lessee"), will pay to the person for the time being entitled to the reversion expectant on this lease (hereinafter called "the reversioner") the rent, &c. (covenant to pay rent and taxes, supra, p. 54): AND ALSO that the lessee will, &c. (covenants to repair and other lessee's covenants, and proviso for re-entry, as in Precedent No. VI., supra, pp. 54 to 56, substituting "the reversioner" for "the lessor"): AND the said C. D. hereby covenants, &c. (covenant for quiet enjoyment, supra, p. 56), without any lawful interruption from or by the said C. D., or from or by the said A. B., or any person rightfully claiming from or under either of them: PROVIDED ALWAYS, &c. AGREEMENT for a BUILDING LEASE for the erection of
ONE HOUSE for NINETY-NINE YEARS.

AGREEMENT FOR BUILDING
LEASE.

AN AGREEMENT, made the — day of —, 18—, BETWEEN A. B., of, &c., of the one part, and C. D., of, &c., of the other part, whereby it is agreed as follows:—

Parties

I. WHEN and so soon as the messuage or dwelling-house mentioned in the third article of this agreement shall have been erected and completed by the said C. D., the said
A. B. will, by a good and sufficient lease, demise unto the said C. D. all that piece or parcel of land (describe it) and Agreement to grant lease.

(d) If the option to purchase is exercised by the lessee after the lessor's death, the purchase-money will go to his (the lessor's) personal representative as part of his personal estate, and not to the heir or devisee of the real estate. Lawes v. Bennett, 1 Cox, 167; Townley v. Bedwell, 14 Ves. 591; Weeding v. Weeding, 1 J. & H. 424. This is inconvenient, and generally contrary to the lessor's intention, and it is therefore important that he should make proper provision by his will not only for enabling the sale to be carried out if the option is exercised, but also for making the purchase-money go to the persons who would otherwise have remained entitled to the reversion.

Purchase-money to be paid by lessee

The option to purchase is incident to the leasehold interest, and passes with it, so that if the lessee dies intestate it is exercisable by the administrator with the consent of the next of kin, and not by the heir. Re Adams

4. THE PARTIES hereto hereby mutually agree to observe the conditions hereinafter expressed, and the landlord further agrees that the tenant paying the rent and observing the said conditions on his part, may quietly hold and enjoy the premises hereby demised without any interruption by the landlord or any person rightfully claiming under him.

5. THE TENANT shall pay the rent hereby reserved at the time and in the manner aforesaid, and shall also pay the [tithe rent-charge and] all rates, taxes, and assessments payable in respect of the said premises during the tenancy, except the land tax and the landlord's property tax [and the tithe rentcharge], and no deduction is to be made from the rent in respect thereof.

6. UPON taking possession of the farm the tenant shall pay or allow to the outgoing tenant according to a valuation for the matters and things in respect whereof such outgoing tenant is entitled to payment or allowance according to the terms of his tenancy (n).

7. THE TENANT shall reside in the farmhouse, and shall not assign or underlet the said premises without the landlord's consent in writing.

8. THE TENANT shall keep the farmhouse and buildings (except the main walls, main timber and roof) in good and tenantable repair, and so leave the same at the end of the tenancy. He shall also from time to time, at the proper season, well and sufficiently lay, cut, repair, and keep repaired, all hedges, mounds, rails, gates, and fences, and open, scour, cleanse, and throw all ditches, watercourses, and drains, and so leave the same at the end of the tenancy.

9. THE TENANT shall preserve the game hereby reserved to the landlord, and (subject to the provisions of the Ground Game Act, 1880) shall not allow any person to shoot or sport over the said lands without the landlord's permission. He shall also sign all notices not to trespass required by the landlord.

follows: The right to shoot, fish, or otherwise sport over the said lands, is reserved to the landlord, and all persons authorized by him, but this reservation shall not prevent the tenant from also shooting, fishing, or sporting thereon.

(n) Sometimes a more elaborate arrangement is necessary. See the special clause as regards valuations between outgoing and incoming tenant in Precedent No. XX., infra.

10. THE TENANT shall not fell, lop, or top, or suffer to be felled, lopped, or topped, any timber or other trees on the said lands without the landlord's consent, except that he may lop pollards usually lopped, but shall preserve all such trees from spoil or damage by cattle or otherwise. He shall also at his own expense, plant, fence, and protect all fruit trees supplied by the landlord.

(If the taking is a Michaelmas one.) THE TENANT shall stack in the barns and rickyards in the last year of the tenancy all the corn, grain, and hay produced on the said premises (the corn and grain to be there thrashed out, and all the hay, straw, chaff, stubble, and fodder to be there consumed by cattle in a husbandlike manner, and the dung, manure, compost, or soil therein arising to be left on the premises), for which purpose the tenant shall have the use of such of the barns and yards as may be necessary until the 1st day of May next after the end of the tenancy: AND in the last year of the tenancy the landlord or his incoming tenant shall be at liberty to enter upon the lands for a wheat season so soon as the crop for that year is cleared off, in order to prepare the same for such season, and may also sow seeds among the Lent or summer corn, which the tenant shall harrow in: AND the tenant shall also leave for the landlord or his incoming tenant all the hay, straw and roots remaining unconsumed, being paid or allowed for the same at a spending price.

15. THE LANDLORD shall during the tenancy keep in good and tenantable repair the main walls, main timbers, and roofs of the farmhouse and buildings upon receiving notice from the tenant that any such repairs are wanted (o). He shall also find sawn timber in the rough for all repairs of fences and other external repairs to be done by the tenant. He shall also keep the farmhouse and buildings insured against loss or damage by fire in a sum sufficient to cover the value thereof, and all money received under such insurance shall be forthwith laid out in rebuilding and reinstating the premises in respect of which the same shall have been received.

16. (If the taking is a Michaelmas one.) THE LANDLORD or the incoming tenant shall take the turnips and fallows at the end of the tenancy, and shall pay the tenant for labour and seeds

(If the taking is a Michaelmas one.) For the labour and seed properly performed and expended upon the turnips and fallows, to be taken to by the landlord or incoming tenant, as before provided :

(Whether the taking be a Lady-day or Michaelmas one.) For the proportionate value of such of the tillages and manurings done during the last two years of the tenancy as shall remain unexpended and for the benefit of the landlord or the incoming tenant (p) :

For the unconsumed hay, straw, and roots at a spending price.

18. If any rent hereby reserved shall be in arrear for forty days, whether payment thereof shall have been legally demanded or not, or if there shall be any breach of any of the conditions herein contained and on the tenant's part to be observed or performed, or if the tenant shall become bankrupt, then and in either of such cases the landlord may re-enter and determine the tenancy without giving any notice to quit.

Conditions of re-entry.

19. At the end of the tenancy an account shall be taken between landlord and tenant as follows : 1st, a valuation shall be made of the several matters and things which are hereinbefore agreed to be paid or allowed for by the landlord or his incoming tenant, and the amount of such valuation shall be debited to the landlord ; and 2ndly, the valuers shall determine whether any and (if so) what sum of money ought to be paid or allowed by the tenant to the landlord for any breach by the tenant of the terms and conditions of the tenancy, or in respect of the con-

No. XXI.

OF A FARM
FOR A TERM.

LEASE (r) of a FARM for twenty-one YEARS (adapted to a Lady-day or Michaelmas taking).

Parties.

THIS INDENTURE, made the — day of —, 18—, BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (lessor), of the one part, and C. D., of, &c. (lessee), of the other part, WITNESSETH and declares as follows:—

Lease of farm for twenty-one years.

1. In consideration of the rent and tenant's covenants hereinafter reserved and contained, The said A. B. (hereinafter called "the landlord") hereby demises unto the said C. D. (hereinafter called "the tenant"), THE farm and lands situate in, &c., the particulars whereof are set forth in the schedule hereunder written: To HOLD the same unto the tenant from the — day of —, for and during the term of twenty-one years thence next ensuing, YIELDING and paying therefor the yearly rent of £— by equal half-yearly payments on the — day of —, and the — day of —, in every year, the first payment to be

FOR A TERM.

2 and 3. (Exceptions and reservations as in Precedent No. XIX.)

4. THE TENANT hereby covenants with the landlord to pay the rent hereby reserved at the times and in manner aforesaid, and also to observe all the provisions contained in these presents which are or ought to be observed and performed on his part (which provisions are hereinafter referred to as "the tenant's covenants:") AND the landlord hereby covenants with the tenant to observe and perform all the provisions contained in these presents which are or ought to be observed and performed on his part; AND ALSO that the tenant paying the rent hereby reserved, and observing and performing the tenant's covenants, shall and may quietly hold and enjoy the premises hereby demised without any interruption from or by the landlord or any person rightfully claiming from or under him.

Mutual covenants by tenant and landlord to observe conditions of lease, and by landlord for quiet enjoyment by tenant.

5. THE TENANT shall pay (in addition to the rent hereby reserved) the tithe rent-charge, and all rates, taxes, and assessments whatsoever which shall, during the tenancy, be payable in respect of the demised premises, except the land tax and landlord's property tax.

Covenants by tenant. To pay rent, rates, and taxes.

6. THE TENANT shall, at all times during the said term, reside in the farmhouse, and he shall not assign or underlet the premises hereby demised, or any part thereof, without the consent in writing of the landlord [unless such consent shall be unreasonably withheld].

Not to assign without license and to reside in farmhouse.

7. THE TENANT shall keep the farmhouse and buildings hereby demised in good and substantial repair, and so leave the same at the end of the tenancy (s). [In particular he shall paint, once in every five years of the said term, all the outside wood and ironwork of the said farmhouse and buildings which have been usually painted, and once in every seven years the inside of the said house and buildings with two coats in oil of the best quality.] THE TENANT shall also from time to time at the proper season well and sufficiently lay out, repair, and keep repaired all hedges, gates and fences, and open, scour, cleanse and throw all ditches, watercourses and drains, and so leave the same at the end of the tenancy.

8. THE TENANT shall at all times during the said term keep the farmhouse and farm buildings insured against loss or damage by fire, in the joint names of the landlord and tenant, in the — insurance office, or in some other insurance office approved of by the landlord, in a sum of money sufficient to cover the value of the said house and buildings, and shall for that purpose pay all premiums and sums of money payable in respect of such insurance, and shall from time to time, when required, produce to the landlord or his agent the policy of such insurance and the receipt for every such premium and sum of money, and all moneys which shall be received under or by virtue of any such insurance shall be forthwith laid out and applied in the rebuilding or reinstating of the premises, in respect of which the same shall be paid, and if the same shall be insufficient for that purpose, the deficiency shall be paid by the tenant out of his own money (t).

9 to 13. (Covenant to preserve game, to preserve trees, to prevent new footpaths, &c., not to mow more than once a year, not to break up pasture, not to take two white crops in succession, &c., and to cultivate properly, to consume hay, &c., on farm, as in Precedent No. XIX., clauses 9 to 13, supra, pp. 92, 93.)

To pay 5 per cent. on money expended in

OF A FARM
FOR A TERM.

LEASE of a FARM for TWENTY-ONE YEARS (another form), leaving the tenant unrestricted as to the mode of cultivation until the last four years of the term, or until notice from landlord (y).

THIS INDENTURE, &c. (same as last Precedent down to end of clause 7, then covenants to preserve game, if desired, and not to fell trees, and to preserve footpaths, as in Precedent No. XIX., clauses 9 to 11, suprà, pp. 92, 93, and then proceed as follows).

During last four years tenant to adopt four-course system
of husbandry.

12. DURING the last four years of the said term the tenant shall bring the arable lands into the four-course system of husbandry practised in Norfolk, so that in the last year of the term there shall be as nearly as the sizes of the fields will admit, one-fourth in winter corn or pulse, upon olland or grass of one year's lying ; one-fourth in a root crop, of which not more than one-fourth shall be mangold-wurzel, and not more than one-tenth in white turnips ; one-fourth part in barley or other spring corn ; and the remaining one-fourth in olland or grass of one year's lying ; and he shall not suffer any hemp, mustard, cole-seed, or clover trefoil, or other artificial grass to stand or grow for a crop of seed in the last four years of the term.

(Or)

DURING the last four [or five] years of the said term the tenant shall adopt the system of husbandry next hereafter described (that is to say,) (describe the system of husbandry to be adopted).

(y) This Precedent is on the principle of the form of lease known as Lord Leicester's Lease.

13. THE landlord may at any time give notice in writing to the tenant requiring him at the expiration of four [or five] years from the date of such notice to adopt the system of husbandry described in clause 11, and in such case the tenant shall adopt the same accordingly.

OF A FARM
FOR A TERM.

Landlord may by notice require tenant to adopt four-course system.

14. DURING the last four [or five] years of the said term, or previously thereto if the system of husbandry described in clause 11 shall have become obligatory on the tenant by notice as aforesaid, the tenant shall be bound to observe the following conditions also (that is to say),

Further conditions to be observed during last four years, &c.

(1.) He shall consume on the farm all hay, straw, chaff, greencrops, turnips, and mangold-wurzel (except that grown in the last year of the said term), and spread the manure over the lands in a husbandlike manner.

Tenant to consume hay, &c., on farm.

(2.) He shall not mow any of the meadow or pasture land more than once in the year, nor two years in succession.

Not to mow more than once, nor two years in succession.

(3.) He shall cut and scour fences and ditches as required by the lessor or his agent, open, drain and cleanse all watercourses and drains, and keep out-falls of water clear, level and spread ant and mole hills, mow thistles, rushes, and weeds before seeding time, and not suffer swine, unless well ringed, to be upon the meadow land.

To cut fences, &c.

(Add any other conditions thought necessary.)

9. THE following footage rents shall be paid by the lessees to the lessor for and in respect of all coal and cannel gotten from or out of the said demised mines and premises over and above the quantity which the lessees are hereinbefore authorized to work and get in respect of the said certain yearly rent of £—— (that is to say); The rent of £—— for every Cheshire acre of one foot in thickness (meaning by the term “Cheshire acre” an acre reckoned after the accustomed measure of 8 yards to the perch or pole), and so in proportion for a greater or less quantity than an acre, and for a greater or less thickness than one foot, of coal and cannel gotten from or out of the mines called the —— Mine and the —— Mine respectively, or either of them; the rent or sum of £—— for every Cheshire acre of one foot in thickness, and so in proportion as aforesaid, of coal and cannel gotten from or out of the mines called the —— Mine and the —— Mine respectively, or either of them; and the rent or sum of £—— for every Cheshire acre of one foot in thickness, and so in proportion as aforesaid, of coal and cannel gotten from or out of the other mines hereby demised or any of them. The said footage rents to be paid by half-yearly payments on the —— day of —— and the —— day of —— in each year for and in respect of the coal and cannel gotten during the then preceding half-year. PROVIDED ALWAYS that if in any year of the said term the lessees shall not work and get from or out of the said demised mines and premises such a quantity of coal or cannel as at the rates above mentioned would produce or yield footage rents equal in amount to the said certain rent of £——, then, and as often as the same shall happen, the lessees may, during the next ten years of the said term, or any of them, but not afterwards, work and get from or out of the said demised mines and premises such quantity of coal and cannel as shall be required to make up such deficiency without paying any rent for the same other than the said certain rent.

lessees to the lessor for or in respect of every Cheshire acre of land belonging to the lessor, the surface whereof shall be occupied or used by the lessees for any of the purposes of this demise, and so in proportion for any less quantity than an acre, the said surface rent to be paid by equal half-yearly payments on the same days as the said certain rent of £—— is hereinbefore made payable, and the first half-yearly payment thereof to be made on such of the said days as shall happen next after such occupation or use shall commence, and the last half-yearly payment thereof to be made on such of the said days as shall happen next after such occupation or use shall have ceased, and the land shall have been restored and rendered fit for cultivation again, and in case any difference of opinion shall arise as to what ought to be considered the occupation or use of the surface of any land for the purpose aforesaid, or as to the day on which such occupation or use shall have commenced, or as to the amount of rent payable under the reservation aforesaid, the matter in difference shall be settled by arbitration :
PROVIDED ALWAYS that no such rent shall be paid or demanded in respect of any spoil banks or roads or ways now in existence and not used by the lessees.

THE LESSEES' COVENANTS.

12. THE LESSEES hereby jointly and severally covenant with Covenants by the lessor to pay the rents reserved by this lease at the times lessee to pay

To pay rates
and taxes.

13. IN addition to the rents hereby reserved, the lessees shall pay and discharge all taxes, rates, assessments, and impositions whatsoever which shall from time to time be charged, assessed, or imposed upon the said demised premises or any part thereof, or upon the owner or occupiers thereof by authority of parliament or otherwise, except the landlord's property tax.

To work without intermission, &c.

14. THE LESSEES shall, during the continuance of this demise, work and get the mines hereby demised in a skilful and workmanlike manner, according to the most approved practice of mining in the district, and as to each and every of the mines when opened without voluntary intermission, and shall keep all the pits and shafts, machinery and works belonging to and used in connection with the said mines in good repair, working order and condition.

To fence off pits, &c.

15. THE LESSEES shall and at all times during the continuance of this demise, effectually fence off and keep fenced off from the adjoining lands with good and substantial rails and posts all the pits, shafts, and banking room, roads, railways, canals, reservoirs, clay pits, and other places and conveniences made or used for working and carrying on the mines hereby demised, and maintain sufficient roads, gates, stiles, and fences for the convenient occupation of such lands, and for the passing and re-passing by the lessor and his tenants, agents, and servants, and others on foot, and with horses, carts, carriages, and cattle to and from the said lands, for all purposes whatsoever.

Not to work

20. THE LESSEES shall, at the expiration or sooner determination of the term, deliver up to the lessor in good repair, order, and working condition, all buildings and erections of brick, stone, or slate standing and being on the lands, and all pits, shafts, water-gates, airgates, and levels belonging to the said mines, except pits, shafts, or other works which shall have been abandoned or disused in the ordinary and fair course of working of the said mines, and all such other works and things belonging to the said mines as are not in the nature of tenants' or trade fixtures removable by the lessees, and also all such articles and things (if any) as the lessor shall elect to purchase under the power hereinafter given to him in that behalf.

21. THE LESSOR and his agents, servants, and workmen shall be at liberty at all reasonable times during the said term to descend any pits or shafts of the lessees into the mines hereby demised for the purpose of examining the condition thereof, and of the works belonging thereto: AND the lessees with proper persons employed by them and acquainted with the workings of the said mines shall effectually assist the lessor or other the persons aforesaid in descending into the said mines, and in returning to the surface, and shall allow him or them the use of all necessary and proper machinery and plant for that purpose.

22. THE LESSEES shall not assign or underlet the mines and premises hereby demised, or any part thereof, to any person or persons whomsoever, without the consent in writing of the lessor for that purpose first had and obtained, unless such consent shall be unreasonably withheld, and if any question shall arise as to whether the consent is or is not unreasonably withheld the same shall be settled by arbitration (d).

29. If any dispute or difference shall arise between the lessor and the lessees concerning the value of the articles and things which the lessor shall elect to take or retain as aforesaid, or the amount to be paid by the lessor in respect thereof, or touching or concerning any other matter or thing which it is hereby provided shall be settled by arbitration, or touching any clause, matter, or thing whatsoever herein contained, or the operation or construction thereof, or any matter or thing in any way connected with these presents, or the rights, duties, or liabilities of either party under or in connection with these presents, then and in every such case the dispute or difference shall be referred to two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party in difference, and in case of their disagreement then to an umpire, to be chosen by the arbitrators before entering on the consideration of the matters referred to them; and the arbitrators or their umpire shall have power to determine by whom the costs of the arbitration ought to be borne: AND every such reference shall be deemed an arbitration within the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, and this submission to reference may be made a rule of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice at the instance of either party (a).

Arbitration
clause.

(a) An arbitration clause does not altogether oust the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts of law (Cooke v. Cooke, L. R. 4 Eq. 77; Witt v. Corcoran, 8 Ch. 476, n.); but it is provided by sect. 11 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, that if an action is brought in respect of any matter agreed to be referred, the Court may stay the action, upon being satisfied that no sufficient reason exists why the matter cannot and ought not to be referred to arbitration according to the agreement, and this power will in general be acted on. See Willesford v. Watson, L. R. 14 Eq. 572; Russell v. Russell, 14 Ch. D. 471.

When there is an arbitration clause, and an action is brought in respect of matter agreed to be referred, Court may stay proceedings.

A general agreement to refer to arbitration cannot be revoked (Piercy v. Young, 14 Ch. D. 200), but either party may, after appointing an arbitrator, revoke that appointment, unless the submission to arbitration contains an agreement that the submission shall be made a rule of Court. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 39; Rouse v. Meyer, L. R. 6 C. P. 212. Where one of the parties failed to appoint an arbitrator, and the other, by virtue of sect. 13 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, appointed his arbitrator to act as sole arbitrator, it was held that the authority of such arbitrator might be revoked by either party. Fraser v. Ehrensperger, 12 Q. B. D. 310.

Authority of arbitrator revocable, unless agreement for submission provides that it shall be made a rule of Court.

Lease of mines.

1. IN consideration of the rents and lessees' covenants hereinafter reserved and contained, the said A. B. (hereinafter called "the lessor") hereby demises [or in exercise, &c., hereby appoints and demises] unto the parties hereto of the second part (hereinafter called "the lessees"), ALL those mines, beds, veins, and seams of coal, ironstone, and fireclay, as well opened as unopened, lying, or being in or under the lands situate in the parish of —, in the county of Northumberland, known as —, which lands are delineated in the map or plan annexed to these presents, and are therein distinguished by a line of red colour drawn round the outer boundary thereof: TOGETHER with the rights, &c. (as in last Precedent, Art. 1 to the end).

(f) This Precedent might also be used for a lease of mines in any other county where the practice of mining is similar.
For variations where the lease is under a power, &c., see Precedent No. VII., supra, p. 57.

LESSEES' RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES.

OF COAL AND IRON MINES IN NORTHUMBER-
LAND.

2. It shall be lawful for the lessees at all times during the said term to work the mines hereby demised, and also to work from or through the said mines by outstroke or instroke any other mines of coal, ironstone, or fireclay belonging to or held by the lessees, and also to carry over the surface of the lands under which the mines hereby demised lie, the produce of the mines hereby demised and of such other mines as aforesaid, and to exercise and enjoy, in and upon and under the said lands, all easements, rights, and privileges necessary or convenient for the purposes aforesaid, and in particular to do all or any of the following things (that is to say)—

Liberty to work mines demised, and also by way of outstroke adjoining mines.

To sink, drive, make, erect, set up, and construct in, upon, over, or under the said lands, pits, shafts, outstrokes, instrokes, drifts, levels, watercourses, aircourses, engines, machinery, houses for the residence of workmen and others employed in the said mines, sheds, furnaces, kilns, ovens, railroads, tram roads, and other roads, erections, and other works, and to use all works of the above description now existing in connection with the said mines :

To sink pits,
&c.

To appropriate the water upon or within the said lands, and to collect the same in ponds and reservoirs, or otherwise, but so that the lessees shall not in exercising this privilege foul, impregnate, or otherwise deteriorate the springs or streams of water on the said lands, so as to render them useless or unprofitable :

To appropriate water.

To use and appropriate a sufficient part of the said lands for depositing and heaping thereon the coal, ironstone, and fireclay to be raised and gotten from the said mines hereby demised, and such other adjoining mines as aforesaid, and all the earth, soil, and other substances brought to the surface in or about the working of the same :

To use land for depositing minerals and spoil.

To convert coal into coke and patent fuel, to calcine ironstone, and manufacture fireclay into bricks and other articles, whether for colliery purposes, or for sale, or otherwise :

Barrier to be left.

Drifts how to be made.

3. PROVIDED ALWAYS that so much of every bed, vein, and seam of coal, ironstone, and fireclay hereby demised shall remain unworked as will leave within the limits of this demise a barrier of — yards in breadth or thickness separating the said mines hereby demised from the adjoining mines, and all outstroke and instroke drifts made through the said barrier for the purpose of working adjoining mines as aforesaid shall be of such size and in such situations as shall have been previously approved of by the lessor or his agent, and all such drifts shall be so made as to be capable of being easily and effectually closed by framedams when the use thereof has ceased.

Surface operations, where to be carried on.

4. PROVIDED ALSO that all surface operations shall be carried on upon such part only of the said lands as shall be selected for that purpose in manner following (that is to say): WHENEVER the lessees shall require to occupy or use any land for surface operations, they shall give a notice in writing to the lessor or his agent specifying the site proposed for such surface operations. If the lessor or his agent objects to the site so proposed, he shall, within fourteen days after receiving such notice, himself select a site, and notify the same in writing to the lessees, and the lessees shall be at liberty at any time within fourteen days after the selection of such site shall have been made and notified to them as aforesaid, but not afterwards, to object to the same as being unsuitable or inconvenient for the purpose for which the same is required, and to notify such objection in writing to the lessor or his agent: AND in case of such objection being made and notified as aforesaid, the question whether the site is suitable and convenient or not shall be referred to arbitration under the provision in that behalf hereinafter contained.

Plan and sanitary arrangements of cottages to be approved by lessor.

5. PROVIDED ALSO that no houses for residence shall be erected by the lessees under the liberty and power above granted for that purpose until the plan, accommodation, and sanitary arrangements of such houses shall have been submitted to the lessor and approved of by him; and in case a difference of opinion on any of such points shall arise between the lessor and the lessees the same shall be referred to arbitration under the provision in that behalf hereinafter contained. AND no houses shall be used except for the purpose of residence of agents, miners, and workmen employed in or about the said mines and works, and in particular no trade of any sort shall be carried on in any such houses or any of them.

equal in amount to the said certain rent: But the said certain rent shall always be paid, whether such quantity shall in fact be gotten or not.

9. THE LESSEES shall pay to the lessor the rent of — for every ton of screened coals, and — for every ton of small coals (and so in proportion for any less quantity) which shall be raised or gotten from or out of the said mines and premises in any year of the said term over and above the quantity which the lessees are hereinbefore authorised to work and get in respect of the said certain rent. PROVIDED ALWAYS that if in any year the lessees shall not raise and get from or out of the said mines such a quantity of coal as at the above-mentioned rates would produce for that year the amount of the certain rent hereby reserved, then and in every such case the lessees may in any subsequent year or years [or during the next — years of the said term but not afterwards] raise and get from or out of the said mines and premises such a quantity of coal as shall be required to make up the deficiency without paying any rent for the same other than the said certain rent: But the overworkings of any preceding year or years shall not come in aid of or be applied to make good the deficiency or short workings in any subsequent year or years.

10. THE LESSEES shall pay to the lessor the rent of — for every ton of ironstone, and the rent of — for every ton of fireclay which shall be raised from the said mines and premises.

11. THE LESSEES shall pay to the lessor an outstroke rent of — for every ton of coal, ironstone, or fireclay, the produce of any mines not hereby demised, which shall be brought to the surface through or by means of the mines hereby demised, and the pits or shafts thereof under the authority of these presents (g).

12. THE LESSEES shall pay to the lessor a wayleave rent of — for every ton of coal, ironstone, or fireclay, the produce of any mines not hereby demised, which shall be led or carried over the surface of the said lands or any part thereof under the authority of these presents, not being coal, ironstone, or fireclay, subject to the payment of outstroke rent under the last preceding article (g).

13. THE rents above reserved (other than the said certain rent)

rent.

9. For the purpose of the clause next hereinafter contained, the term hereby granted shall be divided into successive periods of three years each, the first period to be deemed to have commenced with the commencement of this lease, and to end at the expiration of three years from such commencement, the second period to commence at the end of the first period, and to end at the expiration of three years from its own commencement, and every subsequent period to commence at the end of the period immediately preceding it, and to end at the expiration of three years from its own commencement.

Division of term into averaging periods.

10. IF (a) in any triennial period it shall happen that the quantity of minerals worked by the lessees in any one year or two years of that period shall be more than sufficient to produce at the aforesaid rates of galeage the full rent of £— for that year, or for each of those years, but the quantity worked in the other years or year of the same period shall be insufficient for that purpose, then and in every such case the overworkings of that one year, or those two years, shall be set off against and go in aid of the short workings of the other year or years of the same period, and the accounts shall be adjusted at the end of every quarter of a year on that footing, it being the intent and meaning of the parties hereto that the total sum payable by the lessees for galeage rents during each triennial period shall be as follows (name'y) :—If the galeages which would have been payable under article 7 of these presents, if article 8 had been omitted herefrom, shall exceed £——, then the amount of those galeages, and no more; but if the same shall be less than £——, then the sum of £——.

rent.

11. THE LESSEES shall pay to the lessor a wayleave rent of 1*d.* for every customary ton comprising 2,520 pounds of coal, culm, ironstone, blackband, fireclay, and other substances, the produce of any mines not hereby demised which shall be brought to the surface through the mines hereby demised, and the pits and shafts thereof, under the powers in that behalf hereinbefore contained.

Exemptions
from galeage.

12. THE coal and culm consumed at any stationary engine which may be employed for working the minerals hereby demised, or which shall be used at the ventilating furnaces, or otherwise consumed in raising the said minerals, shall be exempt from galeage; but if the lessees shall work any other minerals in conjunction with the demised minerals, the coal and culm used for the before-mentioned purposes shall be fairly apportioned to each property according to the quantity of minerals which may have been respectively worked therefrom.

13. ALL building stone used in and for the purposes of the mines hereby demised, and the works thereof, shall be exempted from galeage.

Surface rent.

14. THE LESSEES shall (in addition to the tenant's compensation for damage to crops) pay to the lessor a yearly rent of £—— for every acre of land the surface whereof shall be occupied or used by the lessees for any of the purposes of this demise, and so in proportion for any less quantity than an acre, the said surface rent to be paid by equal quarterly payments on the same days as the galeage rents are hereinbefore made payable, and the first quarterly payment thereof to be made on such of the said days as shall happen next after such occupation or use shall commence, and the last quarterly payment thereof to be made on such of the said days as shall happen next after such occupation or use shall have ceased: AND in case any difference of opinion shall arise as to what ought to be considered the occupation or use of the surface of any land for the purpose aforesaid, or as to the day on which such occupation or use shall

21. THE LESSEES shall erect and maintain, at the entrance of each adit, pit, shaft, quarry, or working, or at some convenient place or places upon or as nearly adjacent to the demised premises as may be practicable, good and sufficient and properly constructed weighing machines, at which the whole of the minerals that may be worked, raised, and brought to bank out of the mines hereby demised, as well as any minerals brought from other mines by virtue of the power in that behalf hereinbefore granted, shall be accurately weighed, and daily accounts thereof kept in books suitable for the purpose.

To allow lessor to test same.

22. THE LESSOR or his authorized agent shall be at liberty (but giving the lessees as little inconvenience as possible) to inspect the machines and weights which may be used for weighing the minerals worked out of or conveyed from, through, over, or across the mines hereby demised, and to adopt such methods as may be deemed necessary for testing their accuracy.

Books and accounts to be accessible.

23. THE weighing machine books, and colliers' and quarrymen's accounts, recording the quantities of minerals worked, raised, or carried away from the premises, shall be open at all times during working hours to the inspection of the lessor or his agent, who shall be at liberty to make extracts therefrom or take copies of the same.

To deliver quarterly accounts to lessor.

24. THE LESSEES shall deliver to the lessor or his agent within fourteen days from each of the quarterly days hereinbefore appointed for payment of rent a perfect abstract from the books of account for the preceding three months, and shall verify the same, if required, by the statutory declaration of the clerk or book-keeper, and also of the actual manager of the lessees so far as his knowledge extends.

Lessor may employ a check clerk.

25. THE LESSOR, if he desires to do so, shall be at liberty to employ a check clerk to see all the minerals worked from the mines hereby demised or from other mines and subject to out-stroke or wayleave rent brought out, and to keep an account thereof, and to check the returns and accounts of the lessees.

3. THE LESSEE shall on the —— day of —— in every year pay to the lessor for or in respect of all bricks, draining tiles, and other ware manufactured during the preceding year on the said land over and above the number or quantity which the lessee is hereinbefore authorized to manufacture in respect of the said certain rent, the following rents or royalties, that is to say, a rent or royalty of two shillings sterling for each and every quantity of one thousand bricks or draining tiles, and a rent or royalty equivalent in amount to the sum of one shilling and four pence for every twenty shillings in value thereof at the kiln of any article or ware other than bricks or draining tiles manufactured as aforesaid: PROVIDED ALWAYS that if in any one year the lessee shall manufacture on the said land less than the number of bricks, tiles, or other articles which he is hereinbefore authorized to manufacture in respect of the said certain rent, then and in every such case he may in any subsequent year or years of the said term manufacture so many bricks, tiles, or other articles as will make up the deficiency without paying any royalty or rent for the same beyond the certain rent, But the certain rent shall be always paid whatever may be the number of bricks manufactured.

4. THE LESSEE hereby covenants with the lessor to pay the said rents at the times and in manner aforesaid, and also to observe and perform all the provisions hereinafter contained, which are or ought on his part to be observed and performed.

5. (Covenant to pay rates and taxes, supra, p. 110.)

6. THE LESSEE shall not use the land hereby demised for any other purpose than as a brickfield, and he shall manufacture all the clay and other materials gotten therefrom into bricks, tiles, or other ware on the said land and not elsewhere. All the bricks and draining tiles shall be of the common and ordinary size.

7. For the purpose of ascertaining the amount of rent payable for the time being as aforesaid, the lessee shall keep proper and correct books of account showing the number of bricks, tiles, and other articles manufactured on the said land, and shall from time to time deliver to the lessor or his agent a correct abstract of the said books of account for the then preceding year, and shall verify the same by the statutory declaration of himself or his foreman if required, and shall permit the lessor and his agent at all reasonable times to inspect the said books of account, and to take extracts therefrom.

TRUSTEES (a).

It is proposed in this Dissertation to consider—I. The nature of a trust and the different kinds of trusts. II. The transmission of powers and trusts. III. The powers and duties of trustees for sale. IV. Purchases by a trustee from himself or from his cestui que trust. V. The powers and duties of trustees as regards the investment of trust moneys, and the management of the trust property. VI. Disclaimer. VII. Appointments of new trustees, and the powers conferred by statute for this purpose. VIII. The provisions of the Trustee Relief Acts. IX. Miscellaneous points relating to Trustees.

Division of
subject.

I. The nature of a trust and the different kinds of trusts.

A trust may be defined as an obligation attached to the ownership of real or personal property or of some estate in, or power over, real or personal property, binding the person in whom such property, estate, or power is vested, to hold or exercise it for the benefit of some other person or persons, and which obligation is enforceable by means of the equitable jurisdiction of the Court.

a trust.

A trust may be a bare trust, or an active trust. A bare trust is where the instrument imposes on the trustee no duty beyond that implied by law from the bare relation of trustee and cestui que trust, e. g., where Bare trust.

(a) Settlements form the next class of instruments of which precedents are given in this collection. As the objects of a settlement usually require the intervention of trustees, and as marriage is the ordinary occasion of a settlement, two introductory dissertations, the one on the powers, estates, duties, and responsibilities of trustees, and the other on the law affecting the relation of husband and wife and their interests in each other's property, are here inserted.

land is vested in A. in trust for B., the simple duty of A. being to convey the land to B., or according to his direction, whenever required so to do, and in the meantime to permit him to receive the rents and profits.

Active trust.

An active trust is where the instrument imposes on the trustee some special duty beyond the simple obligation above referred to, e. g., a trust to sell, or to manage, or to receive the rents and apply them in a particular manner.

How an active trust may become a bare trust.

A trust originally active may become a bare trust, either by reason of all the special duties having been performed, or by reason of the obligation to perform such duties having been put an end to by the act of all the persons beneficially interested in their performance, which act is usually called an election. Thus, if land is given to a trustee in trust to apply the rents during the minority of A. for his maintenance, and on his attaining twenty-one in trust for A. in fee simple, the trust becomes a bare trust so soon as A. attains twenty-one. Again, if land is vested in a trustee in trust to sell and divide the proceeds between a number of persons, all of whom, being sui juris, join in requesting him not to sell but to convey the land to them as real estate, the trust from the date of such request becomes a bare trust.

Election.

Bare trustee, as the term is used in recent Acts.

The foregoing description of a bare trust naturally leads up to a definition of the term "bare trustee," as used in sect. 6 of the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, and in sect. 48 of the Land Transfer Act, 1875 (which last-mentioned section is, however, repealed as regards any trustee dying after the 31st December, 1881 (b)). It is submitted that a bare trustee may for the purposes of these Acts be defined as "a trustee, who has no duties to perform beyond the simple obligation to convey the land to or according to the direction of his cestui que trust, whenever required so to do, and in the meantime to permit him to receive the rents and profits" (c). In accordance with the above definition, (b) Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 30.

(c) Messrs. Dart and Barber Dart, V. & P. p. 517) conclude that the term will be held to mean "a trustee to whose office no duties were originally attached, or who,

it was held in a recent case that a married woman, being a devisee in trust for sale under a will, was, after a sale by the Court in an administration action, a bare trustee for the purchaser (d).

Trusts may be also divided into express trusts, and implied, or constructive trusts, and this distinction is rendered important by sect. 25 of the Statute of Limitations, 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, which excepts express trusts from the operation of the general enactment.

Express and constructive trusts.

An express trust has been defined to be a trust expressly declared by a deed, will, or other written instrument (e), and this definition seems correct and exhaustive as applied to land. But an express trust may be created of chattels or personal property without any writing, as by a deposit of them with a factor or agent for a particular purpose (f).

What is an express trust.

An implied or constructive trust is one arising by implication or construction of law from certain circumstances; as, where land is purchased by and conveyed to A., but with money belonging to B., A. is treated as a trustee for B. unless there is such a relation between the parties as will lead to the presumption that a gift although such duties were originally attached to his office, would, on the requisition of his cestuis que trust, be compellable in equity to convey the estate to them, or by their direction, and has been requested by them so to do." This definition has been approved by V.-C. Hall, with the omission of the words in italics. Christie v. Ovington, L. R. 1 Ch. D. 279.

It is submitted that Messrs. Dart and Barber's definition is not quite correct, either with or without the words in italics proposed to be omitted by the Vice-Chancellor.

Suppose land to be vested in A. in fee simple in trust to sell and divide the proceeds between B. and C., it is clear that B. and C. being sui juris might require A. to convey the land to them, and it is apprehended that until such requisition is made he is not a bare trustee. On the other hand, if land is vested in A. in fee simple in trust for B.

in fee simple, there can be no doubt that A. is a bare trustee, even though he has not been requested to convey the legal estate to B. It is submitted that Messrs. Dart and Barber's definition should run thus, "A trustee who has no duties attached to his office which remain to be performed, and who would on the requisition of his cestuis que trust be compellable in equity to convey the legal estate to them, or according to their direction." This is very similar to the definition in the text. See Morgan v. Swansea Urban Authority, L. R. 9 Ch. D. 582, in which Jessel, M. R., seemed to think that a bare trustee meant a trustee without any beneficial interest; but this is not the ordinary acceptance of the term among conveyancers.

was intended by B. to A. Again, if land is conveyed to a trustee, upon trusts which partly fail or do not exhaust the whole legal interests conveyed, there will, as a general rule, be an implied trust to the extent of the undisposed-of interest for the grantor, which trust is usually called a resulting trust. Again, after a contract for sale of land, the vendor is deemed a trustee for the purchaser subject to the payment of the purchase-money. So also it is a rule that a trustee cannot derive any personal advantage from the administration of the trust property, and consequently, if a trustee renews a lease in his own name, he will be deemed to hold the new lease for the benefit of his cestui que trust.

a trust may be enforced.

A trust may be enforced against the person in whom it was originally reposed, and all persons deriving title to the property under him, whether by descent, representation, conveyance, or devise, other than purchasers for valuable consideration without notice of the trust.

On death or disclaimer of trustee appointed by will, legal estate descends to heir, subject to trust.

If a testator leaves property upon trust, and the trustee dies in his lifetime or disclaims, the legal estate will devolve on the heir-at-law, who will take it subject to the trust.

II. The transmission of powers and trusts.

Power when exercisable
by survivors.

A power, properly so called, i.e., an authority enabling the donees to revoke or alter interests existing in default of and until its exercise, must be strictly followed, and can only be exercised by the persons named or indicated for that purpose by the instrument creating it. Thus a power of this kind given to several persons by name and their heirs cannot be exercised by the survivors, and this is so even when the persons so named are trustees(g), except in cases coming within sect. 38 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881. But a power given to persons by some general description, as "my trustees," and not by their names, may (independently of the Act) be exercised by the survivors, or other the persons answering the description, so long as the plural number remains (h). And it is now provided by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 38, with respect to executorships and trusts created after the 31st December, 1881, that where a power or trust is given to or vested in two or more executors or trustees jointly, then, unless the contrary is expressed, the same may be exercised or performed by the survivors or survivor of them for the time being. In a case where a testator gave a power to his "said trustees," and the survivor of them, and one disclaimed, it was held that the sole acting trustee could exercise it (i).

A trust, as distinguished from a mere power, follows the estate, and is exercisable by the persons or person on whom the estate devolves by law. Thus, if land is devised to two or more persons in trust to sell (k), or in trust that they or their heirs and assigns shall sell, the trust will be exercisable by the survivors or survivor, and by the heir of the survivor, if he has died before the 1st January, 1882, intestate as to trust estates (l). And in a case where the devise was to the trustees, their respective heirs and assigns, upon trust that they, their respective heirs and assigns, should sell, the word "respective" was rejected, and it was held that the survivor might perform the trust (m).

Trust follows the estate.

It does not follow that a trustee by vesting the trust property in another by his own act can delegate to that other the duty of executing the trust. On the contrary, it is clear that he cannot do so, by act inter vivos (n), except under a power of appointing new trustees contained in the trust instrument, or the statutory power for that purpose. Whether, before the recent Act, he could do so by will, has been the subject of several cases.

Trustees cannot delegate the trust by act inter vivos except under power to appoint new trustees.

In Cooke v. Crawford (o), there was a gift to trustees in trust that they and the survivor of them and the heirs of such survivor should sell, and it was held that the last surviving trustee was not authorized to devise the trust estate, and consequently that his devisee could not sell. In Titley v. Wolstenholme (p), the trust was made exercisable by the survivor of the trustees, his heirs and assigns, and it was held in this case that the devisee could execute the trust. Since these decisions it has generally been considered that the right of the devisee to succeed to the trusteeship depends on whether "assigns" are mentioned in the trust instrument as among the persons by whom the trust is exercisable (q); and in several cases where the word "assigns" was omitted, the Court has declined to compel a purchaser to accept a title from the devisee. It has also been held that where in the absence of the word "assigns" a trustee devises the trust estate, neither the devisee, nor the heir or personal representative, can execute the trust; the former because not within the terms of the trust, and the latter because he has not the legal estate (r).

Decision of Jessel, M.R., in favour of devisee notwithstanding absence of word
"assigns."

It must be borne in mind that in all the cases above referred to, the question arose between vendor and purchaser, and, according to the then practice of the Court, it was a sufficient reason for deciding in favour of a purchaser that the title was open to reasonable doubt. In a recent case (s) where real estate was devised to trustees and their heirs (omitting "assigns") in trust to sell, Jessel, M.R., after noticing that according to the altered practice he was bound to decide the question between vendor and purchaser, arrived at the conclusion that Cooke v. Crawford was not confirmed by any of

It is difficult to understand the ground of these decisions. If the founder of the trust intended that the heir or legal personal representative should succeed to the trusteeship, and that the trustees should not be allowed to defeat this intention by a devise, the natural conclusion would be that the irregularity might have been cured by the devisee conveying the legal estate so as to vest it in the person on whom it ought to have been allowed to devolve, or by his joining with that person in conveying it to a purchaser.

the subsequent cases, and that it was irreconcilable with and impliedly overruled by Titley v. Wolstenholme; and he decided in favour of the devisee on the broad ground that the person who takes the estate should be the person to execute the trust, and that inasmuch as the founder of the trust could not not have reposed personal confidence in the trustee's unascertained heir any more than in his unascertained devisee, there was no reason why the latter should not be allowed to succeed to the trusteeship as well as the former. But in a still more recent case^(t), the Lords Justices of Appeal intimated an opinion, though it was not necessary to decide the point, that Cooke v. Crawford was still a binding authority, so that, in cases not within the recent Act, the right of the devisee to execute a trust, which by the terms of the instrument is not made exercisable by assigns, must be considered as still doubtful.

M. R.'s decision

Lords Justices.

Question still doubtful.

By the Conveyancing Act, 1881, section 30, it is provided, as regards a trustee dying after the 31st December, 1881, that "where an estate or interest of inheritance in any hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, is vested on any trust, in any person solely, the same shall, on his death, notwithstanding any testamentary disposition, devolve to and become vested in his personal representatives from time to time, in like manner as if the same were a chattel real; and accordingly all the like powers, for one only of several joint personal representatives, as well as for a single personal representative, and for all the personal representatives together, to dispose of and otherwise deal with the same, shall belong to his personal representatives from time to time, with all the like incidents, but subject to all the like rights, equities, and obligations, as if the same were a chattel real; and, for the purposes of this section, the personal representatives, for the time being, of the deceased, shall be deemed in law his heirs and assigns, within the meaning of all trusts and powers."

By recent Act trust estate devolves on personal representatives of deceased
trustee.

(t) Morton v. Hallett, 15 Ch. D. 143.

The above enactment applies to all trustees, and not bare trustees only, and sect. 48 of the Land Transfer Act, 1875, is repealed, as to cases occurring after 31st December, 1881.

But not a power unaccompanied by any estate.

The effect of the above enactment is that upon the death of a trustee dying after the 31st December, 1881, the legal estate in the trust property, and also the right and obligation to exercise the trusts, pass to his personal representatives. But a mere power, unaccompanied by an estate in the land, is not affected by the section. If, therefore, by a strict settlement a power of sale and exchange is vested in trustees without the addition of the words, "and the survivors and survivor of them and the executors or administrators of such survivor," the power, though exercisable by the survivors and survivor, would not on the death of the last survivor pass to his personal representatives.

Heir-at-law on whom legal estate devolves by reason of death or disclaimer of trustees cannot exercise trusts involving discretion.

Where by reason of the death or disclaimer of the trustees appointed by a will, the land devolves on the heir-at-law of the testator, subject to the trusts, which trusts are of a nature involving the exercise of judgment and discretion, as, e.g., a trust to sell or to lease, the heir cannot himself execute them (u), but new trustees must be appointed.

III. The powers and duties of trustees for sale.

Duties of trustees for sale as to price and mode of sale.

Trustees for sale should use proper diligence to obtain the best price, and should take care to satisfy themselves as to the value of the property before they proceed to a sale (x). If by the terms of the trust they are not limited to any particular mode of sale, they may sell either by public auction or private contract, but as a general rule they should not sell by private contract at a sum below what the property has been previously valued at; and if they sell by auction, they should properly advertise the intended sale.

Trustees may sell in one lot or in several lots and subject to conditions applicable to the state of the title, but they must not impose conditions calculated to depreciate the property without reasonable ground, even though authorized by the terms of the trust to sell "subject to such stipulations as to title as they may think fit" (y). It is, however, provided by the Trustee Act, 1888 (z), with respect to sales made after the 24th December, 1888, (1) that no sale by a trustee shall be impeached by any cestui que trust on the ground that any of the conditions may have been unnecessarily depreciatory, unless it shall appear that the consideration for the sale was thereby rendered inadequate; (2) that no sale shall after completion be impeached as against the purchaser on this ground unless it shall appear that he was acting in collusion with the trustee at the time of the contract for sale; and (3) that no purchaser shall be at liberty to object to the title upon this ground.

A trustee may fix a reserved bidding at a sale by auction, and buy in if that bidding is not reached (a); but in this, as in other matters relating to the trust, he must act providently. Unless authorized by the terms of his trust to defer a sale, his duty is to sell as soon as he conveniently can; if he does not, and the property falls in value, he runs the risk of being held answerable for the loss, particularly if he has in the meantime bought in at an auction at a sum higher than that ultimately realized, or otherwise refused a fair offer (b).

The above observations apply generally, whether the trust has been created before or since the 31st December, 1881; but as regards trusts created since that day, it is expressly provided by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c), that where a trust for sale or a power of sale is vested in trustees, they may sell either subject to prior charges or not, and either together or in lots, by public auction or by private contract, subject to any such conditions respecting title or evidence of title, or other matter, as they may think fit, with power to vary any contract for sale and to buy in or rescind any contract for sale, and resell without being answerable for loss.

Trust for sale must be exercised in accordance with conditions prescribed.

A trust for sale to take effect at a future time, or on certain conditions, can only be exercised at the time and in accordance with the conditions prescribed. Thus, where a testator devised an advowson to trustees upon trust to sell on the death of A. A. was the incumbent, so that on his death no sale could be made until the vacancy was filled up. It was held that the Court had no jurisdiction to authorize a sale in A.'s lifetime on the ground that it would be beneficial to the parties (d). Again, where a testator gave real and personal estate to trustees upon trust for sale, and declared that no sale should be made without the consent in writing of his sons and daughters, it was held that a contract entered into by the trustees after the death of one of the daughters could not be specifically enforced, although her representative concurred (e).

But a trust to sell within a given time may be exercised afterwards.

But a trust to sell within a given time will not preclude the trustees from selling after that time, if the nature of the trusts requires that there must certainly be a sale notwithstanding the lapse of time, either by the trustees or by the Court (f).

Sale of land without timber, or surface without mines.

Trustees for sale must sell the timber with the estate, although the tenant for life is unimpeachable for waste (g); and in the case of Buckley v. Howell (h), it was decided that the ordinary power of sale and exchange did not authorize a sale by the trustees of the surface, reserving the minerals. In consequence of this decision, which affected many existing titles, an Act was passed (i) which confirmed all sales, exchanges, partitions, and enfranchisements previously made, of the surface without the minerals, or of the minerals without the surface, and authorized similar dispositions in future, with the sanction of the Court(k). This Act was held to apply to mortgagees with a power of sale as well as to trustees strictly so called(l).

The last-mentioned Act is practically superseded by sect. 17 of the Settled Land Act, 1882(m), which enables the surface and the minerals to be sold, exchanged, or leased separately under the powers of that Act.

Surface and minerals may be sold, &c., separately under Settled Land Act.

A power of sale vested in trustees by a settlement, the proceeds being directed to be laid out in the purchase of lands to be settled to the like uses as the lands sold, or being otherwise liable to trusts corresponding with those uses, does not transgress the rule against perpetuities, although no limit is imposed by the terms of the instrument as to the period during which it may be exercised. Such a limit is in fact implied from the nature and object of the power, which is intended to enable alienation during the continuance of the particular estates created by the settlement, and when those estates determine and the lands become vested in fee simple in possession, either under the ultimate limitation in the deed or by reason of a disentailing assurance, the power ceases also. Thus, if lands are settled on A. for life, with remainder to the sons of A. successively in tail, with remainder to B. in fee simple, and a power of sale unlimited in terms is vested in trustees, such power remains in force during A.'s life, and if he leaves male issue, until a tenant in tail attains twenty-one, and bars the entail, and upon that event happening, or on the death of A., if he has no male issue, the power ceases(n). And it seems that the existence of a jointure rent-charge, the fee simple being vested in possession subject to such jointure, will not keep alive the power(o).

Unlimited powers of sale in a settlement valid.

Such powers cease when the estate vests in fee simple in possession.

The decision of V.-C. Bacon in Re Cooke's Contract, 4 Ch. D., 454;

Power remains although an undivided share has become vested in possession.

If property is settled, as to one undivided share, for one class of persons, and as to the other share for another class, the fact of one share having become absolutely vested in possession does not put an end to the power, which remains in force until the entirety has become so vested (p).

Doctrine does not apply where power is for purpose of division.

The doctrine that a power of sale unlimited in terms ceases so soon as the property becomes absolutely vested, does not (in the opinion of Jessel, M. R.) apply to a case where the power is made to take effect on the coming into existence of the absolute limitation, e.g., where property is given to trustees in trust for a class of persons absolutely, with a power to sell "for the purpose of division." His Lordship considered that a power of this kind was from its nature exercisable within a reasonable time, and therefore valid (q).

Power limited in terms, may continue after property has become vested.

Where a power of sale is conferred so as in terms to be exercisable only within the permitted period, such a power remains in force notwithstanding that the property has become absolutely vested, if such appears to be the settlor's intention and there has been no election by the cestuis que trustent to put an end to it (r).

Power of sale, where it authorizes a mortgage.

A power to sell in order to raise a sum of money implies, it has been said, a power to mortgage, which is a conditional sale (s); but this is only the case when the purpose of the trust will be answered by a mortgage; for if the intention appears that a sale out and seems prima facie to conflict with the doctrine stated in the text; but his Honor must have considered in that case that the authority to sell was an absolute trust for conversion, and not a mere power. See note (q) below.

where there is a trust to divide, with a power to sell for the purpose of division, the power is not a power in the proper sense of the term, i.e., an authority to defeat or divest interests vested in default of its exercise, but is merely part of the machinery for carrying out the trust for division. It is in effect a trust to divide the property among the objects either by selling and distributing the proceeds, or by specific allotments or otherwise.

out shall be made, a mortgage will not be a valid exercise of the power (t).

A power of sale does not authorize a partition (u), and until lately it was considered doubtful whether a partition could be carried into effect under a power of exchange (x). But the doubt on this point may be considered as set at rest by a recent case (y), where Jessel, M. R., reviewed all the authorities, and arrived at the conclusion that a partition of an estate held in moieties could be made under such a power, and intimated his opinion, although it was not necessary to decide the point, that there was no difference in this respect between an estate held in moieties, and one held in a greater number of undivided shares (z).

A partition authorized by power of exchange, but not by a power of sale.

Land subject to a discretionary power of sale retains its character of real estate until sale (a).

Land remains real estate, until power is exercised.

Trust property may be sold conjointly with property belonging to other persons or held on different trusts, if by reason of the situation of the two properties, or for any other reason, a joint sale is likely to produce a better price than separate sales (b). On this principle a joint sale by trustees of the reversion expectant on a lease, and by the owner of the lease, was held good (c). In the case of a joint sale the trustees have authority to agree with the other vendor as to the apportionment of the purchase-money, which must be done before the purchase is completed, and the purchaser dividing his money according to such apportionment is safe unless he has notice that the apportionment is an improper one (d). If, however, the two properties are so situate that, primâ facie, nothing will be gained by a joint sale,

Trust property may be sold conjointly with other property.

the onus lies on the trustee to show that it is a prudent and right thing (e).

Contract if a breach of trust not enforced.

If a trustee enters into a contract of sale which is under the circumstances a breach of trust as between himself and his cestui que trust, the Court will refuse to enforce its specific performance either at the suit of the vendor or of the purchaser, and will, even at the suit of the cestui que trust, restrain the vendor from carrying it into effect, leaving the purchaser to his remedy in damages, if any (f). If under such a contract the property has been actually conveyed to the purchaser, the question whether it will be set aside will depend on whether he had notice of the breach of trust.

Under old law trustees could give good receipts in certain cases only.

According to the old law, a purchaser from a trustee was liable to see that his purchase-money was properly applied, unless the instrument expressly declared that the trustee's receipt should be a good discharge, or unless such an intention was to be inferred from the nature of the trust. But by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, sect. 36, it is provided that "the receipt in writing of any trustees or trustee for any money, securities, or other personal property payable, transferable, or deliverable to them or him under any trust or power shall be a sufficient discharge for the same, and shall effectually exonerate the person paying, transferring, or delivering the same, from seeing to the application or being answerable for any loss or misapplication thereof," and this enactment is made applicable to trusts created either before or after the commencement of the Act (g).

How money to be paid to trustees.

Trustees are not, as a general rule, justified in delegating to an agent, or even to one of themselves, the power to receive money, and until the recent Act a purchaser, or other person liable to pay money to trustees, was entitled to insist on all the trustees being personally present to receive and take charge of it, or on their giving a written authority for payment of it to their joint account at a bank (h). But the law is now modified to this extent that—(1) a trustee (which term includes an executor) may appoint a solicitor to be his agent to receive and give a discharge for any money, &c. receivable by such trustee under the trust by permitting him to have the custody of and to produce a deed containing any such receipt as is referred to in sect. 56 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (i); and (2) a trustee may appoint a solicitor or banker to receive and give a discharge for money payable under a policy of assurance by permitting him to have the custody of and to produce such policy with a receipt signed by the trustee; but the trustee must not, in either of the above cases, permit the money to remain in the hands of the solicitor or banker longer than is reasonably necessary to enable him to pay the same to the trustee (k).

Cases in which trustee may appoint a solicitor or banker as his agent to receive money.

It will be borne in mind that whenever land is settled within the meaning of the Settled Land Act, 1882 (other than sect. 63 of that Act), so that there is under the deed or will creating the settlement a tenant for life or any person placed by the Act in the position of a tenant for life, by whom the statutory powers of sale, exchange, leasing, &c., can be exercised, then all powers for the same purpose given by the settlement to trustees are subordinate to the statutory powers and cannot be exercised without the consent of the person, or one of the persons, in whom Trusts or powers of sale vested in trustees of settled land are subordinate to powers of tenant for life under Settled Land Act.

(h) Re Bellamy, 24 C. D. 387; Re Flower, 27 C. D. 592. These cases merely decide that a purchaser from trustees may, for his own protection, and in order to be perfectly safe, insist on paying as above, where there is no reason for adopting any other mode of payment. But it has never been decided that a person paying money to an agent according to the written direction of the trustees, will have to pay it over again if it is misappropriated by the agent, and such authority as there is appears to be against such liability. Webb v. Ledsam, 1 K. & J. 385; Hope v. Liddell, 21 Beav. 183.

(i) Under this section the production by a solicitor of a deed, with a receipt for money signed by the person entitled to receive it, is a sufficient authority for the payment of it to the solicitor.

those powers are for the time being vested. But if land is vested in trustees upon trust to sell so as to constitute a settlement under sect. 63 of that Act, the trustees may sell or exercise any other powers vested in them by the settlement, without any consent not required by the terms of the instrument (m).

IV. Purchases by a trustee from himself or from his cestui que trust.

Trustee for sale cannot buy from himself.

A trustee for sale cannot purchase the trust property from himself, nor, where there are several trustees, can one buy from the others. The sale is not, however, void ab initio, but is liable to be set aside, as a matter of course, by the cestui que trust, provided that he applies to the Court for that purpose within a reasonable time; and it is not necessary to show that the trustee has taken any advantage. If, prior to the setting aside of the sale, the trustee has sold at an increased price, the cestui que trust may claim the advantage (n).

Court will sometimes authorize purchase by trustee.

The Court will, however, sometimes authorize a purchase by a trustee of the trust property on being satisfied that such purchase is for the benefit of the cestui que trust (o).

Purchases by trustee from cestui que trust, under what circumstances valid.

With regard to purchases by a trustee from his cestui que trust, the rule has been thus stated by Lord Eldon: "The rule I take to be this, not that a trustee cannot buy from his cestui que trust, but that he shall not buy from himself. If a trustee will so deal with his cestui que trust that the amount of the transaction shakes off the obligation that attaches upon him as trustee, then he may buy. The rule is, that a trustee who is entrusted to sell and manage for others undertakes in the same moment in which he becomes a trustee not to manage for the benefit and advantage of himself. It does not preclude a new contract with those who have entrusted him. The cestuis que trust may, by a new contract, dismiss him from the character of trustee; but even that transaction, by which they dismiss him, must, according to the rules of this Court, be watched with the most guarded jealousy; and for this reason, that the law supposes him to have acquired all the knowledge a trustee may acquire, which may be very useful to him, but the communication of which to the cestui que trust the Court can never be sure he has made when entering into the new contract by which he is discharged. Whether the trustee has made advantage or not, if the connection does not satisfactorily appear to have been dissolved, it is in the choice of the cestuis que trust whether they will take back the property" (p). In another case it was observed by the same judge, "It is not, in my opinion, necessary to show that the trustee has made an advantage. The principle is, that as the trustee is bound by his duty to acquire all the knowledge possible to enable him to sell to the utmost advantage for the cestui que trust, the question what knowledge he has obtained, and whether he has fairly given the benefit of that knowledge to the cestui que trust which he always acquires at the expense of the cestui que trust, no Court can discuss with competent sufficiency or safety to the parties" (q).

In a case where the cestui que trust had full information, and took upon himself the management of the property and of the sale, making or directing the surveys and fixing the value, a purchase by the trustee from such cestui que trust was supported; the Court observing, "As to the objection to a purchase by the trustee, the answer is that a trustee may purchase from the cestui que trust provided there is a clear and distinct contract, ascertained to be such after a jealous and scrupulous examination of all the circumstances, that the cestui que trust intended the trustee should buy, and there is no fraud, no concealment, no advantage taken by the trustee of information acquired by him in the character of trustee" (r).

to the exercise of the power, is a valid transaction (s), the reason being, that the power of giving or withholding his consent is given to the tenant for life for his own benefit, and he is not in a fiduciary position with respect to it (t). But a tenant for life cannot, under the power of sale conferred on him by the Settled Land Act, 1882, sell to himself (u). And the rule that a purchase by a trustee from his cestui que trust is liable to be impeached does not apply to a bare trustee who has no duties to perform, as, for example, to a trustee to preserve contingent remainders, or to a case where land is given to A. in fee in trust for B. (an adult) in fee. In either of these cases the trustee may purchase from the beneficiaries of the property (x). And a disclaiming trustee may purchase from the acting trustee (y).

Power of investment carries with it a power to vary investments.

A power to invest trust moneys in one or more of several specified modes of investment includes (it is apprehended) a power to vary the investments, and under such a power the trustees may sell out stock and invest the proceeds in any security authorized by law for trust funds (e); but in a case where a sum of Bank Annuities was settled without any express power to change the investment, it was held that no change could be made under the statutory power (f).

Provisions of Act of 1888 as to investments by trustees.

Loans by trustees.

The Trustee Act, 1888 (g), contains the following provisions as to investments by trustees:—

Sect. 4.—(1.) No trustee lending money upon the security of any property shall be chargeable with breach of trust by reason only of the proportion borne by the amount of the loan to the value of such property at the time when the loan was made, provided that it shall appear to the Court that in making such loan the trustee was acting upon a report as to the value of the property made by a person whom the trustee reasonably believed to be an able practical surveyor or valuer, instructed and employed independently of any owner of the property, whether such surveyor or valuer carried on business in the locality where the property is situate or elsewhere, and that the amount of the loan does not exceed two equal third parts of the value of the property as stated in such report, and that the loan was made under the advice of such surveyor or valuer, expressed in such report. And this section shall apply to a loan upon any property of any tenure, whether agricultural or house or other property, on which the trustee can lawfully lend.

- (2.) No trustee lending money upon the security of any leasehold property shall be chargeable with breach of trust only upon the ground that in making such loan he dispensed, either wholly or partially, with the production or investigation of the lessor's title.
- (3.) No trustee shall be chargeable with breach of trust only upon the ground that, in effecting the purchase of any property, or in lending money upon the security of any property, he shall have accepted a shorter title than the title which a purchaser is, in the absence of a special contract, entitled to require, if in the opinion of the Court the title accepted be such as a person acting with prudence and caution would have accepted.
- (4.) This section shall apply to transfers of existing securities as well as to new securities, and investments made as well before as after the passing of this Act, except where some action or other proceeding shall be pending with reference thereto at the passing of this Act.

Sect. 5.—(1.) Where a trustee shall have improperly advanced trust money on a mortgage security which would, at the time of the investment, have been a proper investment in all respects for a less sum than was actually advanced thereon, the security shall be deemed an authorized investment for such less sum, and the trustee shall only be liable to make good the sum advanced in excess thereof with interest.

Liability for loss by reason of improper investments.

(2.) This section shall apply to investments made as well before as after the passing of this Act, except where some action or other proceeding shall be pending with reference thereto at the passing of this Act.

Investments
on mortgage of long terms.

Sect. 9. A power to invest trust money in real securities shall authorize and shall be deemed to have always authorized an investment upon mortgage of property held for an unexpired term of not less than two hundred years and not subject to any reservation of rent greater than one shilling a year, or to any right of redemption, or to any condition for re-entry except for nonpayment of rent.

Trustees may waive the power of sale
in a mortgage.

Although a power of sale was usually inserted in mortgages, before that power was conferred by statute it was not a breach of trust to accept the security without it (c), and it is apprehended that a trustee would be justified, if acting bonâ fide, in negating the application of the statutory power.

Trustee may not invest on a contributory mortgage.
Lending on personal security.

In the absence of an express power, it is a breach of trust to invest on a contributory mortgage (d).

Trustees cannot lend on personal security under a power to invest the trust funds at their discretion (e), or under a direction to lay out "on such good security as the trustees can procure and may think safe" (f).

Whether
trustee may purchase redeemable
above par.

As a general rule, a trustee should not purchase stock shortly redeemable at a price above par, even though the stock is one coming within the range of investments authorized by the deed or by statute, because such an investment involves a diminution of capital, and is therefore primâ facie detrimental to the persons entitled in remainder. But there may be circumstances in which the increase of the father's income is for the benefit of the children, even though their ultimate share in the principal is thereby reduced; and if a trustee, in the exercise of his discretion, chooses to make such an investment, the Court will presume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that he has acted bonâ fide and with a due regard to the interest of all parties, and will uphold it (g).

If a trustee improperly retains money uninvested, or for want of due care allows it to be lost, he is chargeable with the sum so retained or lost, with interest thereon at four per cent.; and if he has improperly lent or used the trust money in trade, the cestuis que trust have the option to charge him either with the profits actually made or with interest at 5 per cent., that being the ordinary rate of interest paid on capital in trade (h).

Extent of liability of trustees in case of loss of trust fund.

Where personal property is bequeathed upon trust for A. for life, with remainders over, and the trustee or executor, instead of converting it where he ought so to do, permits a portion to remain outstanding on an unauthorized investment, producing a large annual income which the tenant for life receives, the trustee will be compelled to account to the remainderman, not only for the principal money, but also for the excess of income paid to the tenant for life beyond the income which would have been received by him if there had been a conversion and investment in three per cent. consols at the end of a year from the testator's death; in other words, the excess of income will be treated as capital (i). But it has been held that this principle is not to be extended to the case of a trustee making an unauthorized investment by which the tenant for life receives a larger income. Thus, where trustees without authority lent trust moneys at interest at 5 per cent., it was held that the tenant for life was entitled to the whole interest, and that the remainderman had no right to insist that any part of such interest formed capital. The Master of the Rolls observed, that when trustees or executors commit a breach of trust by lending the money on some unauthorized investment, they have discharged their liability in favour of the cestuis que trust in remainder, when they have made good the capital and any increase which that capital may have received (k).

Difference between trustees authorized or required to invest with consent.

If trustees are authorized to invest or change the investment with the consent of the tenant for life, neither party can be compelled to acquiesce in the desire of the other, but the voluntary concurrence of both parties is requisite to a valid exercise of the power (l). But in a case where the trustees were authorized and required to change the investments at the request of the tenant for life, the Court compelled the trustees to comply with the request of the tenant for life, that the existing securities should be changed (m).

Trustee may insure buildings.

By the Trustee Act, 1888, a trustee is authorized to insure against loss or damage by fire any building or other insurable property to any amount (including the amount of any insurance already on foot) not exceeding three equal fourth parts of the full value of such building or property, and to pay the premiums for such insurance out of the income thereof or out of the income of any other property subject to the same trusts, without obtaining the consent of any person who may be entitled wholly or partly to such income. But this power does not apply to any building or property which a trustee is bound forthwith to convey absolutely to any cestui que trust upon being requested so to do (n). And by the same Act a trustee is authorized to renew leases for years or for lives (o).

Extent of trustee's liability for fraud of agent,

A trustee is bound to conduct the business of the trust in the same manner as an ordinary prudent man of business, regardful of the future pecuniary interests of those having claims upon him, would conduct his own, and beyond this he is not liable. He may employ solicitors, brokers, and other agents to do that which in the ordinary course of business other people would employ such persons to do. In accordance with this principle it has been held that a trustee or executor is not liable for loss arising from the failure of bankers with whom money has been deposited pending distribution or a permanent investment, unless such deposit has been made or allowed to remain without sufficient reason (p), or for the fraud of a broker who embezzled money given to him for investment (q); and an executor placing goods in the hands of a tradesman to be disposed of in the ordinary way of business, is not liable for loss arising from the tradesman becoming bankrupt (r). In one case a trustee was held liable for a loss occasioned by the fraud of his solicitor, to whom he had given money for investment (s), on the ground that it is not in the ordinary course of business to give money to a solicitor for investment (t). On the other hand, and in accordance with the above principle, it is apprehended that a trustee is not liable for accepting a title which his solicitor has advised to be good, but which turns out defective.

In some recent cases (u) a trustee was held liable for lending money on a mortgage security which proved insufficient in value, where he acted on the advice of a surveyor, on the ground that, under the circumstances, he ought to have exercised an independent judgment. But it is apprehended that a trustee may in future safely act on a surveyor's report if made in accordance with sect. 4 of the Trustee Act, 1888.

concur in such election, or any of them are under disability, it is the duty of the trustee to resell (y). If the money produced by the resale is more than was given for the property, the whole belongs to the trust; if less, the trustees must make up the deficiency. The purchaser on a resale ought to satisfy himself that the cestuis que trust are not in a position to elect to adopt the purchase, or that at least one of them refuses to do so, and in that case it is apprehended that he will have a good title, whether there is a gain or loss to the trust fund (z).

Passive trustee, whether entitled to indemnity from active trustee who has committed breach of trust.

Where there are two trustees, and the management of the trust is left in the hands of one, and the acting trustee commits a breach of trust, the passive trustee is not entitled to an indemnity from the active trustee unless there are some special circumstances, as where the active trustee is the solicitor for the trust or has derived a personal benefit from the breach (a).

Court may impound interest of beneficiary to indemnify trustee.

If a trustee commits a breach of trust at the instigation or request or with the consent of a beneficiary, the Court may, if it thinks fit, and notwithstanding that the beneficiary may be a married woman restrained from anticipating, make an order impounding all or any part of the beneficiary's interest by way of indemnity to the trustee (b).

VI. Disclaimer.

Disclaimer.

If a person appointed a trustee by deed or will is desirous of disclaiming the trust, and has done no act which would amount to an acceptance of it, he should execute a deed of disclaimer in proper form, bearing in mind that any form is objectionable which affects to convey and release property the trusts whereof he wholly disclaims (c).

What will amount to the acceptance of a trust must depend upon the acts or conduct of the trustee. For instance, the signature of the deed by which the trust is created, or any interference in the management of the estate under the trusts of the deed, would be regarded as an acceptance (d).

What is acceptance of a trust.

There can be no disclaimer of a trust which has once been accepted; and where personalty is bequeathed to executors as trustees, the probate of the will amounts to an acceptance of the trust (e). But, on the other hand, a renunciation of the executorship is not of itself a disclaimer of the trusts.

Probate acceptance of trust.

When a person is appointed trustee and executor, and by a codicil the testator revokes the appointment of that person as executor, this does not amount to a revocation of the trusteeship (f).

Revocation of one office does not revoke other.

The fact of a surviving trustee dying without acting under the instrument does not prevent the legal estate in the trust property from vesting in him, and devolving on his representatives, unless he actually disclaimed in his lifetime (g); but in a recent case, Jessel, M.R., was of opinion, though it was not necessary to decide the point, that a disclaimer might be presumed from a trustee, who was also an executor, having renounced probate and lived for three years without acting in the trusts of the real estate (h).

Position of representative of surviving trustee who has not disclaimed.

A disclaimer of a gift or trust of copyholds may be made by parol (i). So also a parol disclaimer of a gift or trust of leaseholds (k), or of chattels personal (l), is good; and there are authorities in favour of the position, that a gift or trust of freeholds may be disclaimed by parol (m). Holroyd, J., said that it seemed to him, on the reason of the thing, and the authority of Bonifaut v. Greenfield, that the disclaimer of freeholds need not be either by deed or matter of record (o), but it is always prudent to have a deed.

Consequences of disclaimer.

As to the consequences of a disclaimer by a trustee, Mr. Hill observes: "Where the person who is appointed trustee makes a proper disclaimer, the effect is that all parties are placed precisely in the same situation relatively to the trust property as if the disclaiming party had not been named in the trust instrument, whether it be a deed or will. Therefore where a sole trustee or all the trustees disclaim a devise in trust, the legal estate will vest in the heir of the deviser, and if the person disclaiming be one of two or more trustees, the entire estate is vested in the other trustee or trustees. Whenever the disclaimer is made it will have relation back to the time of the gift. Where one of two or more trustees disclaims, the remaining trustees or trustee will take not only the entire legal estate, but also all the powers and authorities vested in the trustees as such, and which are requisite for the administration of the trust" (p). The disclaimer must be absolute, and if valid is irrevocable.

By the Conveyancing Act, 1882 (q), it is provided that a person to whom any power, whether coupled with an interest or not, is given, may by deed disclaim the power, and on such disclaimer the power may be exercised by the other or others, or the survivors or survivor of the others, of the persons to whom it is given.

VII. The appointment of new trustees, and the powers conferred by statute for this purpose.

It was formerly considered an essential part of a well-drawn settlement to provide for the appointment of new trustees in case of vacancies by death or otherwise. A statutory power for this purpose was given by Lord Cranworth's Act, and was very generally adopted by conveyancers, but this power has been repealed by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, which substitutes the following provisions:—

Power to appoint new trustees conferred by Lord Cranworth's Act now repealed.

Sect. 31.—(1.) Where a trustee, either original or substituted, and whether appointed by a Court or otherwise, is dead, Conveyancing Act, 1881, sect. 31.

or remains out of the United Kingdom for more than twelve months, or desires to be discharged from the trusts or powers reposed in or conferred on him, or refuses or is unfit to act therein, or is incapable of acting therein, then the person or persons nominated for this purpose by the instrument, if any, creating the trust, or if there is no such person, or no such person able and willing to act, then the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee for the time being, or the personal representatives of the last surviving or continuing trustee (r), may, by writing, appoint another person or other persons to be a trustee or trustees in the place of the trustee dead, remaining out of the United Kingdom, desiring to be discharged, refusing or being unfit, or being incapable as aforesaid.

Power to appoint new trustees.

(2.) On an appointment of a new trustee, the number of trustees may be increased (s). Number of trustees may be increased.

(3.) On an appointment of a new trustee, it shall not be obligatory to appoint more than one new trustee, where only one trustee was originally appointed, or to fill up the original number of trustees, where more than two trustees were originally appointed; but, except where only one trustee was originally appointed, a trustee shall not be Number need not be kept up provided there are at least two.

(r) This includes the case of an executor of a sole trustee. In re Shafto's Trusts, 29 C. D. 247.

(s) This does not authorize the appointment of an additional trustee where there is no vacancy. In re Gregson's Trusts, 34 C. D. 209.

discharged under this section from his trust unless there will be at least two trustees to perform the trust.

Trust property to be vested in new trustees.

- (4.) On an appointment of a new trustee any assurance or thing requisite for vesting the trust property, or any part thereof, jointly in the persons who are the trustees, shall be executed or done.

New trustee to succeed to all powers, &c.

- (5.) Every new trustee so appointed, as well before as after all the trust property becomes by law, or by assurance, or otherwise, vested in him, shall have the same powers, authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act, as if he had been originally appointed a trustee by the instrument, if any, creating the trust.

Section applies to trustee dying before testator,

- (6.) The provisions of this section relative to a trustee who is dead include the case of a person nominated trustee in a will but dying before the testator; and those relative to a continuing trustee include a refusing or retiring trustee, if willing to act in the execution of the provisions of this section.

- (7.) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to any provisions therein contained.

and to trusts created either before or after Act.

- (8.) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act.

And the Conveyancing Act, 1882 (t), further provides as follows:—

Appointment of separate sets of trustees.

- Sect. 5.—(1.) On an appointment of new trustees a separate set of trustees may be appointed for any part of the trust property held on trusts distinct from those relating to any other part or parts of the trust property; or if only one trustee was originally appointed, then one separate trustee may be so appointed for the first-mentioned part (u).

- (2.) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act.

(t) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 39.

(u) It has been held that this section does not enable the existing trustees of a settlement to retire from the trusts of a part of the trust property by means of the appointment of new trustees for that part. Savile v. Cowper, 36 C. D. 520. But this may be done by an appointment under the Trustee Act. Re Moss's Trusts, 37 C. D. 513.

Before the Act of 1881, one of several trustees could not retire from a trust, unless his place was supplied by the appointment of a new trustee, but it is now provided as follows:—

- Sect. 32.—(1.) Where there are more than two trustees, if one of them by deed declares that he is desirous of being discharged from the trust, and if his co-trustees and such other person, if any, as is empowered to appoint trustees, by deed consent to the discharge of the trustee, and to the vesting in the co-trustees alone of the trust property, then the trustee desirous of being discharged shall be deemed to have retired from the trust, and shall, by the deed, be discharged therefrom under this Act, without any new trustee being appointed in his place.
- (2.) Any assurance or thing requisite for vesting the trust property in the continuing trustees alone shall be executed or done.
- (3.) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to any provisions therein contained.
- (4.) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act.

Sect. 32.

Trustee may retire with consent of co-trustees and donee of power.

Independently of the above enactment, a trustee may apply to the Court to be discharged from the trust, but he will have to pay the costs of the action, unless he can show that circumstances have arisen which alter the nature of his duties (x). And the executor of a deceased sole trustee may decline to act, and will be entitled to the costs of any proceedings for the appointment of a new trustee (y).

Cases in which independently of Act, trustee, applying to Court to be discharged, will be allowed costs.

It was formerly held that a power given to the trustees nominatim, and the survivors and survivor of them, and the executors or administrators of the survivor, could not be exercised by trustees appointed by the Court (z). But it was otherwise if the power was conferred upon persons in their character of trustees, and thus annexed to the office (a). It is now, however, provided by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, as follows:—

Powers of new trustee appointed by Court.

Sect. 33.—(1.) Every trustee appointed by the Court of Chancery, or by the Chancery Division of the Court, or by any other Court of competent jurisdiction, shall, as well before as after the trust property becomes by law, or by assurance, or otherwise, vested in him, have the same powers, authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act, as if he had been originally appointed a trustee by the instrument, if any, creating the trust.

(2.) This section applies to appointments made either before or after the commencement of this Act.

Under recent Act defects in existing power of appointing new trustees are supplied.

It will be observed that section 31 of the Act applies to trusts created either before or after its commencement, and is to have effect subject to the terms expressed in the trust instrument. Whenever, therefore, an existing power is defective, the defect can be supplied by reference to the Act. Thus, if the power in a deed is made exercisable by surviving or continuing trustees, and not by a retiring trustee, and A. a sole surviving trustee wishes to retire, it was formerly considered (b) necessary to have two appointments, viz., 1st., an appointment by A. of B. in the place of the deceased trustee; and 2ndly, an appointment by B. of C. in the place of A. But it is now unnecessary to resort to this device, as A. may under the above section, sub-section (6), appoint B. and C. at once in the place of himself and the deceased trustee. Again, if the power conferred by the deed does not enable the number of trustees to be increased or diminished, such increase or diminution may be made under sub-sections (2) and (3).

Where one of two trustees

disclaims, the other may retire and appoint a single trustee. Beneficiary may be a new trustee.

A person beneficially interested, and even the tenant for life under the settlement, may be appointed a new trustee, unless the instrument shows an intention to the contrary (d).

If a tenant for life with a power to appoint new trustees sells or mortgages his life estate, the consent of the vendee or mortgagee to an exercise of the power is not necessary (e).

Consent of assign of tenant for life to exercise by him of power to appoint new trustees not requisite.

It has been held that a trustee becoming bankrupt is a person unfit to act (f), but not a person incapable to act (g), within the meaning of a power to appoint new trustees. It follows that the statutory power, which includes the case of a trustee unfit to act, can be exercised in case of bankruptcy.

Trustee becomes unfit by bankruptcy.

The expense of the appointment of new trustees must generally be borne by the trust estate.

Expense of appointments.

If the instrument contains no power to appoint new trustees in the event of death, incapacity, or otherwise, and the power conferred by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, does not apply to the instrument in question; and the concurrence of all the cestuis que trust cannot be obtained, the only means of procuring the appointment of a new trustee, except in cases under the Settled Land Act, 1882, is by applying to the Court under the Trustee Act, 1850 (h), which in effect enables the Court to appoint new trustees, whenever it is found inexpedient, difficult, or impracticable to make such appointment otherwise, and to make orders

Where there is an administration action, the decree does not take away the power to appoint new trustees, conferred by the instrument, but the donee can only exercise it subject to the supervision of the Court, and if he nominates a fit person, the Court will not nominate someone else because it may prefer the latter. If the donee nominates a person whom the Court does not think fit and proper, the Court will not itself make the appointment, but call on the donee to make a fresh one (k).

VIII. The Provisions of the Trustee Relief Acts.

Several Acts have been passed during the present reign for the relief of trustees.

10 & 11 Vict.
c. 96.

The 10 & 11 Vict. c. 96, enables trustees, executors, administrators, or other persons having trust moneys in their hands, or having any stocks or government or parliamentary securities standing in their names, or in the names of their testator, &c., to pay, transfer, or deposit the same into Court, and thus discharge themselves from their trust (l).

Cases in which trustees are justified in paying money,
&c. into Court.

It was formerly considered that a trustee having funds in his hands was at liberty under any circumstances to pay them into Court, under the Trustee Relief Acts, if he was so minded (m). This doctrine has, however, been modified by subsequent decisions, the result of which may be thus stated, viz., that where there is any bonâ fide question as to the party entitled to the fund, the trustee is not bound to take upon himself the responsibility of deciding such question, and if he pays the fund into Court will be entitled to the costs of such payment, and also to his costs of the application for obtaining it out of Court (n); but if a trustee pays the fund into Court, when there is no reasonable doubt as to the title of the persons claiming it, or under other circumstances which in the opinion of the Court render such a course unnecessary and vexatious, he will not only be refused his own costs of the application by the party entitled for the payment of the fund out of Court, but will also be decreed to pay the costs of the petitioner (o); nor will a trustee be justified in paying money into Court under the Act after notice of the intention of the cestui que trust to bring an action to have the accounts taken (p).

Where a fund was held in trust for A. for life, with remainder in trust for such person as A. should by deed or will appoint, and in default of appointment in trust for B., and after the death of A. his solicitor wrote to the trustee that there was no ground for supposing that he ever made an appointment, it was held that the trustee ought to have been satisfied with the evidence, and was not justified in paying the money into Court (q).

A trustee having in his hands money belonging absolutely to a married woman (not for her separate use) is not bound to pay it to her husband upon the joint request of both; but may, if he thinks fit, pay it into Court under this Act, so as to give her the opportunity of asserting her equity to a settlement (r).

If a sale is made by trustees who have no power to give valid discharges, the difficulties arising from this imperfection of the instrument as to the payment of the purchase-money, may be removed by paying the money into Court under the provisions of this Act (s); and there can be no doubt that the surplus proceeds of a sale under a power in the hands of a mortgagee are held on a trust within the meaning of the statute (t). The owner of land charged with a legacy cannot pay the legacy into Court under this Act (u), but he can do so under sect. 5 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881. Money payable under a policy of life assurance is not money held upon a trust (x), nor is money deposited with a banker (y), and, consequently, in neither case can it be paid into Court under the Trustee Relief Act. But if the money is paid in, and the person claiming it petitions for its payment out, he thereby recognises the payment, and cannot object to pay the costs incidental thereto (y).

The payment of a trust fund into Court does not, of course, protect the trustees from responsibility in respect of prior breaches of trust (z).

22 & 23 Vict.
c. 35, s. 30.

By the 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, s. 30, trustees, executors, and administrators are enabled to obtain the opinion, advice, or direction of the Court on any question respecting the management or administration of the trust property, or the assets of the testator or intestate.

Originating summons.

And by the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV., the executors or administrators of a deceased person, and the trustees under any deed or instrument, may take out as of course an originating summons, returnable in the chambers of a judge of the Chancery Division, for the determination of any question arising in the administration of the estate or trust.

IX. Miscellaneous points relating to trustees.

It is the duty of a bare trustee, on the request of the person who may be entitled to the entire equitable interest, to convey the legal estate to him, and such trustee would be compelled to pay the costs of any suit which might be instituted against him for this purpose in consequence of his refusal to execute such a conveyance (a). The equitable interest of the beneficial owner, however, must be absolute, and if there remains in the trustee any purpose unperformed for which the legal estate is vested in him, he is entitled to refuse to execute any conveyance until those purposes are fully performed. As a trustee holds the legal estate for all persons who are interested in the equitable estate, he must be careful (in dealing with the legal estate) to regard all such interests so far as he obtains notice of the equities respectively.

Duty of bare trustee.

Where by reason of the disability of a trustee, or other circumstances, a conveyance of a legal estate outstanding in a trustee cannot be obtained, it is necessary to resort to the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice under the Trustee Acts for a vesting order, or for an order authorizing some person to convey in the place of the trustee under disability, &c. (b).

(b) By the Trustee Act, 1850, the Lord Chancellor is empowered to make such order as he may think fit for vesting and releasing lands held upon trust or by way of mortgage in the following cases:—

When any lunatic or person of unsound mind is seised or possessed of lands on any trust or by way of mortgage (sect. 3), or is entitled to any contingent right in such lands (sect. 4).

When any infant is seised or possessed of any such lands (sect. 7) (see In re Howard, 21 L. J. Ch. 437; In re Williams, 5 De G. & S. 515; Ex parte Grieve, 5 De G.

& S. 436), or is entitled to any contingent right in such land (sect. 8).

When any person solely seised or possessed of any lands upon any trust is out of the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, or cannot be found (sect. 9).

*Provisions of Trustee Act as to vesting orders.

When any person or persons shall be seised or possessed of any lands jointly with a person out of the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, or who cannot be found (sect. 10).

When any person solely entitled to a contingent right in any lands upon any trust shall be out of the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, or cannot be found (sect. 11).

If the trust estate does not exceed in amount or value 500*l.*, the application may be made to the County Court under the Act 28 & 29 Vict. c. 99, s. 1.

On death of a trustee, fee simple devolves on his personal representative.

It is provided by a clause in the Land Transfer Act, 1875 (c), that upon the death of a bare trustee intestate as to any corporeal or incorporeal hereditament, of which such trustee was seised in fee simple, such hereditament shall vest like a chattel real in his legal personal representative. This clause is repealed, as regards a trustee dying after the 31st December, 1881, by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (d), under which last-mentioned Act an estate of inheritance or pur auter vie

When any person jointly entitled with any other person or persons to a contingent right in any lands upon any trust shall be out of the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, or cannot be found (sect. 12).

When there shall have been two or more persons jointly seised or possessed of any lands upon any trust, and it shall be uncertain which of such trustees was the survivor (sect. 13).

When any one or more person or persons shall have been seised or possessed of any lands upon any trust, and it shall not be known, as to the trustee last known to have been seised or possessed, whether he be living or dead (sect. 14).

When any person seised of any lands upon any trust shall have died intestate as to such lands without an heir, or shall have died, and it shall not be known who is his heir or devisee (sect. 15).

When any lands are subject to a contingent right in an unborn person or class of unborn persons, who upon coming into existence would in respect thereof have become seised or possessed of such lands upon any trust (sect. 16).

When any person jointly or solely entitled to lands, or to a contingent right in lands, upon any trust, shall after a demand by a person entitled to require a conveyance or assignment of such lands, or a duly authorized agent, have stated in writing that he will not convey or assign the same, or shall neglect or refuse to convey or assign such lands for twenty-eight days next after a proper deed for conveying the same shall have been tendered to him by any person entitled to require the same, or by such agent (sects. 17, 18).

The 28th section declares what shall be the effect of an order vesting copyholds or appointing any person to convey copyholds.

* And by the Trustee Act Extension Act (15 & 16 Vict. c. 55), the Lord Chancellor is empowered to make such an order when any person shall be jointly or solely seised or possessed of any lands, or entitled to any contingent right therein upon any trust, and a demand shall have been made upon such trustee by a person entitled to require a conveyance or assignment of such lands, or a duly authorized agent of such last-mentioned person, requiring such trustee to convey or assign the same, or to release such contingent right (sect. 2).

vested in a trustee passes on his death to his personal representative, whether he makes a will or dies intestate, and whether he is a bare trustee or has active duties to perform.

The above provisions obviate the necessity for an application to the Court for a vesting order where a trustee has died leaving an infant heir, in those cases to which they apply.

No lands, &c., so far as they are vested in any person upon any trust, or by way of mortgage, will escheat or be forfeited to her Majesty, or to any corporation, lord or lady of a manor, or other person, by reason of the attainder or conviction for any offence of the trustee or mortgagee (e).

No forfeiture on attainder of trustee.

The presumption of the re-conveyance of a legal estate depends on various circumstances. As between the trustee and cestui que trust no length of time is a ground for such presumption, but there may have been dealings on the part of the equitable owner inconsistent with the supposition of the legal estate being outstanding,—as where the property has been sold, mortgaged, and settled from time to time without any notice having been taken on such occasions of the outstanding legal estate, or where the property has been dealt with in such a manner as to lead to the inference that the legal estate must have been at the time in the beneficial owner (f), or where the legal estate is directed to be conveyed to a particular person at a given time (g), or is conveyed to trustees for a particular purpose (h), and they are directed to convey to the cestui que trust when those purposes are satisfied, and a long time has elapsed since the trustees ought to have conveyed the legal estate pursuant to such direction, &c., &c.,—and in such cases it will have to be considered whether there is sufficient ground for such presumption (i). It is said that if before a jury it would be the duty of a judge to give a clear direction in favour of the fact of conveyance, then it is to be considered as without reasonable doubt; but if it would be the duty of a judge to leave it to the jury to pronounce upon the effect of the evidence, then it is too doubtful to conclude a purchaser (k). In Cotterell v. Hughes (l), a term was assigned to attend the inheritance in 1773. In 1778 the estate was limited in strict settlement, and in 1813 the estate was again limited in strict settlement, but in neither of these settlements was any notice taken of the outstanding term. In 1840 the estate was sold, and on this occasion the term was assigned to attend the inheritance for the purchaser, and it was held that the circumstances of the omission of all mention of this term in the two settlements would not justify the Court in presuming a surrender.

Right to the possession of title deeds.

The right to the possession of the title deeds depends on the situation of the legal estate, and follows the legal ownership; and this rule is equally applicable to personal and real estate. If, therefore, the legal interest in an estate under a settlement is vested in trustees in trust to pay the rents and profits to a tenant for life, and after his death in trust for other persons, the trustees are, as a general rule, entitled to retain the custody of the deeds (m). The cestui que trust, however, has a right to inspect and take copies of the deeds at any time (n), and this extends to a cestui que trust of the proceeds of sale, in the absence of special circumstances (o). Of course a bare trustee cannot retain the deeds as against his cestui que trust. A tenant for life has a right to the custody of the deeds, if the legal as well as the equitable estate is vested in him (p), unless he has been guilty of misconduct so that the safety of the deeds is endangered, or there is a pending suit relating to the property, and it is more convenient for the purposes of the suit that they shall be in Court (q). Any person entitled to a vested remainder may require the tenant for life to produce the title deeds for the remainderman's inspection, in order to enable him to dispose of, or otherwise deal with, the property (r). But it seems that this right does not extend to a person entitled to a contingent remainder (s).

Where deeds relate to two estates, or to one estate held by tenants in common, if any one of the interested parties gets possession of them, he is entitled to retain them, for no one can show a better right to have them. And where the deeds are in the possession of a third party who has no interest, he cannot be compelled to deliver them up except by the direction of all the parties interested, and if they cannot agree, or one of them cannot be found, the deeds must be deposited in Court for the benefit of all (t).

If a trustee, and for this purpose the tenant for life of a settled leasehold property is considered a trustee (u), renews a lease, the renewed lease will enure for the benefit of the trust (x), and it makes no difference that the lease has not usually been renewed (y), or that the old lease has expired (z), or that the renewal was for a different term or at a different rate; and the rule has been held to apply where the tenant for life of an underlease purchased the leasehold reversion and then took a renewal from the superior lessor (a).

Doctrine applies to purchase of reversion.

The doctrine that a renewal of leaseholds by a tenant for life enures to the benefit of the remainderman applies equally to a purchase of the freehold reversion (b).

Duty of trustees of leaseholds as to repairs.

Where leasehold property is vested in trustees in trust for A. for life, with remainders over, and there is no express direction as to repairs, the tenant for life is not bound to keep the property in repair out of the rents. But as the trustees are liable to the covenants in the lease, they are entitled for their own protection, and ought, it is apprehended, in order to prevent a forfeiture, to do the necessary repairs out of corpus (c).

Trustee cannot charge for professional services.

It is an established rule that a trustee, executor, or administrator shall have no allowance for his care and trouble (d), and consequently a trustee who is a solicitor is only entitled to be repaid costs out of pocket, and cannot charge the trust estate for his professional services (e). The rule equally applies where the trustee is a member of a firm of solicitors, and the business is done by the firm (f). In a case where one of a firm of solicitors acted in the defence of a suit for himself and his co-trustees, it was held that the trustees, as a body, were entitled to their full costs, unless it could be shown that the amount of such costs was increased by the solicitor being joined in the defence with the other trustees (g). But the exception to the general rule allowed in the last-named case will not be extended to the administration of an estate out of Court (h).

In accordance with the above rule, it has been held that if a trustee solicitor and his firm make profit costs by preparing leases, which costs are paid by the tenants, the solicitor must account to the trust estate for the costs thus received (i).

A mortgagee, as such, is not a trustee, but if he enters into possession (k), or sells under the power of sale (l), he thereby places himself in a fiduciary position, and if he receives the rents himself or acts professionally in conducting a sale, is not entitled to any commission or profit costs. But if a solicitor mortgagee, in the mere character of mortgagee, is defendant in a redemption suit, it is apprehended that the rule would not apply, but the question is doubtful (m).

Mortgagee in possession, or selling under power, is a trustee.

The rule is not confined to solicitors. Thus, in a case where a mortgagee with a power of sale was a member of a firm of auctioneers, and the firm sold for him under the power, it was held the firm were not entitled to the auctioneer's commission (n).

Rule not confined to solicitors.

If the settlor or testator expressly authorizes the trustee to retain his professional costs, he will be allowed to charge for everything which, if he had not been a trustee, he would have been justified in employing a solicitor to do; but he will not be allowed his charges for things which an executor or trustee ought to do without the intervention of a solicitor, such as for attendances to pay premiums on policies, attendances at the bank to make transfers, attendances on proctors, auctioneers, legatees, and creditors (o).

Effect of clause authorizing trustee to charge for professional services.

In case of any claim against a trustee, the Trustee Act, 1888, enables him to plead the Statute of Limitations like any other person, except where the claim is founded upon any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust, or to recover trust property converted by him to his own use (p).

HUSBAND AND WIFE (a).

Division of
subject.

It is proposed in this Dissertation to consider—I. The right of separate property conferred on the wife by the Married Women's Property Acts, and the interest of the husband in his wife's real estate, chattels real, chattels personal, choses in action, and reversionary interests in personalty not being her separate property by virtue of those Acts or otherwise. II. The wife's equity to a settlement out of property accruing to her after the marriage and not subject to the above-mentioned Acts. III. Trusts for the separate use of a married woman, either with or without a restraint on anticipation. IV. The liability of the wife's separate property, and of the husband, for the wife's debts and engagements contracted during the coverture and before marriage respectively. V. The effect of separation or desertion as to the wife's property and her capacity to contract.

I. The right of separate property conferred on the wife by the Married Women's Property Acts, and the interest of the husband in his wife's real estate, chattels real, chattels personal, choses in action, and reversionary interests in personalty, not being her separate property by virtue of those Acts or otherwise.

The law relating to the property of married women has been materially altered (1) by the Married Women's Property Act, 1870 (b), which came into operation on the 9th August, 1870, and (2) by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (c), which came into operation on

(a) This subject has been to some extent anticipated in the first volume, as to the disabilities of married women in reference to the sale of land and as to dower.

(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.

the 1st January, 1883, and which repeals the Act of 1870, except as regards acts done and rights acquired under it while in force.

The effect of these enactments may be thus stated:

1. Every woman who has married since the 31st December, 1882, is entitled to hold as her separate property, and to dispose of by will or otherwise, all real and personal property belonging to her at the time of the marriage or acquired by or devolving on her afterwards (d).

Effect of Acts.

Woman married since 1882 entitled to all her property for her separate use.

2. Every woman who has married before the 1st January, 1883, is entitled to hold as her separate property, and to dispose of by will or otherwise, all real and personal property, her title to which, whether vested or contingent, and whether in possession, reversion or remainder, accrues after the above date (e).

Woman married before 1st January, 1883, entitled for her separate use to property accruing in title after 1882.

3. Every woman who has married between the 9th August, 1870, and the 31st December, 1882 (inclusive), is entitled to hold as her separate property and to dispose of (1) any personal property which has come to her, since the marriage and before 1883, as next of kin or one of the next of kin of an intestate; (2) any sum of money not exceeding £200 which has come to her since the marriage under any deed or will, and Woman married since 9th August, 1870, entitled for her separate use to certain kinds of property.

(d) Sect. 2 (1882). A doubt has been expressed in some quarters as to whether, under sects. 1, 2, and 5 of the Act, a married woman can convey the legal estate in property vested in her as a trustee or executrix, otherwise than by deed acknowledged with the concurrence of her husband. It is clear that she can accept the office of trustee or executrix, and can enter into valid contracts as such, including a contract for the sale of real estate, and can give valid receipts for purchase-money; and it would be manifestly absurd if the Act, after giving her these full powers, required the husband's concurrence in the mere formal act of conveying the legal estate. It is apprehended that such a construction need not be adopted. The words "as her separate property" (which seem to have created the doubt) are intended simply to exclude the husband's interference, and may well be held applicable to any property (whether trust or beneficial) which but for the Act the husband would have had some control over. It is confidently submitted that the doubt rests on no solid foundation, and that a purchaser or mortgagee may safely take a conveyance from a female trustee, married since 1882, without requiring her acknowledgment or the concurrence of her husband, whenever the sale or mortgage is made in due exercise of the trust.

A married woman may under the Act dispose of property vested in her as a trustee or executrix, without her husband's concurrence, and without acknowledging the deed. semble.

(e) Sect. 5 (1882). Property to which a wife was entitled in reversion on the 1st January, 1883, and which has fallen into possession since, is not within this section. Reid v. Reid, 31 C. D. 402.

Married woman entitled to wages and earnings in separate employment since 8th Aug. 1870.

4. A married woman, whatever may be the date of her marriage, is entitled for her separate use to any wages, earnings, money and property, acquired or gained by her since the 8th August, 1870, in any employment, trade, or occupation in which she is engaged, or which she carries on separately from her husband, or by the exercise of any literary, artistic, or scientific skill, and all investments of such wages, earnings, moneys, or property (g).

Wife authorized by Act of 1870 to acquire separate interest in certain kinds of property.

5. By the Act of 1870, a married woman, or any woman about to be married, was enabled, by taking the steps prescribed for that purpose, to acquire a separate property in, (1) any sum forming part of the public stocks or funds, and not being less than £20; (2) fully paid-up shares or debentures, or debenture stock, or any stock to the holding of which no liability was attached, in any incorporated or joint stock company; and (3) shares, debentures or any other interests in any industrial, provident, friendly, benefit, building, or loan society duly registered (h).

Deposits in banks, stock in the funds, &c., in name of wife on 1st January, 1883, to be deemed her separate property.

6. All deposits in any post office or other savings bank or in any other bank, all annuities granted by the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, or by any other person, and all sums forming part of the public stocks or funds, or of any other stocks or funds transferable in the books of the Bank of England, or of any other bank, which on the 1st January, 1883, were standing in the sole name of a married woman, and all shares, stock, debentures, debenture stock, or other interests of or in any corporation, company, or public body, municipal, commercial, or otherwise, or of or in any industrial, provident, friendly, benefit, building, or loan society, which on that day were

7. All sums forming part of the public stocks or funds, or of any other stocks or funds transferable in the books of the Bank of England, or of any other bank, and all such deposits and annuities respectively as are mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and all shares, stock, debentures, debenture stock, and other interests of or in any such corporation, company, public body, or society as aforesaid, which on or after the 1st January, 1883, are allotted to or placed, registered, or transferred in or into or made to stand in the sole name of any married woman are to be deemed, unless and until the contrary be shown, to be her separate property. But a corporation or joint stock company will not be required to admit any married woman to be a holder of any shares or stock therein to which any liability is incident, contrary to the provisions of any Act of Parliament, charter, byelaw, articles of association, or deed of settlement regulating such corporation or company (k).

Stock, &c., hereafter transferred, &c., to a married woman to be for her separate use.

8. The above provisions extend and apply, so far as relates to the interest of the married woman, to any of the particulars aforesaid which on the 1st January, 1883, were or at any time afterwards shall be standing in, or made to stand in, the name of any married woman jointly with any persons or person other than her husband (l).

9. The wife may transfer any of the above particulars without her husband's concurrence; and if she makes any fraudulent investment in her own name with her money, he may apply to the Court for relief (m).

Husband need not join in transfers.

Settlements
not affected by Act.

10. The Act of 1882 does not interfere with or affect any settlement or agreement for a settlement made or to be made, whether before or after marriage, respecting the property of any married woman (n). Any such settlement will have effect as if the Act had not passed (o).

Husband surviving wife entitled to curtesy in land of inheritance and to administration, if she dies intestate.

It appears from what has been above stated, that when the marriage has taken place since the 31st December, 1882, or where the marriage having taken place on or before that day, the wife has acquired property afterwards, the marital right during coverture is altogether excluded. But after the coverture, if the husband survives his wife, his right in respect of any property which she may leave, and as to which she dies intestate, will be the same as under the old law. Thus, he will be entitled to curtesy in her freehold lands of inheritance, when there has been issue of the marriage (p), and will be absolutely entitled to her personal estate in his own right as regards chattels real or chattels personal in possession, and as regards choses in action on taking out administration (q).

husband married before 1883 in wife's property not within Acts.

As regards property not within the Act of 1882, the former law is still in operation, subject to the exceptions introduced by the Act of 1870. It therefore remains to consider what interest a husband takes in his wife's property subject to the old law.

Freeholds and copyholds.

As regards freehold and copyhold property, the husband is entitled to the rents and profits during the joint lives. He is also entitled, if he survives his wife, and there has been issue born alive of the marriage, to an estate during his life, called an estate by the curtesy, in any freehold property to which the wife was entitled in possession at any time during the coverture, for an estate of inheritance descendible to such issue.

On what property curtesy attaches.

The following points with respect to curtesy are settled by authority, viz., (1.) Curtesy attaches to an undivided share of land held in coparcenery, or in common, but not to land held in joint tenancy, nor to a reversion or remainder, which does not fall into possession during the coverture(r). (2.) Where contingent remainders intervene between a limitation to a wife for life and a reversion in her in fee, the right of curtesy exists until the contingency happens(s). (3.) Curtesy attaches to an equity of redemption(t), and to money directed to be laid out in land(u), and to a trust estate(x). (4.) Curtesy attaches to land belonging to the wife for her separate use, if and so far as it is not disposed of by the wife in her lifetime or by her will(y). (5.) Curtesy attaches to land of which the wife is tenant in tail, provided that a child is born capable of taking under the entail, although the wife may eventually die without issue, and to land in which the wife has an estate of inheritance subject to an executory limitation over, provided that a child is born, and the wife's estate is such as, notwithstanding the executory limitation, might have descended to such child. Thus, in a case where an estate was devised to a woman in fee, with an executory limitation over in case she should die under twenty-one and without leaving issue; the devisee had a child, the child died, and then the mother died under twenty-one, and it was held that the husband was tenant by the curtesy(z). But where there was a devise to A. in fee, and if she died leaving issue, then to such issue, it was held that as the issue took as purchasers, and could not have taken by descent, there was no curtesy(a).

There is no curtesy in copyholds except by special Copyholds. custom(b).

Husband's interest in chattels real of wife.

With respect to the chattels real of a woman married before the 1st January, 1883, not being her separate property under the above-mentioned Acts or otherwise, the husband is entitled to the rents and profits during the joint lives, and he has an absolute power of disposing of them either voluntarily or for a valuable consideration, by act inter vivos, and this power extends to reversionary and contingent interests, unless the interest is of such a nature that it cannot by possibility vest in the wife in possession during the coverture (c); but so far as this power is not exercised by a complete act during the coverture, they go to the survivor, without administration.

Chattels
personal.

The chattels personal of a wife married before the above date (not being her separate property under the Acts or otherwise) belong absolutely to the husband, so far as he obtains possession of them during the coverture. The wife's paraphernalia, viz., her wearing apparel, and ornaments suitable to her condition in life, are a partial exception to this rule. These pass to the wife if she survives, but she cannot give them away in her lifetime. The husband may dispose of them (except wearing apparel) by an act inter vivos, but not by will, and they are subject to his debts (d).

action.

With respect to the choses in action of a wife married before the above-date (not being her separate property under the above-mentioned Acts or otherwise)—which term comprises debts owing to her, arrears of rent, legacies, reversionary interests in personal estate, stock in the funds, shares in companies (e), and other personal property not in possession—the husband acquires an absolute interest in the same, so far as they are reduced by him into possession during the coverture, but not otherwise; and an assignment for a valuable consideration of the wife's choses in action by the husband is void against the wife surviving, if the husband die before he or the assignee has reduced them into possession, although they could have been immediately reduced into possession, but from neglect or other causes have been left outstanding (f).

A chose in action is considered to be reduced into possession by the husband when he receives a sum owing to his wife, or when a fund is transferred into his name, or when a fund or money belonging to the wife is transferred into the name of, or paid to, a third party at the request of the husband (g).

What amounts to a reduction into possession.

Where money is paid to the wife or her agent, it will be considered as reduced into possession, and becomes at once the husband's property (h); but where money was paid into the hands of a third party, to be appropriated to the use of a married woman, and he wrote to her informing her that he had it at her disposal, this was not considered a reduction into possession (i).

If the chose in action is recoverable at law, and the husband obtains judgment, but dies before execution, it has been held that the debt goes to the wife, and not to the husband's executor (k). On the other hand it was decided in two early cases that the order or decree of a court of equity for payment of a fund to the husband was a reduction into possession (l). The ground of these decisions appears to have been that a decree in equity was distinguishable from a judgment at law, because in the case of a judgment an ulterior step has to be taken by the party recovering to make it operate upon the thing recovered (m).

Effect of judgment at law or decree in equity.

The receipt by the husband of interest on his wife's mortgage debts or other choses in action does not constitute a reduction into possession of the principal (n). Again, a payment of the fund into Court by the trustee is not of itself a reduction into possession (o), nor a transfer by executors of a fund belonging to a married woman into the names of other trustees for her benefit(p), nor a transfer of the fund into the wife's name(q), or into the joint names of husband and wife(r). In a case where the husband was executor and trustee, it was held that his possession in that character was not a reduction into possession of the wife's share of the residue so as to entitle his executor to it, as against the wife surviving(s).

Where the chose in action cannot fall into possession during the husband's life, it is impossible for him to assign it as against his wife surviving.

In what cases
a husband can release choses in action of wife.

If the chose in action is immediately recoverable at law, it may be released by the husband.

Where a husband agreed with the executor that a legacy given to his wife should be set off against a sum of the same amount owing from him to the testator on his promissory note, and the husband and wife signed a receipt for the legacy, but it did not appear that the promissory note was given up, it was held that the wife having survived, was entitled to the legacy, no release having been given for it by the husband(t). But in a case where a married woman was entitled to a sum of money owing to her on a promissory note, and the husband agreed with the debtor that the promissory note should be cancelled, and that in consideration thereof the debtor should give his bond for the same amount to trustees nominated by the husband upon the trusts of a post-nuptial settlement, and the debtor gave such bond accordingly, it was held that this transaction amounted to a reduction into possession, and that the right of the wife by survivorship was effectually barred(u).

is of a reversionary nature, it is incapable of being reduced into possession, and therefore cannot be affected by any act of the husband so as to bind the wife surviving; and where a wife has a present life interest in a fund, that portion of the life interest which will remain to her after her husband's death, if she survives him, is reversionary within the meaning of the rule, and cannot be disposed of by the husband (x). It has been sometimes attempted to evade this rule and to bring the reversionary interest of the wife into the possession and control of the husband by obtaining a surrender or release of the prior interest; but it has been held that such a scheme is ineffectual. Thus, where a fund in Court was subject to a trust for a husband for life, remainder to his wife for life, remainder to their son absolutely. The husband and son by deed surrendered and released their respective interests to the wife for the purpose of giving her a present absolute interest in the fund; a petition by the three for payment of the fund to the son was refused on the ground that a court of equity will not establish an equitable merger by analogy to law, where the effect would be to defeat its own rules and practice in the protection of married women from the marital control (y).

But the husband and wife may together, by a deed acknowledged by the latter, dispose of a reversionary interest in money charged on land, or in money to arise from the sale of land impressed with a trust for sale (z), and also of a reversionary interest in any personal estate to which the wife has become entitled under any instrument made after the 31st of December, 1857 (except such interest in personal estate as may have been settled on her by any settlement, or agreement for a settlement, made on the occasion of her marriage, and except also any interest which by the terms of the instrument she is restrained from alienating), and may also release or extinguish any

joint tenancy.

The marriage before the recent Act of a female joint tenant severs the joint tenancy as regards any property which, by the mere act of marriage, vests in the husband, i.e., personal chattels in possession, but not as regards chattels real or choses in action (b).

II. The wife's equity to a settlement in respect of property accruing to her during the coverture not subject to the above-mentioned Acts.

Equity to a settlement,
what it is.

A chose in action of the wife, not being her separate property under the above-mentioned Acts or otherwise, may be paid or transferred to the husband, or to his assignee, or to trustees for his benefit (c), by the trustee or other person in whose hands or name it is, at any time before proceedings have been instituted for a settlement; but should such trustee or other person refuse to pay it over, the Court will, in an action by the husband to recover it, oblige him to make a reasonable provision thereout for his wife and children (d). This right of the wife is called "her equity to a settlement." And the wife may herself take proceedings to assert this equity.

Amount to be settled depends upon circumstances.

The general rule is to settle one half on the wife, and to pay the other half to the husband or his assignees; but the Court, in determining what will be a reasonable provision, will be guided in each case by all the circumstances, such as the amount of the fund, the provision that may have been already made for the wife, the amount of property of the wife of which her husband may have previously possessed himself, the means which may be available for her support, &c., &c. Thus, in several cases where the fund was small, and the wife and children had no other means of support, the Court has settled the whole fund (e). And in other cases, where ample provision has been already made for the wife and children, the Court has declined to order any settlement (f).

The wife is able, however, to waive her right to a settlement on examination in Court at any time before a settlement (although it may have been previously claimed by her (g)) is actually executed, but not so as to affect any interest which the children may have previously acquired under agreement (h). And now, under 20 & 21 Vict. c. 57, she is able by deed acknowledged under the Fines and Recoveries Act, with the concurrence of her husband, to release or extinguish her right or equity to a settlement out of any personal estate to which she, or her husband in her right, may be entitled in possession under any instrument made after the 31st of December, 1857. It will be remarked that the Act makes no provision for enabling the wife to release her equity to a settlement out of personal estate derived under an intestacy.

Except in cases coming within the operation of the last-mentioned Act, the wife cannot deprive herself of her equity to a settlement otherwise than by examination in Court. Hence, a trustee having in his hands money belonging absolutely to a married woman, although he may safely pay it to the husband, is not bound to do so even at the wife's request, but may pay it into Court under the Trustee Relief Act, so as to enable the wife to assert her equity to a settlement (i).

The wife's equity to a settlement is an obligation fastened by the Court not upon the property, but on the right to receive it, and it is only when the property comes to be payable or transferable, that the obligation will be enforced. A settlement, therefore, cannot be claimed in respect of a reversionary interest so long as it remains reversionary (k).

Wife's right to a settlement notwithstanding she may be living separate.

The wife is entitled to this equity to a settlement, although she may be living separate from her husband (l).

Again, this equity to a settlement exists as against her husband's assignees for a valuable consideration, and all other assignees, and also as against his creditors (m).

Equity, how far it attaches to life interests.

The wife has also an equity to a settlement in respect of a life interest in real or personal property, as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the husband (n), or as against the husband himself, in the event of her being deserted by him (o), but not as against a particular assignee for value of such life interest (p).

Settlement made by husband in consideration of wife's fortune, bars her right.

If, previously to marriage, the husband makes a settlement on his wife in consideration of her fortune, he would be entitled to the absolute possession of the equitable personalty of which she was then possessed (q). And if the settlement is made in consideration of the future as well as the present fortune of the wife, the title of the husband in respect of all her property would be good as against the wife's right to a settlement (r). It is to be observed, however, that although such a purchase by the husband may entitle him to call for the whole of his wife's property, he must do so during the coverture, for if he should die in the lifetime of his wife without having reduced it into possession, it will survive to the wife (s).

Cannot be enforced by children.

cannot enforce an equity for a settlement after her death, unless a decree for this purpose has been made in her lifetime (t). And this is the case even if the wife commences an action in her lifetime, but dies before a decree (u).

The proper form of a settlement is for the wife for life with remainder to such of her children, by her present or any future husband, as shall attain twenty-one, or being daughters marry, with usual clauses, and if no child, for the husband (x).

III. Trusts for the separate use of a married woman, either with or without a restraint on anticipation.

Independently of the Married Women's Property Acts, equity has always recognised the right of a married woman to the separate enjoyment of property, where it has been given upon a trust for her separate use, or where the language of the instrument of gift has shown the intention of the donor to be that she shall enjoy it independently of her husband. Thus, a bequest of stock to trustees in trust to permit a married woman to receive the income "independent of her husband" (y); a bequest of residue to a married woman and her unmarried daughter in equal shares for their own use and benefit, "independently of any other person" (z); a gift of a legacy to a married woman "for her own use and at her own disposal" (a); a bequest to trustees in trust to pay the income to a married woman, for life, "her receipt to be a sufficient discharge" (b); a bequest of bonds and mortgages to a married woman, with a direction that they should be delivered up to her "whenever she should demand or require the

But a direction to pay the capital or income to a wife "into her own proper hands for her own use and benefit" (e), or "to her own use and benefit" (f), or to her absolute use (g), or the words, "to be under her sole control" (h), or a bequest to a female and her assigns for her life for her and their own absolute use and benefit (i), have been held insufficient to create a trust for a wife's separate use. And in a case where a testator devised lands to his wife "for her sole use and benefit" without the intervention of a trustee, it was held that she did not take a separate estate (k). This case has been followed by the House of Lords (l), and it may now be considered settled that the word "sole" has not acquired a technical meaning, and will not be construed as equivalent to "separate," unless the context shows such to have been the intention (m).

Where a legacy was bequeathed to trustees for the support and maintenance of the wife of A., and for the support and education of A.'s children, and there were no children of A. at the testator's death, it was held that the wife took the legacy for her separate use (n). assigns, does not, except under the recent Act, confer upon her a separate estate in the annuity (p).

So also a settlement of personalty on the wife for life for her separate use, with remainders over, with the ultimate remainder to her executors, administrators, and assigns, does not, except under the recent Act, create a trust for her separate use as to the ultimate remainder (q).

Independently of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, all property, whether real or personal, held in trust for the separate use of a married woman, whether for an estate in fee simple (r), or for any other estate or interest (s), can be disposed of by her independently of her husband, in all respects as if she were a feme sole, and the deed of disposition need not be acknowledged.

Separate estate may be disposed of by wife.

If in a case not within the Act of 1882, land has been given to a married woman in fee simple for her separate use so that she has the legal estate as well as the equitable separate estate, it is apprehended that upon a sale or mortgage she will be able, under sect. 6 of the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, to convey the legal estate to the purchaser or mortgagee by an unacknowledged deed. The contract and payment of the consideration money will constitute her a bare trustee for the purchaser or mortgagee, and thus bring her within the operation of the section (t).

If legal estate in land given to separate use of wife is vested in her, she can convey under Vendor and Purchaser Act, semble.

A trust of the rents or income of real or personal property for the separate use of a married woman, has been usually accompanied by a clause in the nature of a restraint on anticipation, in which case her power is restricted to that of receiving the income as it becomes due, and she is absolutely incompetent to make any disposition of the rents or income before they accrue due, and until lately she could not give a valid power of attorney to receive them (u), nor could the Court release the restriction, although it would be clearly for her benefit so to do (x). But it is now provided by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, that, notwithstanding that a married woman is restrained from anticipation, the Court may, if it thinks fit, where it appears to the Court to be for her benefit, by judgment or order, with her consent, bind her interest in any property (y), and the Act also empowers a married woman by deed to appoint an attorney for the purpose of executing any deed or doing any act which she herself might do (z).

A direction that the income shall be paid from time to time into the proper hands of the wife will not amount to a restraint on anticipation (a). So in a case (b) where stock was covenanted to be transferred to trustees to pay the dividends to such persons, and in such proportions as the wife, during her coverture, should, notwithstanding her coverture, by any note or writing under her hand appoint, and, in default of appointment, into her proper hands, the Court decreed a transfer of the fund to the husband with the wife's consent. Again, where a testator devised an estate to trustees in trust to pay the rents, &c., for the separate use of his wife for her life, and to pay the same as the same should become due and payable into her hands, and not otherwise, and he declared that her receipt alone for what should be actually paid into her own proper hands for such rents should be a good and sufficient discharge to the trustees; these words were held not to amount to a restraint on alienation (c).

On the other hand, a direction that the receipt of the wife for the annual income after it shall have become due, shall be a sufficient discharge (d); or that the receipt of the wife alone, or of some person authorized by her to receive payment of the income after such shall have become due, shall be a sufficient discharge (e), has been held sufficient to restrain her from anticipating the income. The question to be considered in cases of this kind is, whether the words used are used for the purpose of unfolding what is implied in the gift to the separate use, or for the more extended purpose of modifying and controlling the gift (f). Again, where property was limited for the whole and sole separate use of a married woman, and not to be sold or mortgaged, it was held that an intention to restrain anticipation was sufficiently indicated (g). So where lands were devised to the use of E., the rents of which she was to receive from the tenants herself while she lived, whether married or single, followed by a declaration that no sale or mortgage should take place during the life of E., it was held that E. was entitled for her separate use, without power of anticipation (h).

A restraint on anticipation may be annexed not only to a trust of income, but also to a limitation of the fee simple of land, or to an absolute gift of consols or other personal property. The result of the cases on this subject may be thus stated: (1) If a legacy or share of residue is given to a married woman, or a trustee for her, "for her separate use without power of anticipation," without any direction as to the payment or transfer of it to her, the testator will be supposed to intend that the executor shall retain and invest the corpus, and pay the income to her, and the restraint will take effect (i). (2) If a legacy or share of residue is directed to be paid or transferred to a married woman "for her separate use without power of anticipation," such a direction negatives any right in the executor or trustee to retain the money, and the restraint on anticipation is repugnant and void (k). (3) If the gift is Restraint on anticipation not affected by Act of 1882.

It is provided by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, that nothing therein contained shall interfere with or render inoperative any restriction against anticipation attached or to be attached to the enjoyment of any property or income by a woman under any settlement, agreement for a settlement, will, or other instrument, but so that no restriction on anticipation contained in any settlement of a woman's own property by herself shall have any validity against debts contracted by her before marriage(m).

A gift for separate use without the intervention of trustees, makes husband a trustee until wife assents to the destruction of the separate trust.

Where money or other property has been given to the separate use of a wife without the intervention of trustees, and has been paid or transferred to the husband, the separate trust remains attached to it unless and until it is shown, or can be inferred from the circumstances, that she has assented to its being freed from that trust. Such an inference will be made if the husband, with the acquiescence of the wife, uses the money in trade or in his family expenditure(n). But in a case where a married woman to whom a legacy had been given, received from the executor a country cheque which she endorsed and handed over to her husband, whose bankers received it and by his direction placed the money to his deposit account, it was held on the evidence that the wife did not intend to give the cheque to her husband, and that it was still her separate estate(o).

Separate income of wife, how long it remains her separate property.

In like manner the separate income of a wife remains her separate property so long as it is retained in the hands of the trustees of the settlement, or is paid to her separate account at a bank, or to any person by her order and as her trustee, or if paid into her own hands remains under her separate control; and any stock or other property, including real estate (p), or personal chattels (q), purchased with the savings of her separate income, is also her separate property. But if the income is paid to the husband with the wife's acquiescence, a gift of such income from her to him will be presumed (r); and where the trust money is lent to the husband with the wife's consent, and he retains it for some time without paying interest, there will be a similar presumption as regards such interest (s).

Savings of separate income.

Payment of income to husband with wife's consent.

When property is given in trust to pay the income to a woman who is unmarried at the date of the gift for her separate use, either with or without a restraint on anticipation, the separate trust attaches upon her subsequent marriage. In like manner a similar trust in favour of a married woman who becomes a widow and then marries again, revives on her second marriage (t), unless confined by the express terms of the instrument to the first coverture (u). In these cases the income which is received by the cestui que trust while discover, or by any person on her behalf, from the trustees of the fund, becomes her absolute property, and if unspent at the time of her subsequent marriage would, under the law as it stood prior to the Act of 1882, have passed to the husband in his marital right (x). But if it should happen that any part of such income, although received by the trustees, has not been paid over by them to the cestui que trust or to any person on her behalf at the time of the marriage, the separate trust attaches to the money retained in the hands of the trustees (y).

So also a trust of corpus for separate use comes into operation on marriage.

So also a trust for separate use annexed to the corpus of property, whether real or personal, given to an unmarried woman who has afterwards married (before the recent Act) will have come into operation on the marriage, provided that she did no act while discoverd to destroy the separate trust. Thus, in a case where a leasehold house and the furniture in it were given by will without the intervention of trustees to a single woman for her separate use, and she subsequently married, and after the marriage she and her husband took possession of the house and furniture, it was held that they retained their separate character, and were not liable to the husband's debt (z).

What acts of the wife will put an end to the separate trust.

In order to keep alive the separate trust, the property must have remained in the same state until the marriage. Thus, where a sum of stock given by will to a single woman for her separate use without power of anticipation was at her request transferred into her name by the executors, and she sold it out and spent part of the money, and with the remainder bought some bank shares and Canada bonds, and then married (before the recent Act), the Court held that the bank shares and Canada bonds belonged to her husband free from any trust (a). It seems to have been the opinion of the V.-C. in this case that the act which destroyed the separate trust was not the transfer of the stock to the lady, but her sale of it, and that if the stock had remained in her name up to the marriage, it would have been her separate property after that event.

Her contracts.

Independently of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a contract entered into by a married woman for a valuable consideration for the mortgage or other disposition of her separate estate is binding on her (b), and she is entitled to enter into a contract for the purchase of property out of her separate estate (c); and the separate estate is bound, whether it is referred to in the contract or not (d). Also an agreement for a valuable consideration by a married woman to execute a power limited to her will be enforced (e).

When furniture belonging to the husband is by an ante-nuptial settlement assigned to a trustee for the separate use of the wife, it will not pass to the trustee in bankruptcy of the husband as being in his order and disposition at the time of the bankruptcy (f), nor need the assignment be registered under the Bills of Sale Acts, marriage settlements being expressly excluded from the operation of those Acts (g). But a post-nuptial settlement is not within the exception, and must be registered (h). If registered, it will prevail against the husband's creditors, although the goods may be in his house at the time of his bankruptcy (i), subject, however, in case the settlement is voluntary, to the operation of sect. 47 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883.

Wife's right to furniture settled to separate use against husband's assignees.

IV. The liability of the wife's separate property, and of the husband for her debts and engagements contracted during the coverture, and before the marriage, respectively.

Previously to the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a married woman could not enter into any contract on which she was liable to be personally sued (k), but if she had separate property, she might, as an incident of such property, contract debts and engagements to be paid and satisfied out of it, and the Court would enforce payment accordingly (l). It was not necessary that the contract should refer in terms to the separate property ; it was sufficient if an intention to charge it could be collected from the nature of the contract or from the circumstances. Thus bonds, bills, promissory notes, and other written obligations were enforced against the separate property, because these acts would otherwise be nugatory, and consequently an intention to charge would be presumed (m).

General engagements.

With regard to mere general engagements, such as tradesmen's bills and claims of that nature, the question in each case depended on whether credit was given to the wife. Thus, if the wife was living separately from her husband the inference would generally be that the credit was given to her, though if they were living together, it would be more reasonable to suppose that she intended her husband to pay (n).

By Act of 1882 wife rendered capable of incurring debts and liabilities and of suing and being sued in respect of her separate property.

It is now provided by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, that a married woman shall be capable of entering into, and rendering herself liable in respect of, and to the extent of her separate property, on any contract, and of suing and being sued, either in contract or in tort, or otherwise, and any damages or costs recovered by her in any such action or proceeding shall be her separate property ; and any damages or costs recovered against her in any such action or proceeding shall be payable out of her separate property, and not otherwise. And it is also provided that every contract entered into by a married woman shall be deemed to be a contract entered into by her with respect to and to bind her separate property unless the contrary be shown (o).

Before the Act, a wife might contract with her husband in respect of her separate estate, and the husband could sue her in equity on any such contract. This right of the husband is not taken away by the Act, and he may now maintain an action against his wife, and recover out of any property made her separate property by the Act any money advanced by him to her since the marriage (p).

Before the Act it was held that the general engagements of a married woman were enforceable against the separate estate belonging to her at the time of the contract, if and so far as the same remained vested in her at the date of the judgment, and did not prevent an intermediate alienation (q). It is conceived that the law is the same as regards general engagements entered into since the Act.

General engagements do not prevent subsequent alienation of separate property.

It was held before the Act that the general engagements of a married woman could not be enforced against any separate estate acquired by her after the date of the contract (r). It is now provided that any contract entered into by a married woman with respect to and to bind her separate property shall bind not only the separate property which she was possessed of or entitled to at the date of the contract, but also all separate property which she may afterwards acquire (s). It has been held that this enactment only applies where the married woman has some existing separate property at the date of the contract (t).

General engagements could not before the Act be enforced against separate property subsequently acquired, but they may now.

If property is settled in trust for the separate use of a married woman for life, with a power for her to appoint the corpus by deed or will, with an ultimate trust for her executors or administrators, the property so settled is subject, both before and since the new Act, to her general engagements (u). So, also, the execution of a general power by will by a married woman has the effect of making the property appointed liable for her debts and other liabilities in the same manner as her separate estate (x).

Property over which wife has general power of appointment, and also property appointed under general testamentary power liable to debts.

of executrix without his consent, nor give discharges for payments made to her in that character. The husband in his marital right was entitled to dispose of the personal estate vested in his wife as executrix, or to give receipts for or release debts due to the testator's estate (y); and he was liable for assets received or devastavits committed by him or his wife during the coverture (z). But since the new Act, a wife may accept the office of trustee, executrix, or administratrix, and may convey, assign, and deal with the trust property, and otherwise act in the trust as if she were a feme sole, and she will be liable in respect and to the extent of her separate property for all breaches of trust and devastavits, and her husband will (it is apprehended) have no right to intermeddle, and will be free from all liability for his wife's acts (a).

Whether a wife has or has not separate property, her husband is not liable for debts contracted by her during the marriage, unless he has given her authority to pledge his credit. Whether she has such an authority is a question of fact or reasonable presumption to be determined in each case according to the circumstances. While they live together, it will be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that he has authorized her to give orders to tradesmen for such things as fall within the domestic department ordinarily entrusted to the wife's management, e. g., the supply of provisions for the house, clothing for the members of the family, and things of that sort (b). The presumption may be rebutted by evidence that he has supplied her with sufficient money to buy the necessary articles, and has expressly ordered her not to get them on credit, subject, however, to the qualification, that if he has up to the time of giving such order acted in such a manner as to lead tradesmen to suppose that the authority exists, he would be bound to inform them of its withdrawal (c).

If the husband and wife are living separately, the wife has no authority to pledge her husband's credit, except as a matter of necessity, as where she has been deserted or forced to leave her home, and she has no sufficient means of her own. If they separate by mutual consent, there is no implied authority, so long as he makes her an adequate allowance, and duly pays it (d).

No presumption if living separate, except as a matter of necessity.

It has been held that a person advancing money to a married woman who has been deserted by her husband, which money has been laid out in necessities for her, is in a court of equity entitled to stand in the place of the persons who actually supplied those necessities, and to recover the money from the husband (e).

Right of person who has advanced money to wife for necessities.

Until the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, a husband was liable to all his wife's debts contracted before marriage, on the principle that as he took her property so he ought to take her liabilities. The husband and wife had to be sued jointly, and if no action was brought during the coverture, and the wife survived, her liability revived; but if the husband survived, his liability ceased (f). In a late case (g), it was held that property settled by a woman on her marriage for her separate use was liable, after her husband's bankruptcy, for debts contracted by her before marriage.

Before Act of 1870, husband was liable for his wife's debts contracted before marriage.

By the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, it was provided (h) that a husband should not, by reason of any marriage which should take place after it came into operation (on 9th August, 1870), be liable for the debts of his wife contracted before marriage, but the wife should be liable to be sued for, and any property belonging to her for her separate use should be liable to satisfy such debts as if she had continued unmarried.

Act of 1870 makes wife liable in respect of her separate property and husband not liable.

ried (i). The effect of this enactment was that if a woman possessed of property, and owing debts, married without a settlement, so that her property passed to her husband, her creditors were without remedy. The Act deprived them of the right to sue the husband, and it would have been of no use to sue the wife, as she would have no property to meet the demand.

Amendment
Act of 1874
revives husband's liability to extent of assets acquired from wife.

This defect was remedied by the Married Women's Property Act Amendment Act, 1874 (k), which repeals, so far as respects marriages after the 30th July, 1874, so much of the Act of 1870 as enacted that a husband should not be liable for the debts of his wife contracted before marriage, and substitutes other provisions, making the husband liable in a joint action brought against both to the extent only of the assets therein specified, being in effect all property acquired by him in his wife's right, or which he might with reasonable diligence have so acquired.

Provision of Act of 1882 as to liability of wife for her ante-nuptial debts,

The Acts of 1870 and 1874 are, both of them, repealed by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, by which last-mentioned Act it is provided, that a woman after her marriage shall continue to be liable in respect and to the extent of her separate property for all debts contracted and all contracts entered into, or wrongs committed by her before her marriage, including any sum for which she may be liable as a contributory under the Act relating to joint stock companies, and that all sums recovered against her in respect thereof as for costs, shall be payable out of her separate property, and that between her and her husband, unless there be any contract between them to the contrary, her separate property shall be primarily liable for all such debts, contracts, or wrongs, and all damages and costs recovered in respect thereof (l). But this provision is not to increase or decrease the liability of any woman married before the commencement of the Act for any such debt, contract, or wrong as aforesaid, except as to any separate property to which she might become entitled by that Act, and to which she would not have been entitled under the Acts of 1870 and 1874, or otherwise, if that Act had not passed. And it is also provided that a husband shall be liable for the debts of his wife contracted, and all contracts entered into or wrongs committed by her before marriage, to the extent of all property of the wife acquired by him from or through her, but this provision is not to increase or diminish the liability of any husband incurred before the commencement of the Act.

On the death of the wife, the husband's liability for her debts ceases, if he was married before 1883 (m), but if the marriage was after that date, it is apprehended that his liability, to the extent of property acquired by him from or through her, continues (n).

Husband's liability ceases on wife's death.

The Act of 1882 does not abolish the liability of the husband for his wife's wrongful acts during the coverture (o).

The contracts and engagements of a married woman cannot be enforced against income which she is restrained from anticipating, nor can she be made liable thereout, for the consequences of fraud committed by her (p), or be committed to prison, under sect. 5 of the Debtors Act, 1869, for non-payment of debt, when such income constitutes her only means of payment (q). But a restraint on anticipation contained in a marriage settlement of the wife's own property has no validity against debts contracted by her before marriage (r).

Restraint on anticipation a protection against post-nuptial, but not ante-nuptial debts.

to the bankruptcy laws as if she were a feme sole. It has been held that the expression "separate property" does not include property over which she has only a general power of appointment, and that she cannot be compelled to execute the power in favour of the trustee in bankruptcy (t).

V. The effect of desertion, or separation, as to the wife's property, and her capacity to contract.

Deserted wife may now obtain order to protect earnings.

A woman deserted by her husband is empowered by the Divorce Act, 1857 (u), to apply to a magistrate, or to justices in Petty Sessions, or to the Divorce Court, for an order to protect "any money or property she may acquire by her own lawful industry, and property which she may become possessed of after such desertion, against her husband, or his creditors, or any person claiming under him."

After judicial separation wife to be deemed a feme sole as to property, and for purposes of contract, and of suing and being sued;

By sect. 25 of the same Act it is provided that in every case of a judicial separation the wife shall from the date of the sentence and whilst the separation shall continue, be considered as a feme sole with respect to property of every description which she may acquire, or which may come to or devolve upon her; and such property may be disposed of by her in all respects as a feme sole, and on her decease the same shall, in case she shall die intestate, go as the same would have gone if her husband had been then dead; provided that if any such wife should again cohabit with her husband, all such property as she may be entitled to when such cohabitation shall take place shall be held to her separate use, subject, however, to any agreement in writing made between her husband and herself whilst separate. And (by sect. 26) that in every case of a judicial separation the wife shall, whilst so separated, be considered as a feme sole, for the purposes of contract, and wrongs and injuries, and suing and being sued in any civil proceeding, and her husband shall not be liable in respect of any engagement or contract she may have entered into, or for any wrongful act or omission by her, or for any costs she may incur as plaintiff or defendant, provided that where upon any such judicial separation alimony has been decreed or ordered to be paid to the wife, and the same shall not be duly paid by the husband, he shall be liable for necessaries supplied for her use, provided also that nothing shall prevent the wife from joining at any time during such separation in the exercise of any joint power given to herself and her husband (x).

By the Divorce Act Amendment Act (y), it is declared that the provisions contained in that Act and in the Divorce Act respecting the property of a wife who has obtained a decree for judicial separation, or an order for protection, shall be deemed to extend to property to which such wife has become or shall become entitled as executrix, administratrix, or trustee, since the sentence of separation or the commencement of the desertion (as the case may be); and the death of the testator or intestate shall be deemed to be the time when such wife became entitled as executrix or administratrix.

and also as regards property belonging to her as executrix or trustee.

In the case of a judicial separation, or of the wife obtaining a protection order, she is entitled absolutely not only to property given to her afterwards (z), but also to property which was reversionary or not reduced into possession before the separation or protection order, and which falls into possession, or she reduces into possession afterwards (a). But sect. 25 of the Act of 1857 does not apply to property belonging to the wife in possession at the date of the separation decree, and if she is entitled to income for her separate use without power of anticipation, the restraint on anticipation remains in force (b).

Protecting order should be general.

After divorce or judicial separation, Court may order settlement for benefit of innocent party and children.

After (but not after judicial separation) Court may alter ante-nuptial or post-nuptial settlement.

Power of wife during transportation of husband.

A protecting order should be in general terms, for the Court has no power to decide what title the wife has to specific property (c).

By the Divorce Act, 1857, it is provided that in any case in which the Court shall pronounce a sentence of divorce or judicial separation for adultery of the wife, if it shall be made to appear to the Court that the wife was entitled to any property either in possession or reversion, it shall be lawful for the Court, if it should think proper, to order such settlement as it shall think reasonable to be made of such property, or any part thereof, for the benefit of the innocent party, and of the children of the marriage or either of them (d).

Before the passing of the Divorce Amendment Act, the Court had no jurisdiction to release a husband from the stipulations contained in his marriage settlement after a decree for dissolution of his marriage (e).

By that Act, however, it is provided that the Court, after a final decree of nullity of marriage or dissolution of marriage, may inquire into the existence of ante-nuptial or post-nuptial settlements made on the parties, and may make such orders with reference to the application of the whole or a portion of the property settled either for the benefit of the children of the marriage, or of their respective parents, as to the Court shall seem fit (f).

It has been held that a separation deed is a post-nuptial settlement for the purpose of the last-mentioned enactment, and that the Court may, after a dissolution of the marriage, relieve a husband from a covenant in a separation deed (g). But this power cannot be exercised after a judicial separation (h).

If the husband abandon his country or is transported, it appears that during the period of such abandonment or transportation, and until his actual return, the wife may contract, pay, and receive money, or sue and be sued as a single woman ⁽ⁱ⁾.

By the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1878 ^(k), it is provided that if a husband shall be convicted summarily or otherwise of an aggravated assault upon his wife, the Court or magistrate may, if satisfied that her future safety is in peril, order that the wife shall be no longer bound to cohabit with her husband, and such order is to have the force and effect of a decree of judicial separation on the ground of cruelty.

Conviction of husband for assault on wife may have effect of judicial separation.

SETTLEMENTS.

Division of subject.

In this Dissertation it is proposed to consider—
I. Settlements generally. II. Voluntary dispositions, how far they are valid as against (1) subsequent purchasers, (2) creditors, and (3) the settlor himself and his representatives; and III. Stamps on Settlements.

I. Settlements generally (a).

Trusts for payment of income during lives of husband and wife.

In settlements of personal estate made upon marriage, the first trusts (after providing for the investment of the trust funds) generally relate to the destination of the income during the lives of the husband and wife. When the property settled comes from the husband, the first life interest is, except under special circumstances, given to him. When, on the other hand, the wife makes the settlement, it is usual to give her the income during the coverture for her separate use, without power of anticipation, but the husband is sometimes permitted to receive the income of his wife's as well as of his own property, charged with the payment to the wife of an annual sum during the coverture, or even without such charge (b).

* Observations on the question whether the wife or husband should have the first life interest in the wife's property.

(a) It is considered that the practice as to marriage settlements has not been materially affected by the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882. That Act prevents the husband from taking possession of, or pledging, his wife's property without her consent, but does not fulfil the main object of a settlement, viz., the securing of a certain provision for the issue of the marriage, which will be safe against the engagements of the husband, and now of the wife also.

* (b) When the property settled by the wife is of moderate amount and the husband has means of his own, or is in a trade or profession, the arrangement by which the wife takes the whole income during the joint lives is a reasonable and convenient one, as it secures an inalienable provision for the family free from the husband's obligations. But if the wife's property is large the case is different, particularly if the husband has little or nothing, and is in no business or profession.

Sometimes it is desired, particularly if the husband is improvident, or is in embarrassed circumstances, or is engaged in a hazardous business, to make his life interest determinable on his bankruptcy, or on his attempting to alien or charge it. With regard to clauses of this description, the following points may be considered as settled :—

Gifts over on alienation or bankruptcy, &c.

1. That where the property settled comes from the wife, or from any other source than the husband himself, a gift over on the husband's bankruptcy or alienation is valid (c). And this is the case where the wife becomes entitled to money after the marriage, and she and her husband join in so settling it (d). 2. That where the property settled comes from the husband himself, such a gift over is invalid as against his trustee in bankruptcy (e), but good against his alienees (f). 3. That where the husband receives part of his wife's fortune on marriage and settles property of his own upon himself for life with a gift over on bankruptcy, &c., the wife will be considered as a purchaser of the property so settled to the extent of her fortune received by the husband, and consequently the gift over will to that extent be valid against the husband's trustee in bankruptcy (g). 4. That a mere condition annexed to the gift of a life interest that the donee shall not alien, unless followed by a gift over, or unless the destination of the income

Cases in which such gifts over are valid.

It is not desirable, in the interest of either party, that the husband, on whom the law throws the burden of maintaining the family, should be entirely dependent on his wife for the means of doing so; and this is more especially the case where the property is a landed estate.

and by a separate deed executed at the same time he covenanted with the trustees that he would not alien or encumber his life estate, and that if he did, then the trustees should apply the rents for the benefit of A. and his wife and children, or any of them at their discretion. A. afterwards charged his life estate for valuable consideration in favour of persons who had no notice of the second deed, and it was held that the second deed was fraudulent and void as against them. The ground of this decision was, it is conceived, the covenant being contained in a separate and, as it were, secret deed.

(g) Lester v. Garland, 5 Sim. 205. See also Ex parte Cooke, 8 Ves. 358; Ex parte Hodgson, 19 Ves. 206.

during the rest of the life of the donee is in some way provided for by the instrument, will be inoperative (h). 5. That a clause forfeiting a life interest on the bankruptcy of the donee, though in terms referring to a future bankruptcy, takes effect, where the donee is an uncertificated bankrupt, at the date of the instrument of gift (i). 6. That if the bankruptcy is annulled before the life interest falls into possession, or before any payment has become due in respect thereof, there is no forfeiture (j), and this rule has been applied to an immediate life interest given by a will, where the annulment took place nine months after the testator's death, but before the assets were realised (k). But where there is a realised fund on which income has accrued while the bankruptcy was in force, the fact that it is not actually paid over to the trustee in bankruptcy, or claimed by him before the annulment, does not, it is apprehended, prevent a forfeiture (l).

A life interest, subject to a gift over in case the donee shall assign, mortgage, or in any manner anticipate the income, is not forfeited by an involuntary alienation, e.g., bankruptcy (m); but it is otherwise if the gift over is in case the donee shall "do or suffer," or shall "do or permit" anything whereby the property shall be assigned or charged, &c. (n).

Trusts for issue

in default of appointment for the children equally, the shares of sons to vest at twenty-one, and the shares of daughters to vest at twenty-one or marriage, with a provision that any appointed share should be brought into hotchpot.

The advantage of extending the power to remoter issue is, that if a son to whom no share has been appointed, should die, leaving issue, the donees of the power are enabled to provide for such issue; and other cases may happen in which it may be desirable that grandchildren should be provided for, either by way of executory limitation after a life interest given to their father or mother, or without any such intermediate interest.

The maintenance clause which used to be inserted as a common form in settlements, may now be safely omitted, having regard to sect. 43 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, which is as follows:—

Maintenance clause may now be omitted.

- (1.) Where any property is held by trustees in trust for an infant, either for life or for any greater interest, and whether absolutely, or contingently on his attaining the age of twenty-one years or on the occurrence of any event before his attaining that age, the trustees may, at their sole discretion, pay to the infant's parent or guardian, if any, or otherwise apply for or towards the infant's maintenance, education or benefit, the income of that property, or any part thereof, whether there is any other fund applicable to the same purpose, or any person bound by law to provide for the infant's maintenance or education, or not.
- (2.) The trustees shall accumulate all the residue of that income in the way of compound interest by investing the same and the resulting income thereof from time to time on securities on which they are by the settlement, if any, or by law, authorized to invest trust money, and shall hold those accumulations for the benefit of the person who ultimately becomes entitled to the property from which the same arise; but so that the trustees may at any time, if they think fit, apply those accumulations, or any part thereof, as if the same were income arising in the then current year.

Provisions in recent Act as to maintenance, and accumulation of surplus income.

Advancement
clause.

The advancement clause, according to the usual form, enables the trustees to raise any part not exceeding one half of a child's vested or presumptive share, and apply it for his or her advancement, preferment, or benefit. It has been held that the word "benefit" has a more extensive application than "advancement" or "preferment," and authorizes the payment of debts incurred by the object of the power (o). And under this power, money can be raised for maintenance (p).

Ultimate trusts in default of issue.

If there are no issue of the marriage who live to attain a vested interest, it is usually provided that the trust property, if settled by the husband, shall revert to him, and if settled by the wife, shall revert to her, if she survives the coverture, but if not, shall go to her appointees by will, or in default of appointment, to her next of kin, under the Statutes of Distribution, as if she had died intestate and without having been married (q).

alternate trusts.

It will be borne in mind, that as a marriage may now be dissolved otherwise than by the death of one of the parties, the alternative events to be provided for in the ultimate trusts of the wife's property are, not the wife surviving or dying in the lifetime of her husband, but the wife surviving, or dying during the continuance of the coverture. Otherwise, should the marriage be dissolved by a divorce, the wife, though the innocent party, would not, according to the terms of the deed, take an absolute interest in her property, unless she also survived her husband (r).

(q) With respect to women married before the 1st January, 1883, it was usual and proper in settlements to give to the wife a testamentary power of appointment whether she survived her husband or not, because if given to her in the latter event only, a will made during the coverture would not have taken effect had she survived. Willock v. Noble, L. R. 7 H. L.

The ultimate trust, in default of appointment by will and in case the wife dies during the coverture, should be in favour of the persons who would have taken under the Statutes of Distribution if the wife had died intestate, without having been married. If the word "unmarried" is used, it will be construed to mean "without leaving a husband;" and, consequently, if it should happen that the wife dies, leaving the husband and one infant child, and such child subsequently dies an infant, the whole fund would go to the husband as the next of kin of such child (s).

Construction of word "unmarried" in ultimate trust.

A provision for bringing into settlement after-acquired property of the wife is frequently inserted. Since the Act of 1882, such a provision is no longer required in order to protect the property from the claims of the husband, but it will still be necessary where it is wished to secure it for the children of the marriage, or where it is thought for other reasons undesirable that the wife should have the absolute control over it.

Provision for settling after-acquired property.

With respect to the construction of provisions of this nature, the following points have been decided:—

1. That a covenant to settle all the property to which the wife shall become entitled during the coverture, does not include property in which the wife has at the time of the marriage a vested interest in possession (t). But if the words "or the husband in her right" are added, it has been held in some cases that property in possession is included, on the ground that the husband's acquisition of it by the act of marriage is an acquisition by him during the coverture (u). In on the day of the divorce, and the fund was accordingly ordered to be paid to the wife, notwithstanding (in the two latter cases) that the settlement gave the husband a life interest in the event of his being the survivor. But these decisions have been disapproved of in Fitzgerald v. Chapman, 1 Ch. D. 563. See also Burton v. Sturgeon, 2 Ch. D. 318.

That a covenant in this form includes property to which the wife is at the date of the settlement entitled in reversion, whether for a vested or contingent interest, and which interest falls into possession during the coverture. property is to be conveyed to the trustees by the husband and wife (e), or by all proper parties (f), or shall be conveyed without saying by whom, in all these cases the wife and her separate property are bound (g); but if the agreement is merely that the husband shall convey, or join with the wife in conveying, &c., the husband only is bound (h). Covenant does not apply to legacy accruing under sect. 33 of Wills Act, quare.

It has been held by Vice-Chancellor Kindersley, that property bequeathed by a testator to his daughter who died in his lifetime, but whose husband and child survived him, and which property consequently came within the 33rd section of the Wills Act (s), was not subject to a covenant contained in the daughter's marriage settlement for settling her after-acquired property. His Honour thought that the fiction introduced by the 33rd section of the Wills Act was not to be extended further than was necessary to prevent a lapse (t).

Power to wife to appoint to future husband and issue of future marriage.

When the property settled on the part of the wife is of considerable amount, it is desirable that a power should be reserved to her to appoint a portion of the trust funds in favour of a second husband, and the issue of a second marriage. In the absence of such a power, the wife may be left a widow by her first husband with only one child, and if she marries again, the whole of her fortune will go to the child of the first marriage, to the exclusion of the family, however large, of the second marriage. And the same observation applies sometimes as regards the property settled by the husband.

Sometimes the object above referred to is attained by making the trust fund divisible under the terms of the original trust among the children of the wife or husband, as the case may be, by any marriage. If this is done, care should be taken to insert a power to the settlor to revoke, in case of there being a failure of issue of the first marriage.

Sometimes the original trust is for children by any marriage.

Where the property to be settled consists of land, and it is desired to settle it so that the children shall take equally, the proper mode of attaining that object is by conveying it to trustees in trust for sale, either at once, or after limitations to the husband and wife successively for life, and then settling the proceeds as personal estate, with a proviso that, until sale, the rents and profits shall be paid and applied in the same manner as the income of the proceeds would be applicable if a sale had been made. The trust for sale is mere machinery to effect a division of the property, without the necessity of the complicated and inconvenient limitations which would be necessary if the land were settled as real estate.

Form of settlement of land, where children are to take equally.

In the case of an old family estate, it is generally wished to make what is called a strict settlement, i. e., to limit it after the decease of the settlor to the first and other sons successively according to seniority in tail male, charged with an annual sum by way of jointure to the wife if she survives her husband, and with portions for the younger sons and daughters of the marriage.

Strict settlement.

Before the passing of the Settled Land Act, 1882, it was usual and proper to insert in settlements of this kind powers enabling the tenant for life to grant leases, and enabling the trustees, on the request of the tenant for life, to sell and exchange, and where the nature of the property required, to enfranchise copyholds held of a settled manor, and to make partitions. In the absence of such powers, it was necessary to apply to the Court whenever it was wished to lease for more than twenty-one years, or to sell or exchange, or make a partition.

Powers of leasing, sale, &c., generally introduced into settlements before recent Act.

But it is now provided by the Settled Land Act,

Powers given by Settled

Land Act to a
tenant for life.

1882 (u), which commenced from the 31st December, 1882, that every tenant for life under a settlement, whether made before or after the commencement of the Act, may sell the settled land or any easement, right, or privilege of any kind over or in relation to the same, may enfranchise copyholds held of any settled manor, may make exchanges and partitions, may grant leases—in the case of a building lease, for ninety-nine years, of a mining lease for sixty years, and of any other lease for twenty-one years—may grant licences to copyholders to lease, and may raise money for equality of exchange or partition by mortgage, subject as to all these powers to the conditions prescribed by the Act (x). But the principal mansion house on any settled land, and the demesnes thereof, and other lands usually occupied therewith, cannot be sold or leased by the tenant for life without the consent of the trustees or an order of the Court (y).

How capital money arising under Act may be applied.

The moneys to arise on any sale, &c., and all other moneys coming within the description of capital money arising under the Act, are to be paid either to the trustees of the settlement or into Court at the option of the tenant for life (z), but there must be at least two trustees to receive it, unless the settlement authorizes the receipt of capital money by one (a). The money, when received, may be invested or applied in various modes specified in the Act, including securities authorized by law or by the terms of the settlement, the discharge of incumbrances, the payment for improvements on the settled estate, the purchase of the seignory of any settled land, or of the reversion of settled leaseholds, the purchase of land in fee simple or copyhold land, or leasehold land held for at least sixty years, and the purchase of mines and minerals, either in fee simple, or for a term of sixty years or more (b). All such money and all securities on which it may be invested will be considered as land, and will go and devolve as the land wherefrom the money has arisen would have gone under the settlement (c).

The Act specifies what are to be deemed improvements, and enables the trustees or the Court to apply capital money in payment for them on a certificate of the Land Commissioners and of a competent engineer nominated by the trustees and approved by the commissioners or by the Court, or on an order of the Court (d). The tenant for life is bound to maintain and repair all improvements, and in some cases to insure, and on failing so to do will be liable to an action by any person interested in the settled estate (d).

Money may be spent in improvements under Act.

A tenant for life impeachable for waste in respect of timber is authorized to cut and sell timber ripe and fit for cutting with the consent of the trustees or under an order of the Court (e). A tenant for life may also, with the sanction of the Court, sell personal chattels settled as heirlooms (f).

Tenant for life may cut ripe timber with consent, and sell settled heirlooms.

The persons (if any) who under a settlement are trustees with a present power of sale, or of consenting to a sale, or if there are no such trustees, the persons who are by the settlement declared to be trustees thereof for the purposes of the Act, are for purposes of the Act trustees of the settlement (g). If there are no such trustees the Court may appoint them on the application of the tenant for life or other person interested (h).

Who are trustees for the purposes of the Act.

If at any time a difference arises between a tenant for life and the trustees of the settlement respecting the exercise of any of the powers of the Act, the Court may, on the application of either party, give directions respecting the matter in difference and respecting the costs of the application (i); and a tenant for life, when intending to make a sale, ex-

Tenant for life to be deemed a trustee of powers.

The above provisions must be read in connection with a subsequent one, which declares that a tenant for life in exercising any power shall have regard to the interests of all parties entitled under the settlement, and shall in relation to the exercise thereof by him be deemed to be in the position and to have the duties and liabilities of a trustee (l).

When trustees authorized to interfere.

Taking these provisions together, it is apprehended that the only difference which could arise in the case of a sale between a tenant for life and the trustees, and which the Court would have jurisdiction to decide under sect. 44, would be whether the power was being exercised bonâ fide and with due regard to the interests of all parties. In order to give the trustees the opportunity of ascertaining whether this is so, the month's notice is required, within which time they can, if necessary, make the application to the Court (m). If the notice is not given, and the sale is completed, a bonâ fide purchaser will have a good title (n), but the tenant for life will be guilty of a breach of trust.

If no notice given, sale good, but tenant for life guilty of breach of trust.

Notice may be general.

The Settled Land Act, 1884, s. 5, provides that the notice may be a general one, and may be waived by the trustees in any particular case, or generally, and they may accept less than a month's notice. It would appear, therefore, that a tenant for life may immediately after he comes into possession give a general notice that he intends to sell, &c., whenever an opportunity occurs. Considering the uselessness of a notice of this kind, it seems better as a general rule to negative the section altogether. It is clear that this can be done under sect. 57.

Sect. 45 contains a proviso that at the date of the notice given the number of trustees shall not be less than two, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the settlement. If at the time when a tenant for life intends to sell, &c., there is only one trustee, he must appoint, or procure the appointment, of a second one for the purpose of receiving the notice.

There must be at least two trustees when the notice is given.

The fact that a tenant for life has assigned or incumbered his life estate does not prevent him from exercising the powers of the Act, but the rights of the assignee or incumbrancer will not be affected without his consent, except that unless he is actually in possession, his consent is not necessary to a lease if made at the best rent, without a fine (o).

Powers may be exercised by tenant for life, notwithstanding assignment or incumbrance of his life interest.

The powers given by the Act are cumulative, and in addition to any express power contained in the settlement for the same purpose, but no such express power can be exercised in future without the consent of the tenant for life, or where two or more persons constitute together a tenant for life, one of such persons (p).

Powers given by Act are cumulative.

Other limited owners enumerated in sect. 58 of the Act are given the same powers as a tenant for life, and where a tenant for life, or a person having the powers of a tenant for life, is an infant, the trustees of the settlement (if any), and if there are none, a person to be appointed by the Court for that purpose, may exercise them for him; and where the owner in possession of land is an infant, the land is to be deemed settled, and the infant is to be deemed a tenant for life thereof (q).

In case of land subject to a trust for sale, beneficiary for life has powers under the Act, to be exercised with leave of the Court.

Sect. 63 provides that where land is subject to a trust for sale, and for investment of the proceeds so that some one is entitled beneficially to the income for life, or other limited interest, the person entitled to the rents and profits of the land until sale shall have all the powers of a tenant for life under the Act; but by the Act of 1884, it is declared that the powers conferred by sect. 63 shall not be exercised without leave of the Court (t), and that the consent of the person or any of the persons in whom those powers are vested, shall not be necessary to any exercise of the trusts or powers vested in the trustees by the instrument (u).

The following points have been decided under the Act:—

Tenant for life may sell, notwithstanding sale by remainderman before Act.

1. That a tenant for life may sell, notwithstanding that before the passing of the Act the remainderman has sold the property subject to the life interest to a bonâ fide purchaser for value (y).

Trustees with power of sale means trustees with present power.

2. That the term "trustees with power of sale of settled land" in sub-sect. 8 of sect. 2 means trustees having a present power to sell, and that where land is given to A. for life and after his death to trustees in trust to sell, the latter are not trustees for the purposes of the Act. It is supposed that its object is the same as that of sect. 56 of the Act of 1882, viz., to prevent a conflict between the provisions of the settlement and the Act. But if so, it goes beyond the necessity of the case, as it requires the leave of the Court to an exercise of the statutory powers, even where the settlement contains no power for the same purpose. Suppose, for example, that since the Act of 1882 land has been conveyed or devised to trustees in trust to sell, but without any power of leasing in the meantime, the statutory power being considered sufficient, the new enactment will apply, and the leave of the Court will have to be obtained before leases can be granted.

Under the Act of 1882 it was held that land drainage charges, being terminable, cannot be paid off out of capital money (x). In accordance with that Act, it has been held that where settled land is subject to a land drainage charge repayable by instalments, capital settled, and (2) that the settlement was still in force as to the entirety; because, on the death of James (who had issue), it would have become the duty of the trustees to sell the whole, and not a moiety only. The purchaser from James was not owner in fee simple of a moiety, but owner only of the rents and profits of a moiety during James' life, and of a moiety of the proceeds of the sale after his death.

money arising under the Act of 1882 may be from time to time applied in payment of such portions of the instalments as represent capital, but not of such portions as represent interest (a).

Trustees' receipt clause now unnecessary.

A clause enabling the trustees to give receipts for trust money or funds payable or transferable to them is now unnecessary (b).

As to powers to appoint new trustees.

The power to appoint new trustees conferred by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c), is a very complete one, and may, as a general rule, be relied on. If it is intended, as is usually the case, that the power shall be vested in the husband and wife and the survivor of them, this should be so stated in the deed.

Provision for indemnity of trustees unnecessary.

It was formerly usual to insert in settlements a provision for the indemnity and reimbursement of trustees, but this provision, which was never of much value, is now rendered unnecessary by the 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, s. 31 (d).

Trustees may compound and settle claims, &c.

The Conveyancing Act, 1881, provides, with respect to executorships and trusts created after the 31st December, 1881, that an executor or two or more trustees acting together, or a sole acting trustee where, by the instrument, if any, creating the trust, a sole trustee is authorized to execute the trusts and powers thereof, ceipt for the sake of conformity, and shall be answerable and accountable only for their own acts, receipts, neglects, or defaults, and not for those of each other nor for any banker, broker, or other person with whom any trust moneys or securities may be deposited, nor for the insufficiency or deficiency of any stocks, funds, or securities, nor for any other loss, unless the same shall happen through their own wilful default respectively; and also that it shall be lawful for the trustees or trustee for the time being of the said deed, will, or other instrument to reimburse themselves or himself or pay or discharge out of the trust premises all expenses incurred in or about the execution of the trusts or powers of the said deed, will, or other instrument.'" may, if and as he or they think fit, accept any composition, or any security, real or personal, for any debt, or for any property, real or personal, claimed, and may allow any time for payment of any debt, and may compromise, compound, abandon, submit to arbitration, or otherwise settle any debt, account, claim, or thing whatever relating to the trust, and for any of those purposes may enter into, give, execute, and do such agreements, instruments of composition or arrangement, releases, and other things as to them or him seem expedient, without being responsible for any loss occasioned by any act or thing so done in good faith ^(e).

The 18 & 19 Vict. c. 43 (explained as extending to Ireland by the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 83) authorizes infants upon or in contemplation of marriage, with the sanction of the Court (if males, at any time after the age of twenty, and if females, at any time after the age of seventeen), to make binding settlements of all or any part of their real or personal property, or property over which they may have any power of appointment. But as to appointments under a power, or any disentailing assurance which may have been executed by the infant tenant in tail under the provisions of the Act, it is provided that in case the infant dies under twenty-one, such appointment or disentailing assurance shall be absolutely void. Before approving a settlement under this Act, the Court will not direct an inquiry as to the propriety of the contemplated marriage ^(f).

27 Eliz. c. 4.

(1) By the stat. 27 Eliz. c. 4, all conveyances, &c., of lands, tenements or hereditaments, made with the intent to defraud purchasers, and also all conveyances with any clause of revocation at the grantor's pleasure, are made void against subsequent purchasers.

All voluntary settlements fraudulent under above Act.

It has been long settled that all voluntary deeds are to be deemed fraudulent and void within the meaning of the above statute, and it makes no difference that the subsequent purchaser has notice of the prior voluntary conveyance (h).

Principle on which it has been so held.

The principle on which voluntary conveyances have been uniformly held to be fraudulent and void as against subsequent purchasers appears to be, that by selling the property afterwards for a valuable consideration the vendor so entirely repudiates the former voluntary conveyance, and shows his intention to sell, as that it shall be taken conclusively against him and the person to whom he conveyed that such intention existed when he made the voluntary conveyance, and consequently that it was made in order to defeat the purchaser (i).

Doctrine only applies where settlor and person making voluntary conveyance are the same.

This being the principle, it follows that the statute only applies where the voluntary conveyance and the subsequent sale are by the same person, and therefore if A. makes a voluntary conveyance and dies, a sale by the heir of A. will not defeat it (k). But a conveyance which is really fraudulent, and not merely voluntary, is void against a subsequent purchaser, although the person making the fraudulent conveyance and the person selling may be different (l).

Voluntary conveyance good against

A voluntary conveyance is binding on the grantor and on all persons (other than purchasers for valuable consideration) claiming under him. Consequently, if A. makes two voluntary conveyances, first to B. and then to C., and C. sells for valuable consideration to D., B.'s title is good against D., because after A. had conveyed to B., he had no estate left in him which he could convey to any one but a purchaser for value, and as nothing therefore passed to C., D. could be in no better position (m).

purchaser from subsequent voluntary grantee.

Again, if a person to whom a voluntary conveyance is made sells and conveys for value, that which was in its creation a voluntary conveyance, and voidable by a purchaser, becomes good and unimpeachable, and the purchaser from such volunteer cannot be disturbed by a subsequent purchaser from the original settlor.

Purchaser from voluntary grantee cannot be disturbed.

Marriage is a valuable consideration, and consequently a settlement made previously to and in consideration of marriage in favour of the husband and wife and their issue is a settlement for valuable consideration, so as to exclude the operation of 27 Eliz. chap. 4. But a settlement made after marriage, unless in pursuance of a prior agreement, or unless there is some other consideration, is voluntary; so also if a marriage settlement contains limitations in favour of collateral relations or strangers, such limitations are primâ facie voluntary (n), and so is a provision made by an intended husband for his child by a former wife (o). But it has been held that an intended wife may stipulate for a provision to be made out of her property for her children by a former marriage, or even for an illegitimate child, and that a settlement to carry into effect such a stipulation is not voluntary (p).

Marriage a valuable consideration sufficient to support antenuptial settlements.

Limitations in favour of collateral relations, primâ facie voluntary.

(p) Newstead v. Searles, 1 Atk. 264; Clarke v. Wright, 6 H. & N. 849; Gale v. Gale, 6 Ch. D. 144. It will be borne in mind that these cases were decided before the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882. As regards persons marrying after the 31st December, 1882, it is apprehended that no distinction can be made between a settlement of the wife's property and one by the husband of his own; and that if a provision for the children of a former marriage is voluntary in the one case, it will (when the circumstances do not in other respects differ) be deemed voluntary in the other case also, and vice versa.

Where limitations to collaterals are mixed up with those to children, the whole settlement will be upheld.

If a settlement, whether of the husband's or the wife's lands, contains limitations in favour of strangers to the marriage consideration (including in this expression children of a former or of a subsequent marriage), which are so mixed up with limitations in favour of persons within such consideration that effect cannot be given to the provisions in favour of those within the consideration without giving effect also to those in favour of the strangers, the whole settlement will be upheld (q).

A very slight consideration sufficient to support a post-nuptial settlement.

As regards post-nuptial settlements a very slight consideration, e.g., a loan of money made to the settlor by a relative of his wife, is sufficient to take a case out of the statute (r). And a settlement by husband and wife of the wife's property to her separate use for life with remainder to the husband for life, with remainder to the children, has been held to be a settlement for valuable consideration, such consideration being the modification by the husband of his life interest in possession, and by the wife of her inheritance (s).

Settlement of leaseholds valid.

It has been held that a settlement of leasehold property to which a liability is attached is not a voluntary settlement so as to be within the stat. 27 Eliz. c. 4 (t).

Consideration may be proved by extrinsic evidence.

Where a deed appears on the face of it to be voluntary, evidence may be given to prove some consideration not mentioned in it, it not being contradictory to an instrument to prove a larger consideration than that which is stated (u). With a view to let in evidence of this kind, the words "and for divers other causes and considerations" are frequently introduced, but they are not necessary.

take a title from a person who has executed a voluntary settlement, because there may have been some other consideration not disclosed by the deed, or the volunteer may have subsequently dealt with the property for a valuable consideration, and its invalidity therefore depends on a doubtful state of facts. For these reasons, and also because the settlor cannot compel the purchaser to assist him in defeating the previous conveyance, it has been decided that a contract for sale entered into by the voluntary settlor may be enforced against him, but not by him (x).

from a person who has made a voluntary settlement.

(2) By the stat. 13 Eliz. c. 5 (made perpetual by the 29 Eliz. c. 5), all conveyances, &c., of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, goods or chattels (y), made with intent to defeat, hinder, or delay creditors, are made void as against such creditors; but the Act contains a saving clause in favour of purchasers for valuable consideration without notice.

13 Eliz. c. 5.

In order to come within this statute a deed must be made with intent to defeat, hinder, or delay creditors. If such an intent is clear, the deed will be void, even if made for valuable consideration (z). A voluntary deed will be presumed to be made with intent to defeat, &c., creditors, if that will be its probable effect having regard to the amount of property included in it, and the amount of the settlor's liabilities at the time (a). So an advancement to a son made by a person largely indebted at the time will be void under this statute as against creditors (b).

good on that account against creditors under the Act 13 Eliz. c. 5 (c).

Subsequent creditors may come in.

If a deed is set aside as being void against creditors under the statute, the property comprised in it becomes assets for the payment of debts generally, so that subsequent creditors are entitled to participate in it (d).

Voluntary settlement may be set aside, if settlor about to engage in hazardous business.

A voluntary settlement may be set aside, although the settlor's assets, irrespective of what is included therein, may be sufficient to pay his debts at the date of the deed, if the settlor contemplated a state of things which might not improbably result in bankruptcy or insolvency, as if he were engaged or engaging in a hazardous or untried business, or was incurring heavy liabilities (e); and a voluntary deed may be set aside at the suit of a subsequent creditor, although there may be no creditor whose debt was in existence at the date of the settlement (f).

Settlement where life income made determinable on bankruptcy held fraudulent.

A voluntary settlement by a person not then engaged in trade, and who owed no debts, by which money was settled in trust to pay the income to the husband for life or until bankruptcy, &c., with remainder to his wife for life, for her separate use, with remainder to the children, and an ultimate remainder to the settlor, was held fraudulent and void against creditors, the settlor having many years after the settlement engaged in trade and become bankrupt (g).

A settlement which is in form voluntary may be proved by extrinsic evidence to have been made for a valuable consideration (h), and an instrument voluntary in its inception may by ex post facto matter cease to be voluntary in the hands of those who have given value on the faith of it, or if it has formed part of the inducement to a marriage (i).

against creditors is extended by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (j), which provides that any settlement of property not being a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage, or in favour of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith, and for valuable consideration, or a settlement made on or for the wife or children of the settlor of property which has accrued to the settlor after marriage in right of his wife, shall, if the settlor becomes bankrupt within two years from the date of the settlement, be void as against the trustee of the bankrupt, and shall, if he becomes bankrupt at any subsequent time within ten years after the date of the settlement, be void against the trustee, unless the parties claiming under it can prove that the settlor was at the time of making the settlement able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in the settlement, and that the interest of the settlor in such property had passed to the trustees of the settlement on the execution thereof; and the Act also provides that any covenant or contract made in consideration of marriage for the future settlement on or for the settlor's wife or children of any money or property wherein he had not at the date of the marriage any estate or interest, whether vested or contingent, in possession or remainder, and not being money or property of or in right of his wife, shall, upon his becoming bankrupt before the property or money has been actually transferred or paid pursuant to the contract or covenant, be void against the trustee in bankruptcy.

It has been held with reference to a clause to the above effect in the repealed Act of 1869, that the enactment applied to settlements executed before as well as after the Act came into operation (k), but that it did not apply to a covenant for payment of a sum of money not specifically ear-marked; and where a person covenanted on his marriage to pay a sum of £6,000 to the trustees, and became a bankrupt within two years, his trustees were allowed to prove against his estate under the covenant (l).

Voluntary covenants and settlements are binding on the settlor if complete, but not otherwise.

(3) A voluntary disposition of property is valid against the settlor, but the disposition must be complete, i.e., the settlor must have done everything which according to the nature of the property is necessary to be done on his part. Thus, if the legal owner of Consols, standing in his own name (m), or of Bank shares transferable only by entry in the bank books (n), purports to assign such Consols or shares by deed, or if a person possessed of leasehold property purports to assign it by a writing not under seal (o), or if the owner of shares in a colliery signs an entry in the partnership books, to the effect that he agrees to transfer such shares, which entry is not sufficient to pass them according to the partnership articles (p), or if the owner of railway stock hands over the certificate of such stock, saying, "These are yours," or using words to that effect (q), in each of these cases the intended gift, if in favour of a volunteer, is inoperative. On the other hand, a voluntary assignment by deed of a chose in action not assignable at law (r), or of a reversionary interest in stock standing in the name of a trustee (s), will be sustained, on the ground that the assignor has done all that he can, having regard to the nature of the property, to divest himself of his interest; nor is it necessary that notice of the assignment shall have been given to the debtor or the trustee, the giving of such notice being an act within the province of the assignee rather than the assignor.

such declaration may, as regards property other than lands, tenements, or hereditaments^(u), be either in writing or by parol^(x). In some cases it has been sought to sustain as valid declarations of trust, instruments purporting to be assignments, but which are incomplete as such. The principle applicable to such cases has been thus laid down by Turner, V.-C., in Milroy v. Lord^(y). "If the settlement is intended to be effectuated by one of the modes to which I have referred (viz., transfer and declaration of trust), the Court will not give effect to it by applying another of those modes. If it is intended to take effect by transfer, the Court will not hold the intended transfer to operate as a declaration of trust, for then every imperfect instrument would be made effectual by being converted into a perfect trust"^(z). In accordance with this principle, an imperfect assignment of furniture by a husband to his wife by letters was held void in a recent case^(a).

In order to support a voluntary deed against the settlor, the parties claiming under it must be able to show that he understood what he was doing, and this is particularly the case if the settlor was young or otherwise inexperienced in business at the time when he made the settlement, or if the deed contains unusual provisions^(b). It has been sometimes supposed to be the duty of the solicitor who prepares a voluntary deed to advise the insertion of a power of revocation in all cases, and that the want of such a power, unless by the express direction of the solicitor, invalidates the deed (c). But there is no such general rule. It depends on the circumstances, whether such a power should be recommended or not; in many cases it would be proper, while in others it would defeat the very object for which the deed is executed (d). All that the Court has to be satisfied of is that the settlement, whether it contains a power of revocation or not, is the free determined act of the party making it, and the absence of advice as to the insertion of a power of revocation is a circumstance, and a circumstance merely, to be weighed in connection with the other circumstances of the case (e); and in a late case it was said that, if a person of full age and sound mind executes a voluntary settlement, he cannot have the deed set aside without giving some substantial reason why the transaction should not stand, and the fact that the deed contains no power of revocation will not throw upon the grantee the onus of supporting it (f).

In a case where a young man made a voluntary settlement in favour of himself, his wife, and children, with an ultimate trust in default of issue for his next of kin, the Court upheld the settlement on the whole, but directed that it should be rectified by giving to the settlor a general power of appointment in default of issue (g).

Voluntary assignment to trustees for benefit of creditors revocable,

A voluntary assignment of property to trustees in trust for the benefit of creditors who do not execute and are not privy to the deed, operates merely as a power or mandate to the trustees, which may be revoked by the debtor at any time (h).

unless communicated to, and acted on by creditors.

But if the disposition is communicated to creditors who, on the faith of it, forbear to sue the debtor, the trust becomes irrevocable as against them, while as against other creditors, to whom it has not been communicated, it remains revocable (i).

The doctrine does not apply to a provision for creditors coming into operation after the settlor's death. Thus, in a case where by a voluntary deed lands were limited to uses in strict settlement, including the limitation to trustees of a term to commence at the settlor's death in trust to accumulate the rents in order to raise a fund for payment of the mortgages charged on the estate, it was held that the mortgagees were cestuis que trust, and consequently that the trust could not be put an end to by a person who by executing a disentailing deed had become owner in fee simple in possession, subject to the term (k).

Doctrine does not apply to provision for creditors coming into effect after settlor's death.

III. Stamps on settlements.

By the 33 & 34 Vict. c. 97, the following stamp duties are made payable under the head of "settlement" in the schedule:—

Stamps on settlements.

Any instrument, whether voluntary, or upon any good or valuable consideration, other than a bonâ fide pecuniary consideration, whereby any definite and certain principal sum of money (whether charged or chargeable on lands or other hereditaments or heritable subjects, or not, or to be laid out in the purchase of lands or other hereditaments or heritable subjects or not), or any definite and certain amount of stock, or any security, is settled, or agreed to be settled, in any manner whatsoever.

(k) Re Fitzgerald's Settlement, 37 C. D. 18.

Exemption.

Instrument of appointment relating to any property in favour of persons specially named or described as the objects of a power of appointment created by a previous settlement, stamped with ad valorem duty in respect of the same property, or by will, where probate duty has been paid in respect of the same property as personal estate of the testator.

As settlements frequently contain covenants for payment of an annuity, it will be useful to mention that under the same Act a bond, covenant, or other instrument for payment of an annuity, is charged as follows:—

- (1) Being the only or principal or primary security for any annuity (except upon the original creation thereof by way of sale or security), or of any sum or sums of money at stated periods, not being interest for any principal sum, secured by a duly stamped instrument, nor rent reserved by a lease or tack:

For a definite and certain period, so that the total amount to be ultimately payable can be ascertained.

The same ad valorem duty as a bond or covenant for such total amount.

For the term of life, or any other indefinite period:

For every £5, and also for any fractional part of £5 of the annuity or sum periodically payable.....

£ s. d.

- (2) Being a collateral, or auxiliary, or additional or substituted security for any of the above-mentioned purposes where the principal or primary instrument is duly stamped:

Where the total amount to be ultimately payable can be ascertained.

The same ad valorem duty as a bond or covenant of the same kind for such total amount.

In any other case :

For every £5, and also for any fractional part of £5 of the annuity or sum periodically payable - - - -

And the Act contains the following provisions relating to stamps on settlements:—

Sect. 124. Where any money which may become due or payable upon any policy of insurance, or upon any security not being a marketable security, is settled or agreed to be settled, the instrument whereby such settlement is made or agreed to be made, is to be charged with ad valorem duty in respect of such money. Settlement of policy or security.

Provided as follows:—

(1) Where in the case of a policy of insurance no provision is made for keeping up the policy, the ad valorem duty is to be charged only on the value of the policy at the date of the instrument. Proviso as to policies.

(2) If in any such case the instrument contains a statement of such value, and is stamped in accordance with such statement, it is, so far as regards such policy, to be deemed duly stamped, unless or until it is shown that such statement is untrue, and that the instrument is in fact insufficiently stamped.

Sect. 125. (1) An instrument chargeable with ad valorem duty as a settlement in respect of any money, stock, or security, is not to be charged with any further duty by reason of containing provision for the payment or transfer of the same money, stock, or security. Settlements when not to be charged as securities.

(2) Where any money, stock, or security is settled, or agreed to be settled, by a person who has only a reversionary interest therein, and the instrument whereby such settlement is made, or agreed to be made, contains a covenant by the person entitled in possession to the interest or dividends of such money, stock, or security, for the payment, during the continuance of such possession, of any annuity or yearly sum not exceeding interest at the rate of £4 per cent. per annum upon the amount Where reversionary interest settled, exemption as regards annual sum payable in meantime.

or value of such money, stock, or security, such instrument shall not be charged with any duty in respect of such covenant.

Where several instruments, one only to be charged with ad valorem duty.

Sect. 126. (1) Where several instruments are executed for effecting the settlement of the same property, and the ad valorem duty chargeable in respect of the settlement of such property exceeds ten shillings, one only of such instruments is to be charged with the ad valorem duty.

(2) Where a settlement is made in pursuance of any previous agreement or articles upon which any ad valorem settlement duty exceeding ten shillings has been paid in respect of the same property, such settlement is not to be charged with any ad valorem settlement duty.

(3) In each of the aforesaid cases, the instruments not chargeable with ad valorem duty are to be charged with the duty of ten shillings.

Penalty for not stamping a settlement within the prescribed period.

If a settlement is not stamped within 30 days after it is first executed, or if executed abroad, after it is first received in the United Kingdom, the settlor is liable to forfeit £10 (1).

(z) See 30 & 31 Vict. c. 144. Notice of this deed should be given to the assurance society pursuant to 30 & 31 Vict. c. 144.

The stamp on this deed will be 5s. per £100 on the sum assured. By the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888, s. 19, it is provided that no assignment of a policy of life assurance shall confer on the assignee any right to sue, or give a valid discharge, for the money assured thereby, unless such assignment is duly stamped, and that no payment shall be made by any person claiming under such assignment unless the same is duly stamped. And if any payment is made in contravention of this clause, the company or person by whom the payment is made is made liable for the penalty. It is apprehended that this enactment does not invalidate the assignment, but merely prevents the assignee from suing for the money until it is stamped. Consequently, if A. assigns the policy first to B. and then to C., but the assignment to B. is not stamped until after the assignment to C., B. is not on that account postponed to C.

(h) The clause in brackets may be safely dispensed with. See Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 37.

(i) When the intended wife is an infant, she is incapable of making a settlement binding on herself, except with the sanction of the Court under the Infants' Settlement Act. But it is generally desired to avoid the expense and delay of an application to the Court, and it was therefore usual, before the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, where the infant's property was personalty in possession or in reversion, to rely on the husband's covenant to settle it. Such a covenant was effectual, except in the event of the property not falling into possession during the coverture, and the wife being the survivor. In the preparation of the last edition of this work, it was considered that the Act of 1882 had rendered a covenant by the husband ineffectual, because under sect. 3 the wife became entitled for her separate use. But it would appear from recent decisions that this view is incorrect, and that, by virtue of sect. 19, a settlement, or agreement for a settlement, whether made before or since the Act, and whether before or after marriage, has the same operation and effect as regards the wife's property as if the Act had not been passed.
If so, a covenant by the husband may now be used in all cases where it would have been considered sufficient before the passing of the Act, and will have the same effect. See p. 208, suprà. Effect of the

(m) This and the subsequent Precedents of Settlements are prepared on the paragraph plan, which has been for some time adopted in Acts of Parliament, equity pleadings, and many other legal and official documents, and is coming into gradual use with conveyancers. It presents obvious advantages as regards perspicuity and facility for convenient arrangement, and seems particularly adapted to such instruments as settlements, whether of real or personal estate.

Observations
on the plan of

The first ten Precedents of Settlements are retained in the non-paragraph form for the convenience of those who may prefer it. Any of such precedents may be readily converted into a paragraph deed, and, on the other hand, any of the paragraph deeds may be readily converted into a non-paragraph deed, by omitting the numbers, and adding the appropriate words, "AND IT IS HEREBY ALSO AGREED AND DECLARED," &c., before each clause.

(*) Where the money settled on the part of either party is found by his or her father, it is not quite clear what ought to be the form of the ultimate trust in case of no issue of the marriage. The father may expect that the money should come back to him in that event, and that the ultimate trust should be framed accordingly. This seems right in theory, but it would often lead in practice to an inequality. Suppose, for instance, that the father dies shortly afterwards, and then the son or daughter (as the case may be) becomes a widower or widow, without issue of the marriage. It is probable that the father will by his will have given his residue among his other children, thinking the child in question to be already provided for by the settlement. If this is so, the child will be reduced to a life interest, and will be unable, in case of a second marriage, to make any settlement; whereas the other children will probably have an absolute interest in their shares. On the whole, it is recommended that, in the absence of special instructions, a power of appointment by deed be given to the father, and that, subject to such power, the ultimate trust be in

AND WHEREAS upon the treaty for the said intended marriage it was agreed that such settlement should be made as hereinafter appears: NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH, that in consideration of the said intended marriage it is hereby agreed and declared between and by the parties hereto as follows :

1. THE said A. B. and C. D. and all other necessary parties shall, at the cost of the trust estate, cause and procure the said sum of £—— 2¼ per Cent. Consolidated Stock, and also the said moiety to which the said C. D. will, upon her said marriage, become entitled of and in the trust funds and property subject to the trusts of the said indenture of settlement of the —— day of ——, to be respectively transferred and paid to the said E. F., G. H., and I. K. (hereinafter called "the trustees"), as to the said Consolidated Stock, so soon as conveniently can be after the solemnization of the said intended marriage, and as to the said reversionary moiety, when and so soon as the same shall fall into possession.

NOW THIS INDENTURE, made in consideration of the said intended marriage, WITNESSETH, as follows:—

1. THE said C. D., as settlor, hereby assigns unto the said E. F., G. H., and I. K. (hereinafter called "the trustees"), the said sum of £—— Consolidated Stock, and also the said moiety to which the said C. D. will upon her said marriage become entitled of and in the trust funds and property subject to the trusts of the said indenture of settlement of the —— day of ——, To HOLD the same unto the trustees, UPON the trusts and with and subject to the powers and provisions hereinafter declared and contained concerning the same.

2. THE trustees shall, upon the receipt of the several trust funds assigned by Article 1, either retain the same respectively in their respective actual state of investment (if any), or with the consent in writing of the said A. B. and C. D. during their joint lives, and of the survivor of them during his or her life, and after the decease of such survivor, at the discretion of the trustees, sell and convert into money the same, and shall, with such consent, or at such discretion as aforesaid, invest the moneys produced by such sale and conversion, and also such part (if any) of the said trust funds as shall consist of money, and also the moneys to arise from the sale of the hereditaments comprised in the said indenture bearing even date herewith, with liberty from time to time, with the like consent or at the like discretion, to vary the investments thereof: THE moneys to arise from the sale of the said hereditaments, and the investments for the time being representing the same, are hereinafter called "the husband's trust funds": AND the trust funds assigned by Article 1, and the investments for the time being representing the same, are hereinafter called "the wife's trust funds."

3, 4. (Same as in Articles 4 and 5 of Precedent No. X., supra, pp. 292, 293).

5. IF the hereditaments comprised in the said indenture of even date herewith shall remain unsold at the decease of the survivor of the said A. B. and C. D., the net rents and profits of the same hereditaments, or such part thereof as shall for the time being remain unsold, shall thenceforth be paid and applied to the person or persons and in the manner to whom and in which the income of the moneys to arise from the sale thereof, and the investments representing the same, would for the time

6. IF neither of the said four children of the said C. B. by the said A. B. deceased, and no issue of any such child shall become absolutely entitled to the residue not hereinbefore appointed of the wife's trust funds under the trusts and powers of the hereinbefore recited indenture, then and in such case, and subject to the same trusts and powers, and from and after the death of the said C. B. or such failure of issue as aforesaid (which shall last happen), the trustee shall stand possessed of the entirety of the wife's trust funds, UPON the trusts and with and subject to the powers and provisions declared by Article 2 concerning one-third part of the wife's trust funds, or such of them as shall then be subsisting and capable of taking effect.

7. (Advancement clause, supra, p. 293.)

8. IF no child of the said C. B. by the said A. B. deceased or by the said X. Y. shall become absolutely entitled to the wife's trust funds under the trusts and powers of the hereinbefore recited indenture and of these presents respectively, then and in such case and subject to the same trusts and powers, the trustees shall stand possessed of the wife's trust funds, IN TRUST for, &c. (Ultimate trust for the wife or her appointees by will or next of kin, supra, p. 293.)

9. THE power of appointment among the children and remoter issue of the said C. B. by the said A. B. deceased now vested in the said C. B. as having survived the said A. B. under the hereinbefore recited indenture, shall remain in full force and be exercisable by her notwithstanding her now intended coverture so far as regards the residue not subject to these presents of the wife's trust funds.

No. XV.

SETTLEMENT upon the SECOND MARRIAGE of a LADY UPON SECOND MARRIAGE OF A LADY.
 in exercise of POWERS in FORMER SETTLEMENT (Another form). AGREEMENT to settle OTHER PROPERTY of WIFE in favour of ISSUE of BOTH MARRIAGES.

THIS INDENTURE (the same as last Precedent, down to the beginning of the first paragraph, except that Article 6A instead of Article 6 of Precedent No. XIII. is recited).

1. AFTER the said marriage the said E. F., G. H., and I. K., (hereinafter called "the trustees") shall pay the income of all the trust funds settled by the said indenture to the said C. B., so that during her now intended coverture the same shall be for her sole and separate use, and she shall not have power to dispose thereof in the way of anticipation. Wife to receive income of all the settled trust funds for her separate use without power to anticipate.

2. If the said X. Y. shall survive the said C. B. the income of one moiety of the trust funds in the said indenture of settlement and hereinafter called the wife's trust funds, shall after the decease of the said C. B. be paid to the said X. Y. during his life [or until he shall marry again or shall assign or charge the said income, or any part thereof, or become bankrupt, or do or suffer any other thing whereby the said income, or any part thereof, if belonging absolutely to him, would become vested in any other person or persons, in either of which events the interest of the said X. Y. shall cease as if he were dead]. Income of a moiety of wife's trust funds to be paid to her husband [or until second marriage, bankruptcy, &c.].

3. FOR the purposes of these presents the wife's trust funds shall be considered as divided into so many equal parts as there shall be children of the said C. B., as well by the said A. B. deceased as by the said X. Y., who, being a son or sons, attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter or daughters, attain that age or marry; AND so many of the said equal parts as there shall be children of the said C. B. by the said X. Y., who, being a son or sons, attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter or daughters attain that age or marry, shall form together the fund which is hereinafter referred to as "the future children's trust fund." Certain proportion of wife's trust funds to form "future children's trust fund."

4. THE future children's trust fund shall, after the decease of the said C. B., and subject to the interest of the said X. Y., Trusts of future children's trust funds.

Power of appointment in settlement in favour of issue of former marriage to remain in force.

6. THE power of appointment given to the said C. B. by the said indenture of settlement in favour of all or any of her issue by the said A. B. deceased, shall remain in full force so far as regards that part of the wife's trust funds which is not hereby appointed in favour of the issue of the now intended marriage.

Ultimate trusts in case of no issue of either marriage.

7. If there shall be no issue of the said C. B., either by the said A. B. deceased, or by the said X. Y., in whom the wife's trust funds shall become absolutely vested under the trusts and powers of the said indenture of settlement, or of these presents, then and in such case, and subject to the interest of the said X. Y., under Article 2, the trustees shall stand possessed of the wife's trust funds, IN TRUST for, &c., (Ultimate trust for wife or her appointees by will or next of kin, supra, p. 293).

in trust for husband for life, and after his decease upon trust for persons who would be entitled to income of proceeds of sale if advowson had been sold.

(a) In the earlier editions of this work, the trusts of the advowson in the above Precedent were in the form of a direction to present certain specified or indicated persons so long as it should remain unsold. Trusts of this kind are not uncommon, particularly in wills. Their validity does not appear to have been questioned in any reported case, but it is conceived that if it were so, there would be some difficulty in sustaining them. A right of presentation is a right coupled with a public duty, and it is conceived that any agreement or arrangement by which a patron is prevented, when a vacancy happens, from selecting such clerk as he may conscientiously believe to be the most proper individual for supplying the living, would be held void, independently of the statutes against simony, as contrary to public policy. See the judgment of Hullock, B., Fletcher v. Lord Sondes, 1 Bligh, N. S. 190. Speaking of a bond of resignation (which was decided to be void), the learned judge says: "The patron thereby becomes precluded from choosing the most proper individual for supplying the living. If he act in the presentation according to the condition of the bond, his choice is fixed long before the fitness of the object can be ascertained. At the execution of the bond, the nominee may be at college, or perhaps at school, or perhaps in his cradle." Special bonds of resignation are now rendered valid by statute under certain conditions; but the force of the above reasoning is not thereby diminished, and it applies with still greater force to a trust of the kind above referred to, than to a bond of resignation; because, under the latter, the patron has the option whether to enforce it or not; whereas, under the former, the trustee is absolutely tied to present the particular person. See also Potter v. Chapman, Ambler, 100. In the case of Webb v. Byng, 2 K. & J. 669, a testatrix gave to A. the "livings of Q. and C., should he like the profession, and be qualified for them." Wood, V.-C., held that the devise was confined to a single presentation, and did not extend to the advowson, as the words "should he like," &c., showed an intention to confer on the devisee a personal benefit which could only be effected by his being himself presented. This case seems to have decided that the testatrix, by the gift of the livings to A., meant that A. should be presented, which intention could only, it is apprehended, be carried into effect by supposing a trust vested in the heir-at-law for that purpose. The question whether such a trust could be enforced does not seem to have been raised; and it is submitted, therefore, that this case is not an authority against the view expressed in the former part of this note. Having regard to the above observations, it is submitted that when an advowson is made the subject of a settlement, or is authorized to be purchased out of the trust funds, the deed should simply declare who are to

THIS INDENTURE, made the — day of —, BETWEEN Parties.

A. B., of —, in England, Esq. (settlor), of the one part, and C. D., and E. F., both of —, in New Zealand, gentlemen (trustees), of the other part: WHEREAS G. B. (a son of the said A. B.) lately died in New Zealand, leaving H. B. his widow, and leaving also four children by the said H. B.: AND WHEREAS the said A. B. has lately transmitted the sum of £— to the said C. D. and E. F. to the intent that they may stand possessed thereof upon the trusts and with and subject to the powers and provisions hereinafter expressed concerning the same: NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH, that It is HEREBY AGREED AND DECLARED, and in particular the said A. B., in consideration of his natural love and affection for the objects of the settlement intended to be hereby made, doth hereby direct and declare, that the said C. D. and E. F., their executors, administrators, and assigns, shall stand possessed of the said sum of £— UPON the trusts and with and subject to the powers and provisions expressed in the following articles (that is to say):—

Recite death of settlor's son, leaving widow and children.
That settlor has transmitted money to trustees.

Witnessing part.
Settlor directs trustees to hold money upon following trusts.

1. THE said C. D. and E. F., or the survivor of them (hereinafter called "the trustees or trustee"), shall invest the said sum of £— in their or his names or name or under their or his control upon any government real or personal securities, whether in the United Kingdom or in New Zealand, as the trustees or trustee shall in their or his discretion think fit, and may from time to time vary the said securities for any other securities of the like nature. The said sum of £—— and the securities upon which the same shall from time to time be invested are hereinafter called the “trust fund.”

During minority of youngest child, income to be applied for benefit of widow and children at discretion of trustees.

2. THE trustees or trustee shall during the minority of the youngest child for the time being of the said G. B. deceased, apply the whole or such part as they or he shall think fit of the income of the trust fund for or towards the support, maintenance, and benefit of the said H. B. and the children of the said G. B. deceased, or any one or more exclusively of the other or others of them the said H. B. and the said children, in such manner in all respects as the trustees or trustee shall in their or his absolute discretion think fit, and shall accumulate the surplus (if any) of the said income by investing the same and the resulting income thereof in manner aforesaid, to the intent that the accumulations shall be added to the principal trust fund and follow the destination thereof, with liberty nevertheless for the trustees or trustee at any time or times to resort to the accumulations of any preceding year or years, and apply the same for the support, maintenance, and benefit of the said H. B. and the said children or any one or more of them.

When youngest child attains twenty-one, annual sum to be paid to widow during widowhood.

3. If the said H. B. shall be living and shall not have married again at the time when the youngest child for the time being of the said G. B. deceased attains the age of twenty-one years, the trustees or trustee shall thenceforth out of the income of the trust fund (including the said accumulations, if any) pay to the said H. B. the annual sum of £—— during her life if she shall so long continue the widow of the said G. B. deceased.

Subject to annual sum, trust fund to go to children equally.

4. SUBJECT to the annual sum provided by Article 3, if and while the same shall be payable, the trust fund (including the said accumulations, if any) shall when and so soon as the youngest child for the time being of the said G. B. deceased attains the age of twenty-one years, go and be divided among all the children of the said G. B. deceased, who being sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being daughters shall attain that age or marry, in equal shares, and so that the share of each such child shall be a vested and transmissible interest in such child being a son upon his attaining the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter upon her attaining that age or marrying (which shall first happen), notwithstanding that he or she may die before the period of distribution.

5. THE trustees or trustee may at any time or times during the minority of the youngest child for the time being of the said G. B. deceased, with the consent in writing of the said H. B. during her widowhood, and after her second marriage or death (which shall first happen) at the discretion of the trustees or trustee, raise out of the trust fund any sum or sums of money and apply the same for the advancement or benefit of any child of the said G. B. deceased, and any sum or sums of money so applied for the advancement or benefit of any child shall be taken in part satisfaction of the ultimate share of such child in the said trust fund.

Power to trustees, with consent of widow, and after her death or second marriage at their discretion to raise money for advancement of children.

6. IF no child shall attain a vested interest in the trust fund, the same (including the said accumulations), shall, subject to the trusts and powers hereinbefore declared and contained, revert to and be held in trust for the said A. B., his executors, administrators, and assigns.

If no child attains a vested interest, trust fund to revert to settlor.

7. THE trustees or trustee may at any time or times at their or his discretion lay out the said trust fund (including the said accumulations) or any part thereof in the purchase of any real or personal property in the United Kingdom or in New Zealand of what nature or kind soever, and the trustees or trustee shall stand possessed of any property to be purchased as aforesaid, upon trust that they or he shall re-sell the same or any part thereof when and as they or he shall think fit, and shall stand possessed of the money to arise from such re-sale, upon the same trusts and with the same powers as are herein declared and contained concerning the said sum of £— hereby settled, including the aforesaid power of purchasing property, and shall in the meantime and until such re-sale pay and apply the rent or income arising from the property to be purchased as aforesaid to the person or persons and in the manner to whom and in which the income of the money laid out in the purchase of such property would for the time being be payable under the trusts of these presents if such purchase had not been made.

Power to trustees to purchase any property in the United Kingdom or New Zealand as an investment.

THIS INDENTURE, made the — day of —, BETWEEN
A. B., of, &c. (intended husband), of the first part, C. D., of, &c.
(intended wife), of the second part, and E. F., of, &c., G. H., of,
&c., and I. K., of, &c. (trustees) (a), of the third part, WITNES-
SETH and DECLARES as follows :—

The old practice was to have several sets of trusttees,—one set is now sufficient.

(a) It was formerly the practice in settlements of real estate to have at least two sets of trustees, viz.:—(1) Trustees of the powers of sale and exchange, and for the general purposes of the settlement, and (2) trustees of the jointure and portions term ; and if more than one term was created, separate trustees were frequently appointed for each term. The reason for the practice was founded on the law of merger. Before the Act 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, it was in most cases necessary and proper to limit freehold estates to trustees, in order to preserve contingent remainders, and if any term of years created by the settlement had been limited to the same trustees, there was a risk of the term merging in the other estate thus created ; hence it was considered necessary and proper that the trustees to preserve (who were usually the trustees of the power of sale and exchange) should be different from the trustees of the term. And for a similar reason it was considered that if two separate terms were limited to the same trustees, there was a risk of the two terms coming together without the intervention of any other estate, in which case also there would be a merger. But as the limitation to trustees to preserve contingent remainders has now been discontinued,

1. IN consideration of a marriage intended shortly to be solemnized between the said A. B. and the said C. D., the said A. B. as settlor hereby conveys unto the said E. F., G. H., and I. K. (hereinafter called "the trustees of these presents"), THE manor, messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, situate in the parishes of — and —, in the county of —, particularly described in the schedule hereunder written: To HOLD the same unto the trustees of these presents in fee simple, To THE use of the said A. B. in fee simple, until the said intended marriage, and from and after the marriage, To THE USE that during the joint lives of the said A. B. and C. D. the said C. D. shall receive a yearly rent-charge of £—, to commence from the said marriage, and to be paid by equal half-yearly payments, the first thereof to be made at the end of six calendar months after the said marriage, the said rent-charge to be for her separate use without power of anticipation, and subject to the said rent-charge: To THE USE of the said A. B. during his life, without impeachment of waste, with remainder To THE USE that the said C. D., if she survives the said A. B., shall receive during her life for her jointure a yearly rent-charge of £—, to commence from his death, and to be paid by equal half-yearly payments (b), the first thereof to be made at the expiration of six calendar months after his death (c): AND subject to the said rent-charge (d), To THE USE of the trustees of these presents for the term of one and in a simple settlement the trustees of the power of sale and exchange take no legal estate, and as, moreover, under the Judicature Act, 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 25, sub-s. 4, there is now no legal merger so long as a beneficial interest subsists in equity, there is now no objection to having the same trustees for the powers and for the terms, if the parties so desire.

(b) By the Income Tax Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 103, all contracts, covenants, and agreements made and entered into for payment of any interest, rent, or other annual payment in full without allowing a deduction for income tax are declared to be void. It has been held that this prohibition does not apply to a disposition by will, and accordingly that if by a will an annuity of rent-charge is directed to be paid free from income tax, the annuitant will be entitled to have the whole amount paid without the tax being deducted. Festing v. Taylor, 3 Best & S. 217; 32 L. J. Q. B. 41. But a gift by will of an annuity to be paid without any deduction whatsoever, is not a gift free from income tax. Abadam v. Abadam, 33 L. J. Ch. 593.

(c) By the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 44, ample powers of distress and entry for securing rent-charges are conferred, and also a power to demise the land for a term for the same purpose, so that express powers to this effect are now unnecessary.

(d) Sometimes the settlor wishes to reserve to himself a power of

D. successively, according to seniority in tail-male, with remainder To THE USE of the said A. B. in fee simple.

appointment among his children. In such case the following limitation will be inserted between the jointure and the 1,000 years term:—

“To THE USE of all or such one or more of the children of the said A. B. by the said C. D., or to the use of such person or persons in trust for all or any one or more of such children for such estate, or estates, and in such manner as the said A. B. shall by any deed or deeds, with or without power of revocation and new appointment, at any time or times appoint, and in default of and until such appointment, and so far as any such appointment shall not extend.”

(e) If a power of appointment among the children has been reserved to the settlor as suggested in the last note, add here, “and subject also to any appointment which may be made by the said A. B. under the power in that behalf hereinbefore contained.”

Observations
as to the proper form of a trust for raising portions with regard to the time for ascertaining the character of younger son.

(f) Where a strict settlement is made by a parent, or person in loco parentis, and portions are provided for younger children, the general rule (subject, however, to be controlled by the express language of the settlement) is that no child taking the estate by virtue of the settlement, before the portions become payable, will be allowed to take any share in the sum provided for portions; and this is so whether the settlement does or does not contain an express provision to exclude him. Consequently, if an eldest son dies without issue before the time when the portions become distributable, the second son becoming an eldest son, and entitled as such to the settled estates, is excluded from a share in the portions. Chadwick v. Dolman, 2 Vern. 527; Lord Teynham v. Webb, 2 Ves. sen. 198; Re Bayley's Settlement, L. R. 6 Ch. 592. But if the second son is prevented from taking the settled estates by a disentailing deed executed by the eldest son before his death, such second son is not excluded, even though he may take the property under a re-settlement. Spencer v. Spencer, 8 Sim. 87; Macoubrey v. Jones, 2 K. & J. 684, disapproving of Peacocke v. Pares, 2 Keen, 689.

The rule by which a son being only a second son at the time his portion vests, but afterwards becoming an eldest son, is excluded, is an exception to the ordinary rule that the character of eldest son is to be ascertained at the time of vesting, and the exceptional rule is confined to cases where the provision is made by a parent, or a person in loco parentis. Hall v. Hewer,

B.: AND the sum of money charged as aforesaid shall be divided between or among the said children in such shares and manner as the said A. B. shall by any deed or deeds or by his

Nor does the rule above referred to apply where the provisions of the settlement clearly show that the shares are to vest in the children at twenty-one, and are to remain so whatever may occur afterwards. Windham v. Graham, 1 Russ. 331.

Previously to the late case of Ellison v. Thomas, 1 De G. J. & S. 18, it was generally considered that under the form of a trust for raising portions then in common use, an eldest son was always excluded, even though he died before coming into possession of the settled estate. See Gray v. Limerick, 2 De G. & Sm. 370. It seems, however, to be now settled, that if an eldest son dies before his estate tail falls into possession without inheritable issue, and without having disentailed, his representatives will, under the form above referred to, take a portion. Ellison v. Thomas, ubi supra; Davies v. Hugenin, 1 H. & M. 730; Sing v. Leslie, 3 H. & M. 68. But it is conceived (though it has not been expressly decided) that this would not be the case if the eldest son so dying leaves a son who ultimately succeeds to the settled estate, nor if he concurs with his father in a disentailing assurance. See Collingwood v. Stanhope, L. R. 4 H. L. 43, where, however, the eldest son survived his father, and would, but for his own disentailing deed, have become entitled in possession under the original settlement.

The present state of the authorities makes it important that a settlement should express clearly whether the character of younger son is to be ascertained at the time of vesting or at the time of payment. It is submitted that on the whole the time of vesting is the more convenient, so that a son being an eldest son at twenty-one is excluded in every case, and a son being a younger son at twenty-one does not lose his portion by afterwards becoming the eldest. A second son attaining twenty-one is thus in a position, in case he marries, to make a certain provision for his wife and children, which he could not do if his portion was liable to be defeated by the subsequent death of his elder brother. And if it is urged, as a possible hardship, that the wife and daughters of an eldest son who dies before his father may find themselves unprovided for, the reply is that an eldest son can always, with the concurrence of the father, bar the entail and re-settle the estate, and thus make a proper provision for his family, and it may, as a general rule, be presumed that the father will not refuse his concurrence in a re-settlement without some good reason.

Plan adopted for making the amount vary according to the number of children.

(g) Some care is requisite in framing a charge of portions, where, as is generally the case, it is wished to make the amount ultimately raiseable depend on the number who obtain vested interests. The plan formerly in general use was to make the amount charged depend in the first instance on the number of children born, the portion of each child to be a vested interest at twenty-one, or in the case of a daughter at marriage, and a survivorship or accruer clause was added to the effect that, if any child died before attaining a vested interest, his or her portion (original and accruing) should go to the others, except so far as any part might have been raised for his advancement, and with a proviso intended to prevent

3. THE said hereditaments are hereinbefore limited to the trustees of these presents for the said term of one thousand years, UPON TRUST that the said trustees shall by mortgage of the hereditaments comprised in the said term or any of them for the whole or any part of the said term, or by or out of the rents and profits thereof, or by any other reasonable ways or means, raise the sum or sums of money to which any child or children shall become entitled for his, her, or their portion or portions under the foregoing charge, as and when the same respectively shall become payable, together with the costs and expenses incurred in or about the execution of this trust: AND UPON FURTHER TRUST that so long as any portion which shall have become payable under the foregoing charge shall remain unpaid, the said trustees shall, out of the rents and profits of the said hereditaments, or by any other reasonable ways or means, raise and pay to the person entitled to such unpaid portion interest thereon after the rate of £4 per cent. per annum by half-yearly payments, and so that if such person shall be a married woman under the age of twenty-one years, her receipt shall be a sufficient discharge for such interest, notwithstanding her infancy: AND UPON FURTHER TRUST that if at the decease of the said A. B. any child entitled in expectancy to a portion under the foregoing charge shall be under the age of twenty-one years, and being a daughter shall be unmarried, the said trustees shall, with and out of the rents and profits of the said hereditaments or by any other reasonable ways and means, raise such annual sum for the maintenance and education of each such minor as the said trustees shall think fit, not exceeding what the interest of the expectant portion of such minor would amount to after the rate of £4 per cent. per annum, and shall apply the annual any child from having his or her portion increased by survivorship beyond the limit prescribed. This form was well understood, and answered its purpose, but was somewhat cumbersome. In the later editions of Davidson's Precedents (vol. iii.) the plan is adopted of making the amount raiseable depend on the number of children who attain twenty-one, or being daughters marry, with a proviso attached to the advancement clause for the purpose of preventing the whole machinery from being thrown out of gear by reason of a son dying during minority after having received part of his presumptive portion by way of advancement. In the above Precedent the authors have adopted the plan, which appears to them equally effective and convenient, of charging the property in the first place with the maximum, subject to a proviso reducing the amount within the limits intended in the event of the number of children not being sufficient to require the maximum.

[7. THE said A. B. or other the person or persons having for the time being the powers of a tenant for life under the Settled Land Act, 1882, and the trustees of these presents for and on behalf of any such person who shall be an infant, shall have the following powers in addition to those conferred by the Act, namely:—

1st. To lease (e) any part of the hereditaments hereby settled or any easement, right, or privilege over or in relation to the same for building purposes (as defined in the said Act) for any term not exceeding 999 years in like manner as if 999 years had been mentioned in section 6 of the said Act as the maximum length of term for a building lease instead of 99 years;

2ndly. To convey (e) any part of the hereditaments hereby settled, or any easement, right or privilege over or in relation to the same, to any person or persons for building purposes (as defined in the said Act) in fee simple or for any less estate in consideration of a yearly rent-charge to be reserved and made payable out of the hereditaments to be so conveyed, and to be also secured by covenant or otherwise as the person or persons exercising this power shall think fit;

(c) The surviving or continuing trustees, so long as there are two, will be able to exercise all the powers and duties of the Act. It is not desirable to insert any express provision, as authorized by sect. 39, enabling a single trustee to receive capital trust money. Whenever the trustees are reduced to one, there will be no difficulty in appointing another or others under the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 31.

(d) The Act is set out at full length in the Appendix to the first volume.

(e) In some parts of the country it is customary to make building leases for very long terms, or, instead of granting building leases, to make grants in fee simple at fee farm rents; where this custom prevails, the form given above will be found useful. If it is omitted, the sanction of the Court would have to be obtained under sect. 10 of the Settled Land Act, 1882.

3rdly. To convey part of the hereditaments hereby settled (not exceeding in any one parish — acres) by way of gift or by way of sale for a price less than the full value thereof, to any person or persons or body corporate in fee simple as and for the site of a church, school, hospital, or almshouse, or as and for a yard, garden, or ground to be annexed thereto, or for a burying ground, or for any other religious or charitable purpose ;

(m) In a case like this, the settlement is necessarily made subject to the annuity, and any sale by the tenant for life under the Settled Land Act will also be subject to it. If the annuitant should refuse to concur in the sale, the purchaser will probably be willing to complete upon being satisfied that the annuity will be payable out of the income of the purchase-money. To prevent any doubt on this point, it seems desirable to limit by the settlement a term of years to the trustees, upon an express trust to pay the annuity. This trust will be transferred to the purchase-money by sect. 22, sub-s. 6, of the Settled Land Act, 1882.

Power to same tenants for life to limit terms for raising portions,

8. If the said A. B. or any subsequent tenant for life shall exercise the power of charging with portions hereinbefore conferred on him, it shall be lawful for him by the same or any other deed or by his will to limit and appoint the hereditaments charged with portions as aforesaid to trustees for any term or terms of years without impeachment of waste, UPON SUCH TRUSTS for raising the money charged for portions, together with the costs and expenses of and incidental to the execution of such trusts, as the person for the time being exercising this power shall think fit: AND the person exercising this power may, in and by such appointment, direct or authorize the trustees of the term to be thereby created during the minority of any child who, if of full age, would be entitled in possession to a portion under such appointment to raise out of the rents and profits of the hereditaments comprised in the same term or otherwise, such annual sum as the person exercising this power shall direct, or as the said trustees shall think fit, not exceeding what interest on the expectant portion of such minor would amount to after the rate of £4 per cent. per annum, and to apply the same for the maintenance and education of such minor, with liberty for the said trustees to pay the same to the guardian or any of the guardians of such minor for the purpose aforesaid, without being liable to see to the application thereof: AND the person for the time being exercising this power may also, if he thinks fit, by any such appointment as aforesaid, authorize the said trustees to raise by mortgage or otherwise any part or parts not exceeding together one moiety of the presumptive portion of any son under such appointment, and to apply the same for the advancement, preferment, or benefit of such son.

and annual sums for maintenance;

and to confer power of advancement.

Definition of term "younger sons."

9. THE term "younger sons" hereinbefore used with reference to the powers of charging with portions shall be construed to mean and include every son of the person for the time being exercising the said power not being at his birth or becoming during his minority an eldest or only son entitled to the hereditaments hereby settled for an estate in tail-male in possession, or in remainder immediately expectant on the life estate of his father, or on some estate prior in order of limitation to such life estate; and also (if the person exercising the said power shall so declare by deed or will, but not otherwise), any son who being an eldest or only son entitled in remainder as aforesaid when he attains the age of twenty-one years shall afterwards die before his estate tail falls into possession, without having disentailed the said hereditaments or any part thereof with the consent of the protector of the settlement (a).

RE-SETTLEMENT BY FATHER AND ELDEST SON.

10. (The same as Article 6 of Precedent No. XXVI., supra, p. 351.)

11. The tenant for life or other person or persons having for the time being power under the Settled Land Act, 1882, to sell or lease the hereditaments hereby settled (including the trustees of these presents on behalf of any infant) shall have the following powers in addition to those conferred by the said Act, namely (Additional powers as in Precedent No. XXVI., Article 7, p. 352).

Additional powers given to tenant for life.

[12. (Same as Article 8 of Precedent No. XXVI., supra, p. 353).]

13. It shall not be necessary for any tenant for life under these presents, when intending, &c. (sales, &c., may be made under statutory power without giving notice to trustees, supra, p. 353).

14, 15, 16. (Same as Articles 10, 11, and 12 of Precedent No. XXVI., substituting in Article 11 "any tenant for life or person having the powers of a tenant for life" for "the said A. B.")

(a) See p. 346, supra, note. In that note it is submitted that it is right to exclude from a portion the representatives of an eldest or only son who dies before his estate tail falls into possession, on the ground that such son when he attains twenty-one may, with the concurrence of his father, bar the entail, and provide for his family, and that it is not to be presumed that the father will refuse such concurrence without sufficient reason. But this argument is not conclusive when applied to a set of limitations such as those in the above precedent. The tenant for life for the time being may happen to be the uncle, and not the father, of the first tenant in tail, and in such a case it is not impossible that he may withhold his consent to a re-settlement of the estates on his nephew coming of age, and thus deprive the latter of the opportunity of making a provision for his wife and younger children. To meet this possibility the appointor is enabled, if he thinks fit, to let in an eldest son dying before his estate tail falls into possession, and without having disentailed.

19. (Same as No. 13 in Precedent No. XXVI.)

Appointment
of new trustees.

20. THE power of appointing new trustees conferred by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, shall, for the purposes of these presents, be vested in the said W. B. and A. B. during their joint lives, and in the survivor of them during his life.

Power of

21. THE powers of leasing and sale and exchange, and for the appointment of new trustees, contained in the hereinbefore recited indenture of settlement of the — day of —, shall remain in full force during the life of the said W. B., and may be exercised so as to override the uses, powers, and provisions limited and declared by and in these presents, and any hereditaments purchased or received in exchange under any exercise of such powers shall be settled to the uses which shall be then subsisting in the hereditaments hereby settled under the joint operation of the said indenture of settlement and these presents.

(a) In order to make this collection of precedents complete, a form of strict settlement by a registered proprietor is here given; but the fact that a registered proprietor cannot make an effectual settlement of real estate except through the intervention of trustees, is one of the reasons which is likely to prevent an owner of a family estate from availing himself of the Land Transfer Act. At present, according to the usual form of a strict settlement, the trustees take no estate in the freehold, but have merely powers enabling them to intervene at the request of the settlor, or during

Where, however, land is registered, it will probably be thought necessary, for the protection of the interests created by the settlement, that he should constitute the trustees registered proprietors, either alone or jointly with himself. In the form given above it is supposed that the settlor and trustees are constituted registered proprietors, for which purpose they must be clothed with the legal estate in fee simple as joint tenants. They then by a separate deed (which will not be registered) convey the property to a grantee to uses to the use of the settlor during his life, with remainder to the use of the trustees in fee simple upon trusts creating equitable estates tail and for securing a jointure and portions for younger children. The effect of such a deed will be to make the settlor tenant for life, with all the powers conferred on a tenant for life by statute.

Construction
of powers of appointment
amongst children.

(a) A power to appoint to children in such proportions as the donee shall direct, is effectually exercised by an appointment of a limited interest to one, and of the corpus of the fund to another. Alexander v. Alexander, 2 Ves. sen. 640; Bristowe v. Ward, 2 Ves. 336. So a general power to appoint a fund amongst the children in such manner as the donee shall direct, or to charge real estate with a sum for portions of children, authorizes an appointment to trustees in trust to pay the income or rents to a daughter for her separate use. Alexander v. Alexander, ubi supra; Maddison v. Andrew, 1 Ves. sen. 59; Ratcliffe v. Hampson, 1 Jur. N. S. 1104; Thornton v. Bright, 2 My. & Cr. 230; Dickinson v. Mort, Ha. 178. But if there is a restraint on anticipation, and the daughter was unborn at the date of the creation of the power, the Court will reject the words creating such restraint as infringing the rule against perpetuities, and uphold the appointment in other respects. Fry v. Capper, 1 Kay, 170; Re Teague's Settlement, L. R. 10 Eq. 564; In re Cunynghame's Settlement, 11 Eq. 324; Buckton v. Hay, 11 Ch. D. 645; Herbert v. Webster, 15 Ch. D. 610.

Under the ordinary power of appointment among children, an appointment may be made to such uses or upon such trusts as a child, being an object of the power, shall by deed or will (and if the child was born at the time of the creation of the power, but not otherwise, as such child shall by will alone) appoint. Jebb v. Tugwell, 7 De G. Mac. & Gor. 668; Phipson v. Turner, 9 Sim. 227; Morgan v. Gronow, L. R. 16 Eq. 1.

Appointment
may be made to trustee for object;

Again, under such a power the fund may be appointed to trustees in trust for the objects of the power (Trollope v. Linton, 1 Sim. & St. 477); and real estate may be appointed to trustees upon trust to sell and divide the proceeds among the objects. Roberts v. Dixall, 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 668, pl. 19; Long v. Long, 5 Ves. 445; Kenworthy v. Bate, 6 Ves. 793; Fowler v. Cohn, 21 Beav. 360; Cowx v. Foster, 1 J. & H. 30.

or, by direction of object, to persons who are not objects.

Again, under such a power the fund may by the direction of a child, either in contemplation of or subsequently to marriage, be appointed in favour of his or her issue, or to the trustees of his or her settlement. Such an arrangement is regarded, first, as an appointment, and then as a settlement by the object of the power. Thompson v. Simpson, 1 Dru. & War. 459. See also White v. St. Barbe, 1 V. & B. 399; Sug. Pow. 670; Limbard v. Grote, 1 My. & K. 1; Morgan v. Gronow, L. R. 16 Eq. 1. And an appointment of this kind made on the marriage of an infant daughter by the direction of her intended husband has been held good. Fitzroy v. Duke of Richmond, 27 Beav. 190.

In Wright v. Goff, 22 Beav. 207, a tenant for life had a power of appointing a fund amongst her children. A married woman was the only object of the power, and an arrangement was entered into between the tenant for life and the married woman and her husband, whereby the fund was appointed to her and then re-settled, giving an interest to her children and to a stranger. The husband survived, and the transaction was held to be binding on him.

In exercising a power of appointment among children or other objects, it must be borne in mind that the substantial motive of the appointment must be the benefit of the objects of the power, and that an appointment made to such objects with a view not to their exclusive benefit, but for the benefit either wholly or partially of the donee of the power, or any other person, is void, as being what is technically called a fraud on the power. As to fraudulent exercise of powers.

In Hitchinbroke v. Seymour, 1 B. C. C. 395, lands were settled in strict settlement, with a limitation of a term to trustees, to raise either in the lifetime of the tenant for life, if he should so direct, or after his decease, portions for his younger children, to be paid at such time as the tenant for life should direct. The tenant for life directed the trustees to raise the sum for an only daughter, being fourteen years of age, immediately. The daughter died shortly afterwards, and then the father claimed the sum as her administrator; but the Court held that this was a bad execution of the power. It appears, from what was said by Lord Eldon in Macqueen v. Farquhar, 11 Ves. 479, that the father knew that the child was in a consumption, so that the appointment was evidently made with a view to his own benefit; and this must be considered as the true ground of the judgment, rather than that given in Brown's Report, viz., that "it is contrary to the nature of a charge for children to have it raised before it is wanted." In Fearon v. Desbrisay, 14 Beav. 635, personal estate was settled in trust for A. for life, and after his decease for his children, at such ages, &c. as he should appoint, and, in default of appointment, for the children equally at twenty-one, with a power of maintenance and a gift over in case no child should become absolutely entitled. A., having a child eight months old, and another en ventre sa mère, appointed the fund to all his children living at his decease. One of the children survived A., but died an infant, and it was held that the appointment was good, and that the fund passed to the child's mother as administratrix. It will be seen that in this case the donee of the power could gain no personal benefit from the mode in which he exercised it, and there was no evidence to show that the appointment was not made bonâ fide. In Beere v. Hoffmister, 23 Beav. 103, a joint power of appointment amongst children in the usual form was exercised by the husband and wife in favour of an only daughter, who was four years old. The daughter was in good health at the time of the appointment, but died shortly afterwards, whereby the fund passed to her father as her administrator. It was held that the appointment was good; but in giving judgment the M. R. observed that if the father could have made the appointment available for raising money, and had done so, it would have materially altered his view of the case. On the other hand, in Wellesley v. Mornington, 2 K. & J. 143, an appointment was made to an only son, who was then in a state of disease from which he died within a year, and the Court held, upon all the circumstances of the case as proved tion of the marriage then intended, and which was shortly afterwards solemnized, between the said A. B. and the said C. D.), it was agreed and declared that the said E. F., G. H., by the evidence, that the appointment was made by the father with a view to benefit himself, and was therefore void. See also Gee v. Gurney, 2 Coll. 486; Salmon v. Gibbs, 3 De G. & Sm. 343.

The result of the above cases seems to be, that an appointment to a child, however young, is not in itself necessarily fraudulent, though the effect may be to give the whole fund to the donee of the power as administrator; but that such an appointment will be held void if from the facts of the case, as, e.g., from the child being in bad health at the time, and likely to die soon, it seems to the Court that the intention of the appointor was to benefit himself, and not the appointee. See Henty v. Wrey, 21 Ch. D. 332.

Appointment
with a view to benefit strangers.

It is equally a fraud on the power if the appointment is made with a view to benefit a stranger, as, for instance, upon a secret understanding that the appointee shall re-assign the whole or part of the fund to a stranger. Daubeney v. Cockburn, 1 Mer. 626. In Birley v. Birley, 25 Beav. 299, an appointment was made to two children, who, a year afterwards, settled the appointed fund on persons who were not objects of the power, the deed containing a recital that when the appointment was made it was understood that the appointees should consider themselves as possessed of the funds upon the trust expressed in the settlement. The appointment was held void. So, also, in a case where the donee of a power to appoint amongst children executed an appointment in favour of two of her children, and such appointment was made on a previous understanding that they should re-settle the property appointed, firstly, for the benefit of themselves, and finally for persons not objects of the power, the appointment was held to be bad. Prior v. Prior, 10 Jur. N. S. 603.

If the motive or object of the appointment is to benefit a stranger, it makes no difference that the appointee may be ignorant of such motive or object. Thus, where a married woman, having a power of appointment among her children, appointed the fund by will to her eldest daughter, in order that she might thereout benefit her father (the testatrix's husband), it being arranged between the testatrix and her husband that after the death of the former the latter should inform the appointee of the object of the appointment, leaving it in her discretion to carry out her mother's wishes, the appointment was held bad. In re Marsden's Trusts, 4 Drew. 594.

In a late case, certain appointments made by a father with a view to prevent the marriage contemplated by one of his daughters, and of which he disapproved, were held to be frauds on the power, and void. Topham v. Duke of Portland, 1 De G. J. & S. 517; 11 H. L. C. 32; L. R. 5 C. A. 40.

Suspicion not sufficient to invalidate
appointment.

But a mere suspicion that the appointor's motive was to benefit himself or others is not sufficient to invalidate the appointment. Thus, in M^cQueen v. Farquhar, 11 Ves. 467, a tenant for life entered into a contract for sale, but finding that he could not make a good title without exercising a power reserved to him of appointing the estate among all or any of his children, he exercised the power in favour of his eldest son in fee. Then the father and mother (who were entitled respectively to life estates), as well as the son, conveyed the estate to the purchaser in consideration of £8,000 paid to the father, mother, and son; it was held that the power was well executed, and that the purchaser must take the title. Lord Eldon observed there was nothing to show that the son was not to receive a due proportion of the money when the contract was afterwards executed by the deed. See also Green v. Pulsford, 2 Beav. 70; Crockforth v. Sutcliffe, and I. K., their executors, administrators, and assigns, should stand possessed of certain trust funds therein particularly mentioned, UPON the trusts therein declared concerning the same

UNDER POWER TO CHILDREN.

25 L. J. Ch. 313; Hamilton v. Kirwan, 2 Jo. & Lat. 393; Roach v. Trood, 3 Ch. D. 429.

And if the appointment is made with a view to secure a benefit to all the objects of the power, the appointment is not bad, although the donee may to some extent participate in such benefit; as where an appointment was made to one of the objects, and the appointor and appointee then executed a deed to enable building leases to be granted, there being no power to grant building leases in the original settlement, and subject thereto the property was re-limited substantially to the old uses, the appointment was held valid. In re Huish's Charity, L. R. 10 Eq. 5.

Nor does it render an appointment bad that there is a contemporaneous arrangement with the appointees, provided that their substantial interests in the property are not thereby diminished. Therefore where a tenant for life, with a power of selection amongst his children, had received of the trustees part of the trust moneys in breach of trust, and afterwards appointed to his daughters, in exclusion of his son, this money, which had been advanced to him, and a sum of £500, and contemporaneously with the appointment the daughters exchanged the sums so appointed for an estate of the father, the transaction was supported, inasmuch as the estate was not proved to be of less value than the amount given in exchange. Askham v. Barker, 17 Beav. 37.

Contempo-
arrangement.

In a case where, on the marriage of a daughter under age, the father made an appointment to her, and by the settlement the appointed money, and also a further sum secured by the father's bond, was settled on the usual trusts for the daughter and her husband, and the issue of the marriage, with an ultimate trust in default of issue for the father, the appointment was held good, on the ground that all that the father took was the husband's marital right, the daughter not being bound. A similar appointment and settlement in the case of another daughter who was of age was upheld by James, V.-C., on the ground that the father gave a sufficient consideration for the reversionary interest; but the Lord Chancellor on appeal thought the transaction of doubtful validity. Cooper v. Cooper, L. R. 8 Eq. 312; 5 C. A. 203.

Under a power of distribution amongst the children, the appointment of one share corruptly does not invalidate the appointment as to the remaining shares. Rowley v. Rowley, Kay, 242.

Where a power is given to appoint among several objects in such shares as the donee may think fit, but he is not expressly authorized to exclude any one of the objects, it was necessary until lately to give some share, however small, to every object; and if one were excluded the appointment was bad. But by the Act 37 & 38 Vict. c. 37, it is enacted that no appointment to be made after the passing of the Act of any property among several objects shall be invalid at law or in equity on the ground that any object of such power has been altogether excluded, subject to a proviso that the Act shall not apply where there is an express provision declaring the amount from which no object shall be excluded.

Exclusive
appointment
may now be made.

Where the object of a power is also entitled to a share in default of appointment, an assurance of his share before any appointment is made does not pass a share acquired by him under a subsequent appointment. Sweetapple v. Horlock, 11 Ch. D. 745.

A power to appoint by will may be released by deed; and a covenant by the donee not to exercise the power so as to diminish the share which the covenantee would take in default of appointment is a release pro tanto, and testamentary power.

If a donee covenants to appoint a certain sum in favour of one of the objects, the fact that it becomes thereby his interest to comply with the covenant does not render void a subsequent appointment in accordance with the covenant.

An infant cannot execute a power over real estate, except a power simply collateral (Hearle v. Greenbank, 3 Atk. 695); but, as regards personalty, he may exercise, otherwise than by will, a power in gross, i.e., a power over property which but for the appointment would belong to some other person. It follows that the ordinary power of appointment among children contained in the marriage settlement of an infant may be exercised by her during infancy. Re D'Angibau, 15 Ch. D. 228; Palmer v. Locke, 15 Ch. D. 294.

SEPARATION DEEDS.

DEED of SEPARATION between HUSBAND and WIFE.

DEED OF SEPARATION.

COVENANT by HUSBAND to permit his WIFE to live separate; COVENANTS by the TRUSTEES to indemnify the HUSBAND against all obligations to MAINTAIN his WIFE, or to answer for her DEBTS (a). PROVISION as to CUSTODY of CHILDREN.

THIS INDENTURE, made, &c., BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. Parties.
(husband), of the first part, C. B., of, &c., wife of the said A. B., of the second part, and E. F., of, &c. (trustee), of the third part :
WHEREAS unhappy differences have arisen between the said Recite that such arrangement as is hereinafter expressed : AND WHEREAS the said A. B. and C. his wife have two children, viz., L. B., now of

(a) It is now settled that an agreement by husband and wife to live separate is not illegal as contrary to public policy, and it has been decided in several cases that such an agreement, if founded on sufficient consideration, may be pleaded by way of defence to a suit by either party for the restitution of conjugal rights. Hunt v. Hunt, 4 D. F. & J. 221; Marshall v. Marshall, 5 P. D. 19; Besant v. Wood, 12 C. D. 605. But see the observations of Selborne, L. C. on Hunt v. Hunt in Cahill v. Cahill, 8 H. L. 420. Separation agreement may be pleaded as a bar to action for restitution of conjugal rights.

The compromise of a matrimonial suit, or the abandonment of threatened proceedings where circumstances exist which would be a ground for such proceedings, is a sufficient consideration for a separation agreement, and for any stipulations as to money or property which either party may, as part of the same arrangement, make in favour of the other. McGregor v. McGregor, 21 Q. B. D. 424; Cahill v. Cahill, 8 H. L. 429. Compromise of a matrimonial suit, or of threatened proceedings a sufficient consideration.

If the separation arises from a mere disinclination by the parties to live together, there being no misconduct or alleged misconduct such as would be a ground for legal proceedings, some other consideration must be sought for in order to support the deed. If the wife has separate property, a covenant by her to indemnify the husband against her debts would be a sufficient consideration for a covenant by the husband to make her an allowance, or giving her any other benefit. But if she has no separate property her contract would be inoperative, and the intervention of a trustee to covenant on her behalf would be necessary. Stevens v. Olive, 2 B. C. C. 90; Worrall v. Jacob, 3 Mer. 226; Walrond v. Walrond, Johns. 18; Re Shakespear, 30 C. D. 169. If wife has no separate property, trustee must covenant.

the age of — years, and M. B., now of the age of — years: NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH, that in pursuance of the said agreement, and in consideration of the premises, and of the covenants hereinafter contained on the part of the said C. B. and E. F., the said A. B. hereby covenants with the said C. B., and also by way of separate covenant with the said E. F. as her trustee, that the said C. B. shall and may at all times hereafter, notwithstanding her coverture, live separate and apart from the said A. B., as if she were a feme sole, and shall henceforth be freed from the control and authority of the said A. B., and shall reside in such place or places and in such manner as she shall think fit, and that the said A. B. will not at any time hereafter require her to live with him, or institute any legal proceedings or take any other steps whatsoever for that purpose, and will not in anywise molest or interfere with the said C. B. in her manner of living or otherwise: AND ALSO that he the said A. B. will, during the joint lives of himself and the said C. B., if they shall so long live separate from each other (a), pay to the said E. F. the annual sum of £—— in trust for the said C. B. for her sole and separate use, and so that she shall not have power to dispose thereof in the way of anticipation, the said annual sum to be paid by equal half-yearly payments on the — day of —, and the — day of — in every year, the first thereof to be made on the — day of — next: BUT so nevertheless that the said annual sum shall cease if the marriage between the said A. B. and C. B. shall at any time hereafter be dissolved by a court of competent jurisdiction (b): AND ALSO that all property (if any) now belonging to the said C. B. for any estate or interest, whether in possession, reversion, or otherwise,

(a) There are cases in which it would be prudent on the part of the husband to stipulate that the payment shall continue so long only as the wife remains chaste. In such case the words "and the said C. B. shall continue to lead a chaste life" should be introduced here. Such a condition could not be insisted on in the absence of an express stipulation. See Hart v. Hart, 18 Ch. D. 670; Bradley v. Bradley, 7 P. D. 237.

(b) In the absence of this proviso, the Court would have power, after a decree for dissolution of the marriage, to relieve the husband either wholly or partially from the covenant under 22 & 23 Vict. c. 61, s. 5. See Worsley v. Worsley, L. R. 1 P. & M. 648; Bullock v. Bullock, 2 ib. 389; Jump v. Jump, 8 P. D. 159. If the annual sum is made payable so long only as the wife remains chaste, this proviso will be omitted as unnecessary.

shall belong to her for her sole and separate use (c): AND THAT if the said C. B. shall die in the lifetime of the said A. B. all property (if any) of the said C. B., which but for this covenant would on her death go and belong to the said A. B. in his marital right, or as her administrator, or as tenant by the curtesy, shall go to the person or persons and in the manner to whom and which the same would have gone if the said A. B. had died in her lifetime. AND THIS INDENTURE ALSO WITNESSETH that, in further pursuance of the said agreement, and in consideration of the premises, the said C. B. and also the said E. F. as her surety hereby jointly and severally covenant with the said A. B. that they, the said C. B. and E. F., will at all times hereafter, during the continuance of the said separation, keep indemnified the said A. B. from and against all debts and liabilities hereafter to be contracted or incurred by the said C. B., whether for her wearing apparel, maintenance, support, or otherwise, and from and against all claims and demands for or on account of the same: AND FURTHER, that the said C. B., or any person on her behalf, shall not nor will at any time hereafter commence or prosecute any action or other proceeding for compelling the said A. B. to cohabit with her the said C. B. or to allow her any support, maintenance, or alimony (except the said annual sum hereinbefore covenanted to be paid to her) (d), and shall not nor will molest (e) the said A. B. in any manner: AND IT IS HEREBY AGREED, that the said A. B. shall have the custody of the said L. B., and the said C. B. shall have the custody of the said M. B., and that the said A. B. shall have access to the said M. B., and the said C. B. shall have access to the said L. B. under such arrangements as shall from time to time be made between them for that purpose, or if they shall be unable to agree, then under such arrangements as shall be made by the said E. F. (f).

IN WITNESS, &c.

(c) The clause in the text will be unnecessary if the marriage took place since the 31st December, 1882.

(d) This covenant is binding on the wife, although there may be afterwards a decree for judicial separation on account of the husband's adultery. Gandy v. Gandy, 7 P. D. 169. But if there is a dissolution of the marriage, the Court can vary the deed, and order a larger sum for alimony, under 22 & 23 Vict. c. 61, s. 5. Morrall v. Morrall, 6 P. D. 98.

children. But by the stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 54, power was given to the Court of Chancery to order an infant under the age of seven years to be delivered into the custody of his mother. By a recent Act (36 Vict. c. 12) the power of the Court is extended to the age of sixteen years, and the Court has also power to make regulations as to the access of the father or other guardian. The Act also provides that no agreement contained in any separation deed made between the father and mother of an infant shall be held invalid by reason only of its providing that the father shall give up the custody or control of the infant to the mother, but with a proviso that no Court shall enforce such agreement if it will not be for the benefit of the infant to give effect thereto. As to the principles which guide the Court in cases under the Act, see In re Taylor, 4 C. D. 157; Re Besant, 11 C. D. 508. Before the Act, an agreement that the wife should have the custody of the children had been held void. Vansittart v. Vansittart, 4 K. & J. 62; Walrond v. Walrond, Johns. 18.

purpose.

Charity, in the legal sense of the term, includes all those objects or purposes which are enumerated as charitable in the preamble of the Statute 43 Eliz. c. 4 (a), or included within the purview of that preamble. In accordance with this definition, every disposition is charitable which has for its object (1) the relief of the indigent; (2) the advancement of learning; (3) the maintenance or propagation of the Christian religion, whether according to the doctrines and rites of the Church of England, or those of the Church of Rome, or of any sect or body of Protestant non-conformists (b); or (4) the promotion of any other useful public purpose (c).

Statutes of Mortmain.

Divers ancient statutes, called the Statutes of Mortmain, prohibited alienations of land to corporate bodies

(a) This Act is repealed, except as regards the preamble, by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888.

(b) By 9 & 10 Vict. c. 59, it is provided that her Majesty's subjects professing the Jewish religion in respect to their schools, places for religious worship, education, and charitable purposes, and the property held therewith, shall be subject to the same laws as her Majesty's Protestant subjects dissenting from the Church of England are subject to. It would appear, therefore, that gifts for the maintenance of Jewish places of worship or the Jewish religion would now be good charitable gifts.

without a licence from the Crown, under pain of forfeiture. Dispositions of land to unincorporate persons in trust for charitable purposes were not within those statutes, but were subjected to restrictions by the Act 9 Geo. 2, c. 36. The Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888 (d) (which came into operation on the 13th August, 1888), repeals the Statutes of Mortmain and also the Act 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, and the Acts amending it, but the provisions of the new Act are substantially the same as those of the repealed Acts.

Mortmain and Charitable
Uses Act, 1888.

Part I. of the Act of 1888 provides that land shall not be assured to or for the benefit of, or acquired by or on behalf of, any corporation in mortmain otherwise than under the authority of a licence from the Crown or of a statute for the time being in force, and that if any land is assured otherwise than as aforesaid, the same shall be forfeited to the Crown, subject to certain reservations in favour of a mesne lord. And her Majesty is expressly empowered to grant licences to assure and acquire lands in mortmain (e).

Part II. of the Act of 1888 relates to charitable uses, and is as follows:—

Sect. 4.—(1.) Subject to the savings and exceptions contained in this Act, every assurance of land (f) to or for the benefit of any charitable uses, and every assurance of personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land to or for the benefit of any charitable uses, shall be made in accordance with the requirements of this Act, and unless so made shall be void.

Conditions under which assurances may be made to charitable uses.

(2.) The assurance must be made to take effect in possession for the charitable uses to or for the benefit of which it is made immediately from the making thereof.

(3.) The assurance must, except as provided by this section,

(e) Sects. 1, 2, 3.

(f) The term "assurance" includes a gift, conveyance, appointment, lease, transfer, settlement, mortgage, charge, incumbrance, devise, bequest, and every other assurance by deed, will, or other instrument. "Land" includes tenements and hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, of whatsoever tenure, and any estate and interest in land. As to what is an interest in land, see Dissertation on Wills, "Gifts to Charities."

be without any power of revocation, reservation, condition, or provision for the benefit of the assurator or of any person claiming under him.

- (4.) Provided that the assurance, or any instrument forming part of the same transaction, may contain all or any of the following provisions, so, however, that they reserve the same benefits to persons claiming under the assurator as to the assurator himself; namely,

(i) The grant or reservation of a peppercorn or other nominal rent;

(ii) The grant or reservation of mines or minerals;

(iii) The grant or reservation of any easement;

(iv) Covenants or provisions as to the erection, repair, position, or description of buildings, the formation or repair of streets or roads, drainage or nuisances, and covenants or provisions of the like nature for the use and enjoyment as well of the land comprised in the assurance as of any other adjacent or neighbouring land;

(v) A right of entry on nonpayment of any such rent or on breach of any such covenant or provision;

(vi) Any stipulations of the like nature for the benefit of the assurator or of any person claiming under him.

- (5.) If the assurance is made in good faith on a sale for full and valuable consideration (g), that consideration may consist wholly or partly of a rent, rentcharge, or other annual payment reserved or made payable to the vendor, or any other person, with or without a right of re-entry for nonpayment thereof.

- (6.) If the assurance is of land, not being land of copyhold or customary tenure, or is of personal estate, not being stock in the public funds, it must be made by deed executed in the presence of at least two witnesses.

- (7.) If the assurance is of land, or of personal estate, not being stock in the public funds, then, unless it is made in

(g) "Full and valuable consideration" includes such a consideration either actually paid upon or before the making of the assurance, or reserved or made payable to the vendor or any other person by way of rent, rent-charge, or other annual payment in perpetuity, or for any term of years or other period, with or without a right of re-entry for non-payment thereof, or partly paid and partly reserved as aforesaid. Sect. 10.

good faith for full and valuable consideration, it must be made at least twelve months before the death of the assurator, including in those twelve months the days of the making of the assurance and of the death.

- (8.) If the assurance is of stock in the public funds, then, unless it is made in good faith for full and valuable consideration, it must be made by transfer thereof in the public books kept for the transfer of stock at least six months before the death of the assurator, including in those six months the days of the transfer and of the death.
- (9.) If the assurance is of land, or of personal estate other than stock in the public funds, it must, within six months after the execution thereof, be enrolled in the Central Office of the Supreme Court of Judicature, unless in the case of an assurance of land to or for the benefit of charitable uses those uses are declared by a separate instrument, in which case that separate instrument must be so enrolled within six months after the making of the assurance of the land.

Where there has been an omission to enrol a deed within the proper time, the omission may be remedied in certain cases (d).

Omission to enrol may be remedied.

At the time of the passing of the Act of 1888, divers statutory enactments were in force whereby particular charitable corporations were enabled to hold lands either generally or to a limited extent, notwithstanding the Statutes of Mortmain, or whereby gifts to particular charities or in trust for particular charitable purposes were exempted either wholly or partially from the restrictions imposed by the Act 9 Geo. 2, c. 36. All these exemptions are re-enacted in effect by Part III. of the new Act, which is as follows:—

Particular institutions or gifts for particular purposes were exempted by statute from operation of 9 Geo. 2, c. 36.

Sect. 6.—(1.) Parts One and Two of this Act shall not apply to an assurance by deed of land of any quantity or to an assurance by will of land of the quantity hereinafter mentioned for the purposes only of a public park, a school-house for an elementary school, a public museum, or an assurance by will of personal estate to be applied in or towards the purchase of land for all or any of the same purposes only :

- (2.) Provided that a will containing such an assurance, and a deed containing such an assurance and made otherwise than in good faith for full and valuable consideration, must be executed not less than twelve months before the death of the assurator, or be a reproduction in substance of a devise made in a previous will in force at the time of such reproduction, and which was executed not less than twelve months before the death of the assurator, and must be enrolled in the books of the Charity Commissioners within six months after the death of the testator, or in case of a deed the execution of the deed.
- (3.) The quantity of land which may be assured by will under this section shall be any quantity not exceeding twenty acres for any one public park, and not exceeding two acres for any one public museum, and not exceeding one acre for any one schoolhouse.
- (4.) In this section :—
 - (i) “public park” includes any park, garden, or other land dedicated or to be dedicated to the recreation of the public ;
 - (ii) “elementary school” means a school or department of a school at which elementary education is the principal part of the education there given, and does not include any school or department of a school at which the ordinary payments in respect of the instruction from each scholar exceed ninepence a week ;
 - (iii) “schoolhouse” includes the teacher’s dwelling-house, the playground (if any), and the offices and premises belonging to or required for a school ;
 - (iv) “public museum” includes buildings used or to be used for the preservation of a collection of paintings or other works of art, or of objects of natural history, or of mechanical or philosophical inventions, instruments, models, or designs, and dedicated or to be dedicated to the recreation of the public, together with any libraries, reading rooms, laboratories, and other offices and premises used or to be used in connexion therewith.

Sect. 7. Part Two of this Act shall not apply to the following assurances :—

Assurances for certain universities, colleges, and societies.

(i) An assurance of land, or personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land, to or in trust for any of the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Durham, and the Victoria University, or any of the colleges or houses of learning within any of those universities, or to or in trust for any of the Colleges of Eton, Winchester, and Westminster, for the better support and maintenance of the scholars only upon the foundations of those last-mentioned colleges, or to or in trust for the warden, council, and scholars of Keble College :

(ii) An assurance, otherwise than by will, to trustees on behalf of any society or body of persons associated together for religious purposes or for the promotion of education, art, literature, science, or other like purposes of land not exceeding two acres for the erection thereon of a building for such purposes, or any of them, or whereon a building used or intended to be used for such purposes, or any of them, has been erected, so that the assurance be made in good faith for full and valuable consideration :

Provided that the trustees of the instrument containing any assurance to which this section applies or declaring the trusts thereof, may, if they think fit, at any time cause the instrument to be enrolled in the Central Office of the Supreme Court of Judicature.

Sect. 8. Where by any statute now in force any provision of the enactments hereby repealed is excluded either wholly or partially from application, or is applied with modification, in every such case the corresponding provision of this Act shall be excluded or applied in like extent and manner.

Substitution of provisions of Act for corresponding repealed enactments.

Under the operation of sect. 8, dispositions of land for charitable purposes are excluded wholly or partially from the operation of the Act in the following cases :—

1. Gifts and sales to the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty for the augmentation of the maintenance of poor persons, &c., or to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the endowment or augmentation of the income of ministers or perpetual curates of new district churches, or for providing a district church or chapel, may be made by deed enrolled under 27 Hen. 8, or by will (h).

Gifts for erecting churches, &c.

2. Gifts may be made by deed enrolled under 27 Hen. 8, c. 16, or by will, (such deed or will being executed three calendar months at least before the donor's death), of land not exceeding five acres, or of goods and chattels not exceeding £500 in value, for erecting, rebuilding, repairing, purchasing or providing any church or chapel where the rites of the Church of England are observed, or any house for the residence of the officiating minister of any such church or chapel, or any churchyard or glebe for the same (i).

Endowments
under Church Building Acts.

3. Endowments under the Church Building Acts (k) consisting of or arising out of lands or other hereditaments, or money to be laid out in lands or other hereditaments for the purposes of a site for any church or chapel, churchyard, parsonage house or glebe, or for the use or benefit of any church or chapel, or of the incumbent or minister thereof, or for the repairs thereof, are exempted from the Statutes of Mortmain (l), except where the endowment exceeds the annual value of £300 (m).

School sites.

4. Under the School Sites Acts (n), the Literary and Scientific Institutions Act, 1854 (o), the Consecration of Churchyards Act, 1867 (p), and the Places of Worship Sites Act, 1873 (q), a tenant in fee simple, or in tail, or for life, may convey by way of gift, sale or exchange, a limited quantity of land (1) as a site for a school for the education of poor persons or for the education or board of masters or mistresses of elementary schools, or the residence of the schoolmaster or schoolmistress, or otherwise for the education of such poor persons in religious and useful knowledge. As regards conveyances under the School Sites Acts it is expressly provided that only one witness to the execution of the deed is necessary, and that the deed is to be valid, although the owner or grantor may die within twelve calendar months(r). And the Places of Worship Sites Act and the Library and Scientific Institutions Act contain similar provisions(rr). Neither of these Acts, however, dispenses with the necessity for enrolment, and it is therefore proper to enrol the deed of conveyance, except in cases coming within section 6 of the Act of 1888. Consequently a conveyance by way of gift to a school board or to trustees for a public elementary school should be enrolled(s).

Under School
Sites and other Acts enrolment is not dispensed with.

5. Under the Recreation Grounds Act, 1859, any land may be lawfully conveyed by deed to trustees to be held by them as open public grounds for the resort and recreation of adults and as playgrounds for children and youths, or either of such purposes; and it is expressly provided that the deed need not be enrolled, and that it will be valid, although the donor may die within twelve calendar months(t). In cases not coming within statutory exemption, conveyances on sale to a charity must be enrolled, from whatever source purchase-money is derived.

In cases not coming within any statutory exemption, a conveyance of land by way of sale to trustees for a charitable purpose must be enrolled, from whatever source the purchase-money is derived, e. g., whether it has arisen from the sale of charity land sold to a railway company (v), or otherwise from the proceeds of some endowment, or is provided by voluntary contributions at the time, or is raised by public rates (x).

It is apprehended, therefore, that land bought by guardians of the poor for a workhouse (y), or by a local authority for a cemetery, or a hospital, the purchase-money being paid out of the rates, is a purchase upon a charitable trust, rendering it necessary to enrol the deed.

Effect of death of donor of purchase-money within twelve months.

Where the purchase-money of land is provided by the voluntary gift of one person, the conveyance being made by his direction to trustees for a charitable purpose, the death of that person within twelve calendar months from the date of the deed invalidates the charitable trust, and the land (according to Price v. Hathaway) (z) belongs in equity to his heir. For the same reason, it would appear that if the purchase-money is provided by the contributions of several persons, the death of any one of such persons within the twelve calendar months would invalidate the trust pro tanto (a).

Adaptation of Act to registered land.

As regards registered land, the Act provides that to or in trust for the guardians of any union for the purpose of providing a workhouse, &c., every such conveyance shall be deemed valid notwithstanding 9 Geo. 2, c. 36." This does not dispense with enrolment as regards conveyances executed since the Act.

any assurance required to be made by deed may be made by a registered disposition under the Land Transfer Act, 1875, or any Act amending the same, and any assurance so made need not be executed in the presence of two witnesses, nor be enrolled in the Central Office (b).

The powers and duties of trustees as regards the management of charity property.

The powers and duties of trustees as regards the management of charity property are now regulated, in the case of endowed charities (with certain exceptions), by the Acts of Parliament passed in the present reign, known as the Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1887.

Charitable Trusts Acts.

By those Acts a board is constituted called "The Charity Commissioners for England and Wales" (c), which board is empowered to give advice and directions in all matters relating to the management or administration of any charity, and the trustees acting on such advice or directions will be deemed to have acted in accordance with the trust (d).

Constitution of Board of Charity Commissioners.

Board to give advice and directions to trustees.

The board may authorize leases for building and mining purposes, repairs and improvements, the raising of money by mortgage for any such purpose, and sales and exchanges of charity land (e).

May authorize leases, mortgages and sales.

The secretary is constituted a corporation sole by the title of "The official trustee of charity lands," and the board has power, under certain specified circumstances, and also whenever it appears to them desirable, to make an order vesting any charity lands in the official trustee. The secretary and other persons appointed by the Lord Chancellor are constituted a corporation by the title of "The official trustees of charitable funds" (f).

and no lease in reversion after more than three years of any existing term, or for life, or in consideration wholly or in part of any fine, or for any term of years exceeding twenty-one years, can be granted by the trustees of any charity otherwise than with the express authority of Parliament or of a Court or judge of competent jurisdiction, or according to a scheme legally established, or with the approval of the board.

Appointment
trustees.

The board may make orders for the appointment or removal of trustees of a charity, or for the removal of any schoolmaster or schoolmistress or other officer thereof, or for or relating to the assurance, transfer, payment, or vesting of any real or personal estate, or entitling the official trustees of charitable funds or any other trustees to call for the transfer of any stock, or for the establishment of any scheme for the administration of the charity. But no such order is to be made where the gross annual income of the charity amounts to £50 or upwards, except upon the written application of the trustees of the charity or a majority of them, or, in the case of incorporated trustees, under their common seal (g).

Accounts.

The trustees of any charity are bound to render certain accounts to the board annually (h).

Majority of acting trustees may grant leases of land vested in official trustee.
Majority of trustees may execute assurances.

Where lands are vested in the official trustee, the acting trustees of the charity, or the majority of them (such majority not being less than three), may grant such leases of the lands as they might have granted if the same were legally vested in themselves (i). And where the trustees acting in the administration of any charity have power to determine on any sale, exchange, partition, mortgage, or lease, or other disposition of any property, a majority of those trustees who are present at a meeting duly constituted, and vote on the question, may execute and do all assurances and things for carrying into effect such sale, &c., and such assurances, &c., have the same effect as if they were executed by all the trustees and the official trustee of charity lands (k).

(i) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 124, s. 16.

The Charitable Trusts Acts do not extend to (1) the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, or Durham, or to any cathedral or building registered as a place of meeting for religious worship, and bonâ fide used as such; (2) The Commissioners of Queen Anne's Bounty, the British Museum, or to any friendly or benefit society, or savings bank, or any institution, &c. for religious or charitable purposes, wholly maintained by voluntary contributions; and where any charity is maintained partly by voluntary contributions and partly by means of income arising from any endowment, the Act applies only to the income from endowment, and no donation or bequest to or in trust for any such charity as last aforesaid, of which no special application is directed, and which may be legally applied by the governing or managing body as income in aid of voluntary subscriptions, is subject to the jurisdiction of the board; and no portion of any such donation, &c., or of any voluntary subscription which is set apart and invested by the governing body for the purpose of some defined and specific object or purpose in pursuance of any rule or resolution made or adopted by the governing body, is subject to the jurisdiction of the board. The funds of missionary societies are also exempted (l).

Exemptions
from Act.

The term "endowment," as used above, means an endowment for some specific purpose or trust, and does not include an investment arising from voluntary contributions not appropriated by the donor to any specific purpose. Thus, if money given to a charitable institution for its general purposes is laid out in the purchase of land, the land may be afterwards sold again without the consent of the Charity Commissioners (m).

Endowment,
what is.

The trustees of any exempted charity may apply to the board to have the Charitable Trusts Acts, or any provisions thereof specified in the application, extended to that charity (n).

Exempted charities may on application be brought within Act.

In cases not within Act, jurisdiction remains with Chancery Division.

The powers of the trustees of any charity not within the above Acts depend on the terms of the charter or trust deed by which it is founded, and if these are defective resort must be had to the Chancery Division of the Court to supply the defect.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that A. B., of P—— Court, in the county of ——, Esq., doth by this deed hereby freely and voluntarily convey (b) unto the Rev. C. D., the present rector of the parish of P——, in the county of ——, and E. F. and G. H., both of P—— aforesaid, farmers (the present churchwardens of the said parish), ALL those six cottages, tenements, or almshouses, now being erected by the said A. B. on land belonging to him, situate in the parish of P—— aforesaid, and adjoining the turnpike road leading from —— to ——, and the garden ground or land belonging and adjoining to the said cottages, all of which premises contain together ——, or thereabouts, and the same are delineated in the map or plan drawn in the margin of these presents, and are therein coloured

(a) This deed must be executed in the presence of two witnesses, and enrolled in the Central Office within six months. If the donor dies within twelve months the deed will be void, and it is therefore suggested that he should make a codicil to his will, devising the land, in the event of his death within this period, to some person who will be likely to confirm the deed, but without imposing on him any trust to do so. For the form of such a devise, see Precedents of Wills, No. 614, infra.

(b) Where it is wished, in order to save the expense of the conveyance, which would otherwise be necessary on every change of trustees, to vest the legal estate in charity lands in the official trustee, it is not proper for the founder of the charity to convey it in the first instance to the official trustee—he should convey it to the acting trustees appointed by himself, and when thus clothed with the charitable trust it may be vested in the official trustee by an order of the Board made on the application of the trustees.

age and residing as aforesaid, shall be the P— Court trustee.

3. IF it shall at any time happen that there shall be no duly qualified P— Court trustee, or such trustee being duly qualified shall be unable or unwilling to act, the rector and churchwardens for the time being of the said parish shall for such time act as the sole trustees of the charity.

4. IN accordance with the aforesaid provisions, the above-named A. B., C. D., E. F., and G. H., are hereby constituted the first trustees of the charity, and the said C. D., E. F., and G. H., shall respectively cease to be trustees, if and when they shall respectively cease to be rector and churchwardens of the said parish.

5. WHENEVER any necessity arises for transferring the legal estate in the said premises, the trustees shall, and they may, if they think fit, at any other time, apply to the Charity Commissioners for an order vesting the estate in the official trustee of charity lands.

6. THE trustees shall from time to time elect to be inmates of the cottages such aged or infirm persons, inhabitants of the said parish of P—, as they the trustees shall consider most deserving objects of the charity. Such inmates may be of either sex, and may be either married or single. No able-bodied person shall be elected, and no inmate shall, without the express permission of the trustees, be allowed to have any person, whether a member of his or her family, or any other person, to live with him or her in the almshouses: it being the intention of the founder of the charity to provide a home for aged or infirm persons who would otherwise be probably compelled to end their days in the union workhouse.

7. No person shall be ineligible or considered a less deserving object of the charity by reason or on account of his or her religious opinions.

8. THE inmates of the cottages shall be permitted to use the gardens attached to the cottages, subject to such rules and regulations as the trustees may from time to time prescribe.

9. THE trustees may impose on the inmates of the cottages such small rent as they the trustees may from time to time think necessary or proper for the purpose of paying for the necessary repairs of the cottages, or for insuring the same against loss or damage by fire, or for defraying any expenses which may be incurred in or about the management and administration of the charity, or as evidence of the title of the trustees, but no rent or other payment beyond what shall be necessary for the aforesaid purposes shall be required from the inmates.

GIFT OF COTTAGES FOR ALMSHOUSES.

10. THE trustees may make rules as to the conduct of the inmates, and may at any time expel or remove any inmate either for misconduct, or because, in the opinion of the trustees, he or she is no longer a proper object of the charity, or for any other reason, by giving to him or her one calendar month's notice in that behalf.

Trustees may make rules, and may expel any inmate by giving a month's notice.

11. THE election of inmates of the cottages, and all other business of the charity, shall take place and be transacted at ordinary or special meetings of the trustees.

Business to be conducted at meetings.

12. THERE shall be one ordinary meeting of the trustees held in each year for transacting the general business of the charity, and such ordinary meeting shall be held on some convenient day to be appointed by the trustees themselves.

An ordinary meeting to be held each year.

13. ANY two of the trustees may call a special meeting by delivering at the respective dwelling-houses of the other trustees, or sending to them respectively through the post, twenty-one days' previous notice of such meeting, stating the time and place of holding the same, and the objects or purposes for which it is to be held. A notice sent through the post, and addressed to a trustee at his dwelling-house, shall be effective although such trustee may at the time be absent from home, and may never actually receive such notice.

Special meetings may be called by any two trustees by notice.

14. ALL meetings of the trustees shall be held either at P—— Court aforesaid, or at the rectory, or at such other convenient place within the parish of P——, as shall be agreed on by the trustees, or named in the notice convening such meeting.

Place of meetings.

15. THREE trustees present at a meeting shall form a quorum.

Three trustees to be a quorum.

16. AT every meeting of the trustees the P—— Court trustee (if present), or if the P—— Court trustee be absent, then the rector of the parish, shall be the chairman of the meeting.

Chairman of meetings.

17. THE election of the inmates of the cottages, and all other business brought before any meeting, shall be decided by a majority of votes of the trustees present, and in case of an equality of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a casting vote.

Voting.

DEED creating a MONEY ENDOWMENT for the ALMSHOUSES established by the last PRECEDENT.

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME, A. B., of P—— Court, in the county of ——, Esq., the Rev. C. D. (the present rector of the parish of P——, in the said county), and E. F. and G. H., both of P—— aforesaid, farmers (the present churchwardens of the said parish), SEND GREETING: WHEREAS the said A. B., by a deed-poll dated the —— day of ——, 18——, duly executed and enrolled in the High Court of Justice (Chancery Division), conveyed ALL those six cottages, &c. (describing them), unto and to the use of the said A. B., C. D., E. F., and G. H., in fee simple: IN TRUST to permit the same to be for ever thereafter occupied by aged and infirm inhabitants of the said parish of P——, according and subject to the rules, regulations, and provisions for the administration and management of the charity intended to be thereby established, which were thereafter expressed and contained: AND WHEREAS the said A. B. has lately caused the sum of £—— 2½ per Cent. Consolidated Stock to be transferred into the names of the said A. B., C. D., E. F., and G. H., in the books of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, for the purposes hereinafter expressed: NOW THESE PRESENTS WITNESS, and it is hereby declared, and, in particular, the said A. B. doth hereby direct, that the said sum of £—— 2½ per Cent. Consolidated Stock (hereinafter called “the said trust stock”) shall be for ever hereafter held in trust for the following purposes (that is to say):—

DEED

Declaration of trust of stock.

1. THE trustees for the time being of the charity established by the said recited deed, dated —— day of ——, 18——, shall always be the trustees for the administration of the charity established by these presents.

Trustees of almshouses to be trustees of stock.

2. THE said trustees shall for ever hereafter receive the dividends of the trust stock, and shall with and out of the said dividends, in the first place, keep the almshouses established by the said recited deed insured against loss or damage by fire, in such an amount as they shall think sufficient; and shall in the next place, with and out of the said dividends, keep the said almshouses in good and substantial repair: And the said trustees shall lay out all moneys (if any) which may be received from time to time under or by virtue of any such insurance as aforesaid, in or towards the rebuilding and reinstating the said almshouses, or such part thereof as shall or may be burnt down or damaged by fire.

Dividends to be applied for repairs and insurance of almshouses.

3. If and whenever the said trustees shall have in their hands a sum of money arising from the dividends of the said trust stock not required for the purposes aforesaid, exceeding in amount the sum of £——, the said trustees may, if they think fit, apply the whole or any part of the surplus over and above the said sum of £——, for the benefit of the inmates for the time being of the said almshouses, or any of such inmates, in such manner as they may think proper.

Trustees may apply any surplus in their hands above a certain sum for benefit of inmates.

4. WHENEVER any necessity arises for transferring the said trust stock, the trustees for the time being shall, and they may, if they think fit, at any other time, apply to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for an order directing the transfer thereof to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, in trust for the said charity, and shall, upon such order being obtained, transfer the said stock accordingly.

Stock may be

OF LAND FOR A HOSPITAL.

1. THE parties hereto of the second part, or the majority of them, shall, as soon as conveniently can be, frame, or cause to be framed, rules and regulations for the management and government of the said hospital and the funds and property thereof, and shall submit the same to a general meeting of the subscribers of £—— and upwards to the funds of the hospital, to be convened by an advertisement published at least fourteen days before the day of meeting, in the —— newspaper, or some other newspaper circulating in the county of —— : AND the said rules and regulations, if adopted by a majority of the subscribers present and voting thereat, or at an adjourned meeting, shall thenceforth come into force and have effect.

Trustees to frame rules and regulations.

To be submitted to subscribers.

2. THE said rules and regulations shall include rules for the following (among other) purposes, namely, (1) rules providing for the holding of general meetings of the governors, and in particular an annual general meeting to be held some time in the month of February in every year, and defining what amount of donation or annual subscription shall qualify the donor or subscriber as a governor entitled to be present and vote at general meetings; (2) rules providing for the appointment of a committee of management to consist partly of ex officio members and partly of members to be elected annually at the annual general meeting of governors; (3) rules regulating the proceedings at general meetings, and also at meetings of the committee of management; (4) rules providing for the investment of moneys not required for the immediate purposes of the hospital, and for the keeping and auditing of accounts; and (5) a rule providing in what manner and by what authority new rules may be made or existing rules be rescinded or altered.

Matters to be provided for by rules and regulations.

3. UNTIL a committee of management shall be appointed under the said rules and regulations, the parties hereto of the second part shall be the committee of management, with full power to erect and complete, fit up, and furnish the necessary building or buildings, and to make all such arrangements in relation to the establishment of the said hospital as they shall think fit.

5. It shall be lawful for the trustees, if and whenever they shall be directed so to do by a resolution of the committee of management, or of a general meeting of governors, to let or demise the said lands and buildings, or any part thereof which may not for the time being be required for the purposes of the hospital, to any person or persons either from year to year or for any term of years, at such rent, and subject to such covenants and conditions, as they may think fit, and the rent to be reserved upon any such lease shall be part of the general funds of the hospital, and be applicable accordingly.

Receipts of
trustees.

6. THE receipt of the trustees for any money payable upon any sale, exchange or mortgage, or for any rent reserved upon any such lease as aforesaid, shall be a sufficient discharge for the same to any purchaser, mortgagee, lessee, or other person to whom the same shall be given, and such purchaser, mortgagee, lessee or other person shall not be bound or concerned to see to the application of the said money or rent, or be liable for the misapplication or non-application thereof.

Any trustee may resign.

7. ANY present or future trustee of these presents shall be at liberty to resign the trusteeship at any time by signing a note addressed to the committee expressing his wish to resign, and the committee may at any time remove any trustee from the trusteeship for any reason which may appear to them sufficient.

8. WHENEVER there shall be a vacancy in the trusteeship caused by death, resignation or removal, or any other cause, the committee of management may by a resolution appoint one or more trustee or trustees to supply the vacancy, and upon any such appointment the number of trustees may be augmented or reduced, provided that the number be never more than five or less than three. Upon every such appointment, the trust property shall be conveyed so as to become vested in the trustees for the time being; and every new trustee appointed as aforesaid shall and may have and exercise all the powers by these presents vested in the trustees in the like manner as if he had been originally appointed hereby.

WILLS.

THE principal characteristic of a will is, that it is ambulatory and revocable, and has no operation during the life of the testator. The form of the instrument is not of importance, so long as its terms are testamentary (a); but if the instrument is in the form of a deed, the circumstance of the grantor reserving a life interest to himself, with a general power of revocation, does not make it testamentary (b).

Characteristics of a will.

It is proposed in this Dissertation to consider the subject of wills under the following heads:—I. What property can be disposed of by will, who may make a will, how a will must be executed and attested, and what amounts to a revocation of a will. II. As to the time from which a will speaks, what property passes under a general devise or bequest, and what words are sufficient to carry the fee simple. III. In what cases the trustees take the legal estate under a devise, and as to the extent of their estate. IV. Legacies, general and specific, vested and contingent, gifts to children, next of kin, legal representatives, &c. V. Lapse. VI. For what period the vesting of property given by will may be postponed, or income may be accumulated, having regard to the rule against perpetuities and the Thellusson Act. VII. Gifts to charities. VIII. Conversion. IX. In what cases precatory words create a trust. X. The effect of a charge of debts and the implied power of sale thereby created. XI. Descent, and the mode in which the personal estate of an intestate is distributed. And XII. The stamp duties on probates and letters of administration, and under the Legacy and Succession Duty Acts.

I. What property may be disposed of by will, who may make a will, how a will must be executed and attested, and what is a revocation of a will.

What property may be disposed of by will.

The Act 1 Vict. c. 26 (commonly called the Wills Act) enables every person to dispose by will of all real and personal estate which he shall be entitled to, at law or in equity, at the time of his death, and which, if not so disposed of, would devolve upon his heir-at-law or customary heir, or if he became entitled by descent upon the heir-at-law or customary heir, of his ancestor, or upon his executor or administrator, including estates pur autre vie, contingent, executory, or other future interests, and rights of entry for conditions broken (c).

As to copyholds.

A devisee of copyholds must pay the fees and fines on his admission as if he were a surrenderee; and the testamentary disposition should be entered on the court rolls (d).

Estates pur autre vie.

An estate pur autre vie of a freehold nature not disposed of by will is assets by descent in the hands of the heir, if it comes to him by reason of special occupancy, as in the case of freehold land in fee simple; and where there is no special occupant, it goes to the executor or administrator of the party that had the estate thereof by virtue of the grant, and an estate pur autre vie coming to an executor or administrator, either by reason of a special occupancy or by virtue of the Act, is assets in his hands, to be applied and distributed in the same manner as the personal estate of the testator or intestate (e).

In a case where an estate pur autre vie was limited to a devisee and his heirs, and the devisee died without heirs, it was held that, under the above section, the estate went to his executors (f).

Previously to the Wills Act an infant could not dispose by will of real estate ; but with respect to personalty a female might make a will at twelve and a male at fifteen, if proved to be a person of discretion (g). Since the Wills Act no will of an infant is valid (h).

Infants.

Between the passing of the Wills Act and the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, the position of a married woman as regards the power of disposition by will was as follows :—She could dispose by will of real or personal property belonging to her for her separate use, whether acquired before or after the date of the will, and could exercise a testamentary power of appointment, whether vested in her then or afterwards conferred on her, and she could, if an executrix, appoint an executor to carry on the representation (i). But as regards property not belonging to her for her separate use, she was under an absolute incapacity to make a will. Thus, if she made a will during coverture and then became a widow, the will would not pass property acquired by her during the widowhood (k).

Testamentary power of married woman before Act of 1882.

Since the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a woman married on or after the 1st January, 1883, has the same testamentary power over all property belonging to her during the coverture, and a woman married before that date has the same testamentary power over property, her title to which in possession, reversion, or remainder, accrues after that date and during her coverture, as if she were a feme sole. But, according to a recent decision (l), a will made by a married woman since 1882 does not pass property acquired by her after the determination of the coverture. A married woman can act as an executrix under any will which comes into operation on or after the 1st January, 1883.

Traitors and felons.

Traitors and felons are incapacitated from alienation, while undergoing their punishment, but as the incapacity ceases at death, they may, it is apprehended, dispose by will of real or personal estate (m).

Lunatics, &c.

Lunatics, idiots, and other persons incapacitated from disposing of property by deed, are equally incapable of making a will.

How a will made before the Wills Act must have been executed.

Under the Statute of Frauds it was necessary that a devise of freehold estates should be attested by three credible witnesses; but until the Wills Act a will of copyholds or of personal estate required no attestation, and even if the testator's signature was wanting, the testamentary instrument was supported, if it was reduced into writing by the testator's direction and in his lifetime (n). But since the Wills Act every will, whether of real or personal property, must be in writing and signed at the foot or end thereof by the testator or by some other person in his presence and by his direction, and such signature must be made or acknowledged by the testator in the presence of two or more witnesses present at the same time, and the witnesses must attest and subscribe the will in the presence of the testator, but no form of attestation is necessary (o). And an appointment made by will in exercise of any power must be executed in like manner, and such execution is sufficient, notwithstanding that some additional or other form of execution or solemnity may be required by the instrument creating the power (p). Certain exceptions are, however, allowed as regards the wills of soldiers and sailors (q).

Under Wills Act how will must be executed.

Powers of appointment by writing under hand and seal.

under hand or by will is not well exercised by a testamentary instrument unattested (s).

Questions having frequently arisen as to the sufficiency of the signature with reference to its position, an explanatory Act (t) was passed, which made the signature sufficient if so placed at, or after, or following, or under, or beside, or opposite to, the end of the will, that it should be apparent on the face of the will that the testator intended to give effect by such his signature to the writing signed as his will, and the Act enumerates various circumstances as regards the position which are not to affect the validity of the will.

Position of the signature.

Where a will has a formal attestation clause, and appears on the face of it to be properly executed, the Court will presume that the requirements of the Wills Act have been complied with, although the memory of the witnesses may have failed. When the attestation clause is informal, the presumption omnia rite esse acta applies with less force; but even in that case, the leaning of the Court is not to allow the testator's intention to be frustrated by lapse of time and failure of the memory of the witnesses; and if therefore the circumstances are such as reasonably to lead to the conclusion that the will was duly executed, the Court will adopt that conclusion (u). But even where there is a regular attestation clause, the Court cannot pronounce a will to be duly executed, in the face of the direct testimony of the attesting witnesses to the contrary (x).

Presumption that will is duly executed and attested, when it applies.

Under the Statute of Frauds, a person taking any interest under a will was considered not to be a credible witness, and consequently a will was invalid if any one of the three attesting witnesses took any beneficial interest under it. Under the Wills Act, a legacy or other benefit given to an attesting witness, or to his or her wife or husband, is void, but the will is in other respects good, and the legatee, &c., is an admissible witness (y).

A legacy given by a will to an attesting witness is rendered valid by a codicil confirming the will attested by other witnesses (b). But if a testator makes first a will, secondly, a codicil giving a legacy to a person who is an attesting witness to such codicil, and thirdly, a second codicil which refers to the will but takes no notice of the first codicil, the legacy given by the first codicil remains invalid (c).

A will disposing of land of any tenure must be executed and construed according to the law of the country in which the property is situate, whatever may be the domicile of the testator. But a will of moveable estate must be executed and construed according to the law of the country in which the testator is domiciled, subject, however, to the provisions of a recent Act, commonly called Lord Kingsdown's Act (d). By this Act it is provided that every will or testamentary instrument made out of the United Kingdom by a British subject (whatever may be the domicile of such person at the time of making the same, or at the time of his death) shall, as regards personal estate, be held to be well executed for the purpose of being admitted in England and Ireland to probate, and in Scotland to confirmation, if the same be made according to the forms required either by the law of the place where the same was made, or by the laws then in force in that part of Her Majesty's dominions where he had his domicile of origin (e). And that no will, &c., shall be held to be revoked, or to have become invalid, nor shall the construction thereof be altered, by reason of any subsequent change of domicile of the person making the same (g).

And by another Act (h) it is provided that whenever a convention to that effect is made with a foreign state, Her Majesty may by Order in Council direct that a British subject resident in the foreign country shall not be deemed to have acquired a domicile for testamentary purposes or purposes of succession to moveables, unless he has been resident in such foreign country a year, and has deposited in a public office there a declaration in writing of his intention to become domiciled there: and corresponding provisions are enacted as to subjects of foreign states dying in Great Britain.

A will or codicil may also be revoked by another will or codicil duly executed, or by the burning, tearing, or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same (l), and no obliteration, interlineation, or other alteration will have any effect unless such alteration is executed in like manner as is required for the execution of the will; but the will, with such alteration as part thereof, will be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the testator and the subscription of the witnesses be made in the margin, or in some other part of the will opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or end of or opposite to a memorandum referring to such alteration, and written at the end or some other part of the will (m).

No revoked will or codicil can be revived, otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil showing an intention to revive the same, and if any will or codicil which is partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked is revived, such revived will will not extend to so much thereof as shall have been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof, unless an intention to the contrary shall be shown (n).

If a person makes a second will, revoking the first, and then destroys or otherwise revokes the second, the first is not thereby revived.

Where a will is destroyed, the presumption is that the act was done animo revocandi, but this presumption may be repelled by evidence that such animus did not exist. If a will is destroyed or torn with the intention of setting up some other testamentary instrument, the act of destruction will be a revocation, in case only the testamentary instrument intended to be thereby set up proves efficacious. The revocation in such case is called a dependent relative revocation.

for want of a proper attestation, and the testator, after making such second will, cancelled the first by tearing off the seal, it was held that such cancellation being made under the mistaken notion that the second will was effectual was not a revocation (o). And in another case where a testator, after having made two successive wills, the second revoking the first, destroyed the second, erroneously supposing that in so doing he was reviving the first, it was held that the second will was not revoked (p).

II. As to the time from which a will speaks, what property passes under a general devise and bequest, and what words are sufficient to carry the fee simple.

Formerly every devise of freehold and copyhold lands included only such property as the testator was seised of or entitled to at the date of the will, and a devisee of copyholds had no devisable estate before admittance (q). Whenever therefore a will contained a general devise, and lands were subsequently acquired by the testator which he wished to be included in such devise, it was necessary for him to republish his will, or make a codicil; but in the case of copyholds, a surrender to the use of the testator's will operated as a republication of the will so as to include the after-acquired copyholds in the previous general devise (r).

Every devise of real estate was formerly specific.

On the other hand, a general bequest of personal estate embraced all the personalty of which the testator was possessed at the time of his death, the will for this purpose speaking from the death of the testator.

Operation of a general bequest of personalty.

One of the consequences of the above-mentioned doctrine with regard to real estate was, that any disturbance of the devised estate between the date of the will and the testator's death operated as a revocation—as, for instance, the entering into a binding contract for sale, although it afterwards might be rescinded or abandoned (s); a conveyance, although its effect might be to re-vest the property immediately in the testator, so that he should be in of his old use; the surrender of a lease for lives in consideration of a new lease (t); the reconveyance of land in mortgage to the testator to uses to bar dower where the proviso in the mortgage was for the reconveyance to him, his heirs and assigns (u); or the taking a conveyance by the testator to uses to bar dower of property previously to the will contracted to be purchased by him, where the contract did not provide for the form in which the property should be conveyed to the purchaser (x).

Effect of disturbance of testator's estate after date of will.

Under Wills Act, conveyance after will does not prevent its operating on testator's interest at death.

It is now provided by the 23rd section of the Wills Act, that "no conveyance or other act made or done subsequently to the execution of a will of or relating to any real or personal estate therein comprised, except an act by which the will shall be revoked as aforesaid, shall prevent the operation of the will with respect to such estate or interest in such real or personal estate as the testator shall have power to dispose of by will at the time of his death."

Rule of equity as to conversion not affected.

The 23rd section does not affect the rule of equity which treats property agreed to be sold as personalty; so that if land devised by a will is afterwards contracted to be sold, but the sale is not effected in the lifetime of the testator, the purchase-money belongs to his personal representatives, and not to the devisee (y); and this is the case even when the devise is to a trustee upon trust for sale (z).

Will now speaks from death as to realty as well as personalty, unless a contrary intention appears.

The Wills Act also provides that every will shall be construed, with reference to the real and personal estate comprised therein, to speak and take effect as if it had been executed immediately before the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention appears by the will (a), so that a general devise of the testator's lands will embrace not only those lands which he is entitled to, or has power over, at the date of his will, but all his after-acquired estates—and a copyholder has now a devisable estate before admittance.

In Cole v. Scott (b), a devise of all the lands whereof "I am now seised" was held not to pass lands acquired after the date of the will; but this decision must be considered as depending not only on the use of the word "now," but on other expressions in the will which seemed to show an intention on the part of the testator to exclude after-acquired lands. It has been held that a devise of all the lands of which "I am seised" includes after-acquired lands (c); and that a devise of all the lands of which "I am seised" in a particular place, passes lands in that place subsequently acquired (d); so also a devise of a house in which "A. now resides, with the stables and appurtenances thereto belonging," was held to pass a piece of land which the testator had subsequently acquired and converted into a garden which he had attached to the house, so that the house and garden were occupied together up to the testator's death (e); and under a devise of "my estate called the C. estate," lands subsequently acquired and added to the estate were held to pass (f).

What is sufficient evidence of a contrary intention.

In Douglas v. Douglas (g), the Vice-Chancellor said, "I can imagine that, under the new statute, a gift of 'all my stock' would pass all stock to which the testator was entitled at the time of his death. But suppose the bequest were of 'all my stock which I have purchased,' that would make a considerable difference, and would, I think, be enough to show that the testator was defining the particular portion of property which he intended to give as being property then in his possession."

A bequest of "my New $3\frac{1}{4}$ per Cent. Annuities" was held to comprise all the New $3\frac{1}{4}$ per Cents. which the testatrix had at her death (h). V.-C. Wood in this case said, "If I refer to a particular thing, e.g., a ring or a horse, and bequeath it as 'my ring,' or 'my horse,' it would seem that the contrary intention to which the 24th section refers 'appears by the will,' and the will speaks from the date of its execution; but when a bequest is of that which is generic, of that which may be increased or diminished, the Act requires something more on the face of the will for the purpose of indicating such 'contrary intention' than the mere circumstance that the subject of the bequest is designated by the pronoun 'my.'" In another case, a testator bequeathed to his brother "all the shares which I now possess in the Union Bank in Calcutta." After the date of the will, and before his death, his property in the Company's funds largely increased, and it was held that the whole of the property passed under the will (i). Again, where a testator gave "all my money, bank and other shares, freehold property, plate, pictures, coins, books, and any other property that I may now possess," it was held that after-acquired personality passed under the bequest (k). Again, where property being leasehold at the date of the will was bequeathed as leasehold to specific devisees, and the testator afterwards acquired the reversion in fee simple, it was held that the fee simple passed by the specific devise, and not under a residuary devise in the same will (l).

property over which testator had a power of appointment.

By sect. 26 of the Wills Act it is enacted, that a devise of the land of the testator, or of the land of the testator in any place, or in the occupation of any person mentioned in his will, or otherwise described in a general manner, and any other general devise which would describe a customary, copyhold, or leasehold estate, if the testator had no freehold estate which could be described by it, shall be construed to include the customary, copyhold, and leasehold estates of the testator, or his customary, copyhold, and leasehold estates, or any of them, to which such description shall extend, as the case may be, as well as freehold estates, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will.

Rule altered by Wills Act.

It follows, from the above enactment, that a general devise of land will now pass leaseholds and copyholds as well as freeholds. In a recent case it was held that leaseholds passed under a devise of the testator's real estate in a particular place (n); but a general devise of real estate without any reference to locality does not pass leaseholds (o).

Whether leaseholds will pass under devise of real estate.

The 27th section provides, that a general devise of the real estate of the testator, or of the real estate of the testator in any place, or in the occupation of any person mentioned in his will, or otherwise described in a general manner, shall be construed to include any real estate, or any real estate to which such description shall extend (as the case may be), which he may have power to appoint in any manner he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will; and in like manner a bequest of the personal estate of the testator, or any bequest of personal property described in a general manner, shall be construed to include any personal estate, or any personal estate to which such description shall extend (as the case may be), which he may have power to appoint in any manner he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will.

Power given to survivor may be exercised by will of person who afterwards becomes survivor.

A general power given to the survivor of several persons may be exercised by a general devise in a will executed by the ultimate survivor during their joint lives; and in a case where such a power was vested in A. B., and C., and C., who was a married woman, ultimately became the survivor, it was held that the power was well exercised by a residuary devise in the will of C. made by her while under coverture, and during the life of B. (p).

Effect of residuary gift with regard to property subject to power.

A gift by will of the residue of a testator's estate passes property over which the testator has, at the date of the will, a general power of appointment, and also property over which he acquires such a power after the date of his will (q). And it has been held that the words, "I constitute A. B. my residuary legatee," mean the same as a general gift to A. B. of the residue, and consequently operates as an appointment in his favour under a general power (r). In a late case, a testatrix, having a general power of appointment over a trust fund, made a will, giving pecuniary legacies and appointing executors, but the will made no reference whatever to the trust fund or to the power, and contained no residuary bequest. It turned out that the assets of the testatrix other than the trust fund were insufficient to pay the legacies, and Vice-Chancellor Stuart held, that the bequests of the legacies were bequests of personal property, "described in a general manner," within the meaning of the 27th section, and that such legacies were payable out of the trust fund subject to the power (s). And it has also been held that a direction to the executors to pay the debts out of the testator's personal estate makes property over which he has a power of appointment part of his general assets (t).

An appointment by will under a general power makes the appointed property (whether real (u) or personal) part of the testator's general estate, although some of the objects may fail by lapse or otherwise, and consequently a general devise or bequest has the same operation (x).

An appointment by will makes fund part of testator's estate.

The 27th section does not apply to special powers, i.e., powers exercisable in favour of particular objects only. Consequently a general devise of all the testator's property is not an execution of such a power (y), even though he has no real estate of his own at the date of his will (z). The power, or the property which is the subject of it, must be referred to. Where the will contains only a general reference to the testator's powers, as where a devise or bequest is expressed to be made in pursuance of all powers vested in the testator, or is of all the property over which he has any power of appointment, it is a question of intention to be collected from the whole of the instrument whether such a devise operates as an execution of a special power. It will be so held, if the gift is wholly or substantially in favour of persons who are objects of the power (a), even though the power is to some extent exceeded. Thus, where the bequest was to trustees in trust to pay debts and divide the residue among objects of the power, the power was held to be executed, notwithstanding the trust to pay debts (b). Again, where the bequest was to an object for life with remainder in favour of his children, such children not being objects, the life estate was held to be well appointed (c). And in the converse case a power to give a life interest in a fund to the donee's wife was held well executed by a will which gave all the property over which the testator had any power of appointment to the wife absolutely (d).

Act does not apply to special powers.

Trust and mortgage estates when included in a general devise, where testator died before 1882.

A general devise in the will of a person who has died before the 1st January, 1882, includes estates vested in the testator as a trustee or mortgagee, unless a contrary intention can be inferred from expressions in the will or the purposes and objects of the testator (e). Thus, a devise of the testator's property to A. absolutely, clearly passes trust and mortgaged estates (f); and in a case where a testator devised all his property to his wife, her heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, "for all my estate and interest therein, to and for her own absolute use and benefit, and to be disposed of by her by deed, will, or otherwise as she may think fit," it was held that trust estates passed under such devise (g). And according to another case trust estates pass under a devise to a woman for her sole use (h).

sale (i), or charged with debts (k) or annuities (l), or with a gross sum (m), or to uses in strict settlement (n), trust estates do not pass, as the nature of the disposition sufficiently indicates that the testator did not intend to include any property beyond that in which he was beneficially interested. And for the same reason a devise to an unascertained class, e.g., to all the testator's nephews and nieces, do not include trust or mortgaged estates (o).

In the absence of a contrary intention, a gift of "mortgages," or "securities for money," in the will of a person who has died before the 1st January, 1882, passes not only the money secured, but also the legal estate in the mortgaged property, although the words may be placed among words relating to personal estate only, or the gift may be to the donee, his executors, administrators, or assigns, and not to his heirs, and although the gift may be subject to debts and legacies, or upon trusts for sale and conversion (p). But a bequest of money on securities does not carry the legal estate in the mortgaged property (q).

A devise in such a will of the residue of a testator's estate, following a direction to pay debts or a bequest of legacies, includes estates vested in a testator as mortgagee in his own right (r); but the question whether it includes estates vested in him as a trustee has been the subject of conflicting decisions. decided that it does not (s), and Malins, V.-C., that it does (t).

Rule applies to lands contracted to be sold.

The rule that a general devise passes trust estates unless a contrary intention can be inferred, applies to land which a testator has contracted to sell, the sale being uncompleted at his death. In Wall v. Bright (u), a testator after a contract for sale devised all his lands to trustees in trust for sale, and it was held that the land comprised in the contract passed by the devise. In Thirtle v. Vaughan (v), a testator after specific devises gave the residue of his estate to his three children as tenants in common, subject to a gift over as to the share of any child dying under twenty-one. After the date of the will the testator contracted to sell some land, and the Court held that such land did not pass by the will. These two decisions must be reconciled on the ground that in the former case a trust for sale was not considered inconsistent with an intention that the devisee in trust should take the subject of an uncompleted contract, whereas the executory devise in the latter was thought inconsistent with such intention.

Land contracted to be sold passes under an express devise of trust and mortgage estates.

In both the above cases there was no express devise of estates vested in the testator as a trustee or mortgagee, and the only question was whether the land passed by the general devise or devolved on the heir-at-law. It has been lately decided that where a will contains a devise of a testator's general estate, and also a devise of estates vested in him as a trustee or mortgagee, land contracted to be sold passes by the latter (not the former) devise (x).

Devolution of trust and mortgage estates on death of a person since 1881.

With regard to persons dying after the 31st December, 1881, it is provided by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (y), that where an estate or interest of inheritance, or limited to the heir as special occupant, in any tenements or hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, is vested on any trust, or by way of mortgage, in any person solely, the same shall, on his death, notwithstanding any testamentary disposition, devolve to and become vested in his personal representatives or representative from time to time. But by a subsequent Act it is provided that this section shall not apply to any land of copyhold or customary tenure vested in the tenant on the court rolls of any manor upon any trusts or by way of mortgage (z). It follows that (subject to the above exception) a devise of estates vested in a testator as trustee or mortgagee now passes nothing.

Prior to the Wills Act, a devise of land without words of limitation conferred an estate for life only on the devisee. But an indefinite devise was frequently enlarged into a fee simple whenever an intention to dispose of such larger estate could be collected from the language of the will. Thus, if a devise was made on condition that the devisee should pay the testator's debts or certain annuities or legacies, or a particular sum, so as to make the satisfaction of such sums the personal obligation of the devisee, he took an estate in fee simple, on the ground that if he only took an estate for life he might be a loser by such gift (a). The devisee also took an estate in fee simple if the devise to him was followed by a gift over on his dying under twenty-one (b). Again, a devise of the testator's estate generally, or of his estate in a particular place (c), or by a particular name (d), or description (e), carried the fee. The words "remainder," "reversion," "property," "inheritance," "right," "title," &c., &c., were also terms generally sufficient to carry the fee (f).

III. In what cases trustees take the legal estate under a devise, and as to the extent of their estate.

Question
trustees take legal estate;
upon what it depends.

Where property is limited by will to the use of trustees, the legal estate vests in them by force of the words employed (h); but if the devise is to them to the use of or in trust for other persons, the question whether they take the legal estate depends on whether they have any duties to perform which require that they should take it. And when it has been thus ascertained that they take some estate, a question often arises as to the duration of such estate. As regards wills governed by the old law, the rule is that a devise to trustees which does not expressly limit the duration of the estate gives them an interest commensurate with the trusts to be performed. But as regards wills made since the Wills Act the rule has been modified by the 30th and 31st sections of the Act, which provide that where any real estate (other than or not being a presentation to a church) is devised to any trustee or executor, such devise shall be construed to pass the fee simple or other the whole estate or interest which the testator had power to dispose of by will in such real estate, unless a definite term of years absolute or determinable or an estate in freehold is thereby given to him expressly or by implication: and that where any real estate is devised to a trustee without any express limitation of the estate to be taken by such trustee, and the beneficial interest in such real estate or in the surplus rents and profits thereof is not given to any person for life, or such beneficial interest shall be given to any person for life, but the purposes of the trust may continue beyond the life of such person, such devise shall be construed to vest in such trustee the fee simple or other the whole legal estate which the testator had power to dispose of by will, in such real estate, and not an estate determinable when the purposes of the trust shall be satisfied.

A devise to trustees upon trust, or to the intent that they shall receive the rents and pay them to A. (i), or upon trust to pay out of the rents, after deducting rates, taxes, and repairs, such clear sum as should remain to A. (k), or to permit the devisee to receive the net rents (l), vests the legal estate in the trustees.

Cases in which trustees have been held to take legal estate.

But under a devise to A. upon trust to permit B. to receive the rents (m), or to pay unto or permit B. to receive the rents (n), or to receive the rents and pay the same to B., or otherwise permit him to receive the same (o), the legal estate vests in B., and A. takes no estate. But under a devise (prior to the Married Women's Property Act, 1882) to a trustee to permit a feme covert to receive the rents for her separate use, the trustee takes the legal estate, as otherwise the rents would be receivable by the husband, which could not have been the testator's intention (p). And when there are several trusts for the separate use of married women during their lives, separated by intervening limitations which if taken alone would vest the legal estate in the persons beneficially interested thereunder, the legal estate will be held to be vested in the trustees throughout, and the intervening estates are equitable only (q).

Trustees will take the legal fee when by the will they are directed to convey to a third person (r).

A., gives the trustees an estate during the lives of the annuitants; and a devise to trustees in trust to apply the rents for the maintenance of A. until he attains twenty-one, and then to A. absolutely, gives the trustees an estate during A.'s minority only, but in both these cases the trustees would take the entire fee simple under a will made since the Wills Act.

A trust to raise money by sale or mortgage gives the trustees the legal estate.

Where land is devised to trustees in trust to raise money by sale or mortgage for payment of the testator's debts, or such of his debts as his personal estate will not satisfy (s), or upon trust to demise or let the same (t), and subject to such trusts the land is directed to be held in trust for other persons, or is given directly to other persons, the trustees take the legal estate whether the will is under the old or the new law.

So also does a power, whether express or implied, from a direction to pay debts.

So also they take the legal estate under a devise upon trusts which, taken alone, would not have that effect, if such devise is followed by a power enabling them to raise money by sale or mortgage for payment of debts (u), and the result is the same, if the power arises by implication, as where there is a direction that the debts shall be paid by the executors, who are also the trustees (x); and a mere direction for payment of debts without saying by whom, followed by a devise to trustees who are also the executors, has the same effect (y).

Effect of power of leasing being given to trustees.

If the words of a will made under the old law were otherwise sufficient to carry the fee to the trustees, the fact that they were empowered to grant leases afforded an argument of weight in favour of their being construed so as to confer the whole legal fee on the trustees; but it was not conclusive, and when the testator's intention could be effected by holding that the trustees had an estate during the continuance of the trusts of the will, with a power to lease while the estate vested in them for the purpose of the trust continues, the devise was so construed (z).

Executors take the legal estate, although there is no gift in terms to them, if it is evident on the face of the will that they are to sell and distribute the whole of the testator's property (a).

When executors take the legal estate.

The effect of the 30th and 31st sections of the Wills Act appears to be that if there is no express limitation of the estate to be taken by the trustee, and yet there are purposes which require that he should take some estate, he must take either an estate for life or an estate in fee simple. For instance, a devise to A. in trust to permit B. to receive the rents for life, with remainder to C., would vest no estate in the trustee, as there are no purposes requiring him to take any estate; a devise to A. in trust to pay the rents to B. for life, with remainder to C., would vest the legal estate in the trustee for the life of B. only; while a devise to A. in trust to accumulate the rents for ten years for a particular purpose, and subject thereto in trust for B., would vest the legal fee in A., as the purposes of the trust require that the trustee should take some estate, but there is no express limitation of the estate to be taken by him, and the beneficial interest is not given to any person for life (b).

Under Wills Act, trustees take either a life estate or a fee.

The rule which (subject to the modifications introduced by the Wills Act) limits the estate of the trustees under an indefinite devise to one commensurate with the trusts to be performed, applies to copyholds and leaseholds. Thus, a devise of copyholds to A. and his heirs in trust for B. and his heirs, or in trust for B. for life, and at his death in trust for C. and his heirs, gives A. the legal estate in the whole customary fee, because copyholds are not within the Statute of Uses; but if the devise be to A. and his heirs in trust for B. for life and after his death to (not in trust for) C. and his heirs, A. takes an estate for the life of B. only, with a legal remainder on the death of B. to C.(c); and in like manner a bequest of leaseholds to A. in trust for B. gives A. the whole term, but under a bequest to A. in trust for B. for life, and after B.'s death to C., it is apprehended(d) that A. takes the term, subject to an executory bequest in favour of C. to take effect on B.'s death(e).

IV. Legacies, general and specific, vested and contingent, gifts to children, next of kin, &c.

Definition of a general legacy.

Legacies are either general or specific. A general legacy is a gift of money or something else to be paid, raised, or procured out of the testator's personal estate generally, and is not necessarily a part of such estate. Thus, a gift of £100 money or £100 stock is a good legacy, although the testator may have no cash or no stock at his death, and in such a case his executors must raise or buy it out of whatever property he may leave. A specific legacy is a gift of some specified part of the testator's property, as a gift of "all my furniture," or "all the furniture that I may leave at my death," or "all my shares and stock in a railway company," and such a gift will include whatever property of the kind described the testator may leave at his death. But the thing given must be severed from the rest of the testator's property, and form the subject of a distinct gift. Thus, if a testator gives "all

(d) Stevenson v. Mayor of Liverpool, L. R. 10 Q. B. 81.

(e) All limitations to trustees in a deed are strictly construed, and will take effect according to their strict legal meaning, unless the very object and intention of the instrument would be defeated by such a construction. See Venables v. Morris, 7 T. R. 342; Wykham v. Wykham, 18 Ves. 395; Colmore v. Tyndale, 2 Y. & J. 605. In a case where in terms a legal fee was given to trustees to preserve contingent remainders, and afterwards by the same instrument a term of 500 years was limited to the same trustees, their executors, administrators, and assigns, for the purpose of raising a given sum of money by sale or mortgage for younger children's portions, the Court held that the limitation of a term of years to the trustees was so inconsistent with the limitation of the fee to them, that the limitation to the trustees and their heirs must be restricted to an estate pur autre vie by necessary implication. Curtis v. Price, 12 Ves. 89.

my leasehold property, furniture, stock in trade, and all other my estate and effects," then the whole gift is residuary (f).

If there is a deficiency of assets to pay the testator's debts, the general legacies abate rateably, but the specific legacies are not liable to abatement until the fund applicable for general legacies is exhausted. And a specific legatee is entitled to have his legacy exonerated out of the general estate from charges created by the testator as distinguished from charges incidental to the property, such as the rent on leaseholds, or the calls on railway shares (g).

Abatement in case of deficiency of assets.

Specific legatee entitled to be exonerated from charges.

It follows from the nature of a specific legacy, that if the testator has not at his death any article answering the description of the thing bequeathed, the legacy fails. If the gift is of something which was his property when he made his will, and he parts with it before his death, it is said to be adeemed.

Adeemption.

The legatee is entitled to the interest and produce of a specific legacy from the testator's death (h), and the current dividend is apportionable under the Apportionment Act (i). With respect to a general legacy, if no time is appointed for its payment, it will carry interest at the rate of £4 per cent. per annum from the expiration of one year from the testator's death; and this rule extends to legacies under the will of a feme covert made in exercise of a power (k); but if a time of payment is mentioned, then the legacy will not carry interest before the appointed period,—as if a legacy is directed to be paid to the legatee when he shall attain twenty-one (l). If, however, the legatee is the child of the testator and under age, interest on the legacy would be allowed him for maintenance from his parent's death, if there is no other fund provided for that purpose (m).

Annuity commences from death.

An annuity for life, given by will, commences from the death of the testator, and the first payment (where the will is silent as to the time of payment) is due at the expiration of one year from that time (n).

Legacy payable at a future day, whether vested or contingent.

When a legacy is given, payable at a future day, as on the legatee attaining a particular age, a question often arises whether the time for payment is annexed to the form or the substance of the gift; in other words, whether the arrival of the time is a condition precedent to the vesting of the legacy. Upon this subject the following points have been settled by the authorities:—

Points decided on this subject.

Where there is a complete gift independent of direction as to time of payment.

1. Where there is a gift complete in itself, with a direction superadded as to the time of payment, as if a legacy is given to A., to be paid to him at twenty-one, or to the children of A., to be paid to them respectively as and when they shall respectively attain twenty-one, the legacy vests immediately, and the payment only is postponed (o). And it makes no difference that the direction as to the time of payment precedes the words of gift; thus, a direction to pay or assign a legacy, and its investments to the children of A., as and when they shall respectively attain twenty-one, “to whom I give and bequeath the same accordingly,” has been held to confer a vested interest on all the children living at the testator’s death (p).

Where time of payment is of the essence of the gift.

2. Where the time of payment is annexed to the gift itself, or where there is no gift except in the direction to pay or divide, as, for example, where a legacy is given to A. when he shall attain a certain age, or to the children of A. when they shall respectively attain a certain age, or where trustees are directed to pay a legacy to A., or to divide a trust fund among the children of A. “when” he or they shall attain a certain age, and there is nothing more; in each of these cases the legacy is contingent (q).

3. But very slight circumstances in the context will alter the construction, particularly where the bequest is of a residue, and not of a legacy merely (r). Thus, if a legacy is given to a person "at," or "when he attains" a certain age, and is accompanied by a gift of the interest in the meantime, or by a direction to apply such interest or any part thereof for his maintenance, or if the legacy is directed to be immediately separated from the estate, the legacy vests at once; and the same principle applies to a gift to a class of persons where there is a gift of the interest or a direction to apply the interest for their respective maintenance (s).

Where interest is given to legatee, or for his maintenance.

Where an entire fund is given to a class of persons at a given age with a direction to the trustees to apply the income of the fund, or any part of it, for the maintenance of the members of the class generally, not confining such direction to the share of each particular member, this does not create a vested interest in a member of the class who dies under the age (t).

Case in which principle does not apply to a gift to a class.

4. Where the payment of the legacy is postponed for the convenience of the estate,—as if a legacy is directed to be paid to A., after the decease of B., to whom a life interest is bequeathed,—A. takes a vested interest on the testator's decease, the payment to A. being postponed only for the purpose of enabling B. to enjoy a prior life interest in the legacy (u).

two grandnieces (who were both of age), until their respective marriages, and from and after their respective marriages to assign to them their respective moieties, and one of the grandnieces afterwards died without having married, it was held that she took a vested interest in her moiety, one of the grounds of the decision being that there was a difference between a legacy and a residue with respect to the application of the rules as to vesting (y). And in a recent case a testator gave one-third of his residue to his son and daughter in equal shares, the share of the son to vest at twenty-four, and the share of the daughter to vest on her marriage, with the consent of her guardian, with a gift over of the son's share on his death under twenty-four, and of the daughter's share on her death without having married "with such consent as aforesaid;" and it was held that the daughter having attained twenty-one without being married was entitled to her share (z).

Legacies
charged on land.

The rule which is established as to legacies charged on and payable out of real estate, is well expressed by Mr. Butler, who observes that, "when a legacy is bequeathed to a child on his attaining twenty-one or marrying, or on any other event personal to him, the legacy is evidently postponed to the time specified, from its being considered that the legatee will then want the benefit of the legacy; but when the estate is devised to a person for life, and after his decease is charged with a legacy, the legacy is evidently postponed till the decease of the devisee for life from its being incompatible with his life estate that it should be raised in his lifetime. The payment of the legacy is therefore considered to be postponed in the first case from regard to circumstances personal to the legatee, and in the second from regard to the circumstances of the estate, and it has been inferred that, in cases of the first description, the testator does not intend the legatee shall receive the legacy, unless the circumstances happen in which the testator made it payable, and that in cases of the second description the testator intends the legatee shall receive it at all events. In the former case, therefore, it has been held that if the legatee dies while the time of payment is in suspense, the legacy sinks into the land for the benefit of the inheritance, and in the latter case it has been held, that if the legatee dies during the continuance of the preceding estate or interest, his personal representatives will be entitled on its determination to have the legacy raised for their benefit (a). As to cases of the first description, however, the legacy will vest if the testator declare that it shall do so at his death" (b).

(y) Booth v. Booth, 4 Ves. 399.

In every case where a legacy charged on land is given on a contingency, and the contingency does not happen, the charge sinks for the benefit of the devisee (c). On the other hand, if land is devised charged with a sum of money, the lapse of the devise does not affect the charge (d); and if a gift is made to A. with a gift over on a contingency (which happens) to B., and B. dies in the testator's lifetime, the subject of the gift goes to the residuary legatee (e).

Legacy charged on land devised is not affected by lapse of devise.

In the bequest of legacies to children, a question often arises, what objects are to be included in the bequest under certain circumstances, and the rules of construction on this subject, laid down by Mr. Jarman in his valuable Treatise on Wills, will place the matter before the reader in a useful and intelligible form. He says: "First. That an immediate gift to children, whether it be to the children of a living or a deceased person, and whether to children simply, or to all the children, and whether there be a gift over in case of the decease of any of the children under age or not, comprehends the children living at the testator's death (if any), and those only. Secondly. That where a particular estate or interest is carved out, with a gift over to the children of the person taking that interest, or the children of any other person, such gift will embrace not only the objects living at the death of the testator, but all who may subsequently come into existence before the period of distribution. Thirdly. That where the period of distribution is postponed until the attainment of a given age by the children, the gift will apply to those who are living at the death of the testator, and who come into existence before the first child attains that age, i. e., the period when the fund becomes distributable in respect of any one object or member of the class (f). Fourthly. With regard to immediate gifts, it is well settled that if there be no object in esse at the death of the testator, the gift will embrace all the children who may subsequently come into existence by way of executory gift; and with regard to gifts preceded by an anterior interest, the weight of authority is in favour of the position, that in all such cases, except in the instance of a legal remainder of real estate, if there is no object at the time of the vesting in possession, all the children subsequently born will be let in. Fifthly. That where the words, 'to be born,' or 'to be begotten,' are annexed to a devise or bequest to children, if the gift be immediate so that it would, but for the words in question, have been confined to children (if any) existing at the testator's death, they will have the effect of extending it to all the children who shall ever come into existence" (g).

Interest to be taken where power of appointment amounts to a trust.

Sometimes a power of appointment amongst children, or some other class of objects, is so expressed as to amount to a trust in favour of such objects in default of appointment. Where this is the case, the objects take an interest commensurate with that which might have been appointed (h); and if the power is given in terms which are particularly applicable to a tenancy in common, the objects will take as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants. In Crozier v. Crozier (i), an estate was devised to A. for life, with remainder to his issue, to be divided between and amongst them in such manner, shares, and proportions as he by his will should appoint. A. having died without having exercised the power of appointment, it was held that on his death the issue took absolute interests as tenants in common (k). In Wace v. Mallard (l), the testator bequeathed his property to his widow, her heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, for her sole benefit, with full confidence that she would appropriate it for the benefit of all her children; and it was held that the bequest amounted to a gift to the widow for life, with a power of appointment in favour of her children, with a gift in default of appointment to her children as joint tenants.

As regards legacies to illegitimate children, the following propositions may be stated as the result of decided cases:—(1) A gift to children primâ facie means legitimate children only; but it will be held to include reputed children already born, if an intention to that effect is sufficiently shown by expressions in the will, coupled with the surrounding circumstances (m). (2) A gift to the future children of the testator, or of any other person by a particular woman not being his wife, is void, because the fact of paternity cannot be inquired into; but a gift to the future children of a particular woman, of whom the testator or any other specified person shall be the reputed father, is good as regards children born before the testator's death, because there is no objection to an inquiry as to reputation of paternity (n).

A gift to the next of kin of A., without more, creates a joint tenancy in the persons who are nearest of kin to A. in equal degree without reference to the Statutes of Distribution, so that if A. leaves two brothers and a nephew (the child of a deceased brother), or a father and child, the two brothers to the exclusion of the nephew in the one case, and the father and child in the other case, would take the property as joint tenants(o). But if the gift is to the next of kin according to the Statutes of Distribution, the persons to take will be the relations of A., amongst whom the personal property of an intestate is made distributable by the statute, and such persons will take as tenants in common(p); but a wife or husband (not being of the kin of A.) cannot take under such a gift(q).

It is a settled rule that under a gift to the next of kin of the testator, whether the gift be immediate or preceded by a life interest, the persons to take are those who answer the description at the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention is clearly shown(r).

A gift to the person or persons entitled under the Statute of Distributions, excludes the husband, whose right is not under that statute(s).

A gift of personal property to A. for life, and after his decease to his executors or administrators, vests the subject of the gift absolutely in A., and on his death it passes to his executors or administrators as part of his assets, and it makes no difference that between the life interest and the ultimate gift intermediate interests are given to other persons or a power of appointment is given to A. himself(t). And a gift to the executors or administrators of A., a deceased person, is a gift to his legal personal representatives as a part of his estate, and not to them beneficially(u).

(u) Long v. Watkinson, 17 Beav.

The term "representatives" or "legal representatives" means primâ facie "executors or administrators" (x); but the context frequently shows that it was the intention of the testator to use the term in a different sense,—as if a testator directs that the legal representatives shall take "share and share alike" (y), or "per stirpes" (z), in which cases the persons entitled under the Statutes of Distribution have been held to be the objects of the gift. Again, if personal estate is given immediately and without the intervention of any previous interests to A., or in case of his death to his "representatives" or "legal representatives," A. takes absolutely if he survives the testator, but if he dies in the testator's lifetime the property goes to the persons entitled to his personal estate under the Statutes of Distribution, and not to his executors or administrators, on the ground of the improbability that the testator should mean the legacy to be thrown into the general assets of the legatee dying before him (a).

or under a gift to "representatives," or "legal representatives."

When a gift of a legacy is followed by a gift over on the death of the legatee, the question often arises whether the death referred to is a death at any time, or a death within a particular period. In Edwards v. Edwards (b) the cases on this subject were divided into four classes:—(1) Where the gift is to A., and if he shall die to B.; (2) A gift to A., and if he shall die without children to B.; (3) To X. for life, with remainder to A., and if A. shall die to B.; (4) To X. for life, with remainder to A., and if he shall die without children to B.; and the Court stated as the result of the cases that, in the 1st class, the contingency is the death of A. in the testator's life; in the 2nd, death at any time; and in the 3rd and 4th, death before X.

But it has been decided by the House of Lords that the above rule is incorrect as regards the 4th class of cases, the death there being death at any time, as in the 2nd (c).

V. Lapse.

Lapse, what is?

If a devisee or legatee of real or personal estate dies in the lifetime of the testator, the devise or bequest fails, or, as it is usually expressed, lapses, except in the cases provided for by the Wills Act, which will be presently mentioned.

Destination of the subject of lapsed gifts.

With respect to the destination of lapsed devises and bequests, there was, under the law as it stood prior to the Wills Act, an important difference between real and personal estate. In the case of personal estate, the lapsed legacy fell into the residuary estate unless a contrary intention appeared by the will; but where land was the subject of the lapsed gift, it went to the heir-at-law of the testator.

Under Wills Act lapsed interests in real estate go to residuary devisee.

The 25th section of the Wills Act provides, that, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, such real estate, or interest therein as shall be comprised or intended to be comprised in any devise in such will contained which shall fail or be void by reason of the death of the devisee in the lifetime of the testator, or by reason of such devise being contrary to law, or otherwise incapable of taking effect, shall be included in the residuary devise (if any) contained in such will.

What devises are residuary so as to include the subject of lapsed gifts.

The effect of this section is to assimilate the law with regard to the destination of lapsed interests in real and personal estates, and consequently the cases which have been decided in reference to personal estate will now be equally applicable to real estate. The question whether a devise or bequest of real or personal estate is residuary, so as to include lapsed interests, must of course depend upon the particular language used in each case. Words of exception will not of themselves prevent the gift from being residuary, as, for example, where there is a devise or bequest of particular lands or of a specific legacy, followed by a devise or bequest of all other the testator's estate, or all the testator's estate "except" what has been before given, the last-mentioned devise or bequest is residuary, and includes lapsed interests (d). In all such cases the question is whether the property is excepted in order to take it away under all circumstances and for all purposes from the person to whom the residue is given, or whether it is excepted merely for the purpose of giving it to somebody else. If the latter, and the gift to somebody else fails, the donees of all except this property are entitled to take the whole (e).

(c) Mahoney v. Burdett, L. R. 7 H. L. 388; Ingram v. Soutten, ib. 408. But see Olivant v. Wright,

1 Ch. D. 346, where the Court thought that the testator showed a contrary intention.

It has been held that a devise of "the rest of my freehold lands" in a particular parish is not a residuary devise within the meaning of the Wills Act, and did not include the subject of a void devise in the same parish (f).

The 32nd section of the Wills Act provides, that "where any person to whom any real estate shall be devised for an estate tail, or an estate in quasi entail, shall die in the lifetime of the testator, leaving issue who would be inheritable under such entail, and any such issue shall be living at the time of the death of the testator, such devise shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of such person had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will." And the 33rd section provides, that "where any person being a child or other issue of the testator, to whom any real or personal estate shall be devised or bequeathed for any estate or interest not determinable at or before the death of such person, shall die in the lifetime of the or on death of devisee or legatee, being issue of testator, leaving issue.

testator leaving issue, and any such issue of such person shall be living at the time of the death of the testator, such devise or bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of such person had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will."

Points decided with respect to 33rd section of Wills Act.

With regard to the construction of the 33rd section, the following points have been decided:—1. That it applies to appointments by will under a general power (g), but not to appointments under a power limited to particular objects (h). 2. That it applies to a case where the devisee or legatee is dead at the date of the will, leaving issue who survive the testator (i). 3. That it is not necessary, in order to prevent lapse, that the issue living at the decease of the testator should have been living when the legatee died. Thus, where a legacy was given to a daughter who died before the testatrix, leaving one child who also died before the testatrix, leaving a child who survived the testatrix, it was held that the legacy did not lapse (k). 4. That the section does not apply to gifts to a class (l). 5. That the section does not substitute for the deceased devisee or legatee the issue whose existence is the event or condition which prevents the lapse, but renders the subject of the gift the absolute property of the deceased devisee or legatee, and disposable by his will notwithstanding his death before the testator. Thus, if a child to whom a legacy is given makes a will containing a general or residuary bequest of his personal estate, and then dies before the original testator, leaving issue who survives such testator, the legacy goes to the residuary legatee under the child's will (m), and probate duty is payable in respect thereof (n). In a recent case where a testator gave the residue of his estate among his eight children, and directed that the share of his daughter if she survived him should be subject to the trusts of her marriage settlement, and the daughter died before him leaving issue, it was held that the share was, under section 33, payable to the trustees of the settlement as if the daughter had survived (o).

A gift to several persons as joint tenants, or to a class of persons, does not come within the operation of the doctrine of lapse unless all such joint tenants, or all the members constituting the class, die before the testator, as the gift takes effect in favour of those who survive (p); and where an estate is devised, subject to the payment of a sum thereout, the sum charged does not lapse by the death of the devisee of the estate in the testator's life (q). And a gift to a class operates in favour of those capable of taking, to the exclusion of those who are incapable (r).

No lapse on death of one of several joint tenants or of one of several members of a class.

Where a legacy is given to a person with a gift over if he dies before a given event, e.g., before he attains twenty-one, and the legatee dies in the testator's lifetime, and before the given event, the bequest over will take effect; but if the legatee died in the testator's lifetime after the given event, the legacy lapses (s).

A gift of personal estate on a contingency, e.g., to A. if he attains twenty-one, carries with it the intermediate income (t); but a devise of real estate does not, and the intermediate rents go to the residuary devisee, and if there is no residuary devise, or if the devise in question is itself a residuary devise, to the heir-at-law (u). If, however, there is a devise and bequest of real and personal estate as a mixed fund, the testator shows an intention that the rule applicable to personal estate shall apply also to the real estate, and the intermediate rents will follow the corpus (x). In a case where residuary real estate was devised to the second and other sons of A. (who was living, and had only one son, B.), and their issue in tail, with remainder to B. for life and his issue in tail, and the residuary personal estate was given upon trust to lay it out on the purchase of real estate to be settled to the same uses, it was held that during the suspense of vesting, the intermediate rents of the real estate belonged to the heir-at-law, and the income of the personal estate (including the income arising from the investment of such income) was liable to be laid out in the purchase of land (y).

VI. For what period the vesting of property given by will may be postponed or income may be accumulated, having regard to the rule against perpetuities and the Thellusson Act.

Rule against perpetuities.

It is a rule of law applicable to contingent remainders, and also to springing or secondary uses and executory devises, that all limitations of property must be made to take effect and become absolutely vested within the space of a life or lives in being, and twenty-one years and some months afterwards. Thus, a limitation to an unborn person for life, with remainder to the children of that person, is void as regards the remainder to the children (z). Again, if lands are devised to A. in fee simple, with an executory devise over in case A. or any of his heirs shall do a particular act, the devise over is void. But if lands are devised to A. in tail, with an executory devise over in case A.,

or the heirs of his body, shall do a particular act, the executory devise is valid, because A. being tenant in tail can at any time bar the entail and the executory devise, so that the property is not in fact tied up, and consequently the rule is not transgressed (a).

The rule against perpetuities is equally applicable to gifts of personal estate. It is therefore necessary, in framing all such gifts, to take care that the absolute vesting of them is not postponed beyond the period allowed, viz., a life or lives in being and twenty-one years afterwards.

Rule extends to personality.

Thus, if a legacy is given in trust for A. for life, and after his death for all his children who shall attain twenty-two, the gift is void, because it is possible that A. may die leaving a child just born, and in such case nearly twenty-two years beyond the life of A. must, or may, happen before the legacy becomes absolutely vested (b).

Instances of application of rule to personality.

All limitations ulterior to or expectant on one which is void for remoteness, are void also (c).

In exercising by will powers of appointment in favour of particular objects referred to in the power, it is necessary to bear in mind that the rule in question is to be applied as if the appointment was contained in the instrument creating the power (d). But a general power is equivalent to ownership, and time will be reckoned, in the case of a general power, from the death of the donee, and this is so, according to a recent case, where the donee is a married woman, and the power is testamentary only (e).

How rule to be applied, where will exercises a special power, or a general power.

Previously to the passing of the Act about to be mentioned, the income of property might be directed to be accumulated for the whole period permitted by the rule against perpetuities, as was decided in the great case Thellusson v. Woodford (f).

But it is provided that the Act shall not extend to any provision for payment of debts of any grantor, settlor, or devisor, or other person or persons, or to any provision for raising portions for any child or children of any grantor, settlor, or devisor, or any child or children of any person taking any interest under any such conveyance, settlement, or devise, or to any direction touching the produce of timber or wood upon any lands or tenements (h).

Periods mentioned in the Act are alternative.

Whether Act applies to

If a testator directs income to be accumulated for a period exceeding the time allowed by the Act, the accumulation will be allowed pro tanto, and will be void only for the excess (i).

The periods mentioned in the Act are alternative, and not cumulative. Consequently a direction to accumulate during the life of the grantor and for some time afterwards ceases at his death, although twenty-one years has not then expired (k).

The question has sometimes arisen whether the Thel-lusson Act applies to cases where there is no express trust for accumulation, but there is in the will an executory devise of such a nature that accumulation becomes necessary during the suspense of vesting.

accumulation arising by operation of law.

In Macdonald v. Bryce (l) property was given to A. (the eldest son of B.), and on his death, under twenty-one, to the other sons of B. in succession, and failing them, to others. A. died under twenty-one, and B. had no other son, but was still living at the end of twenty-one years from the death of A. It was held by Lord Langdale, that the Thellusson Act prevented accumulation during the rest of B.'s life, and that the income during that period was undisposed of and passed to the testator's next of kin. This decision was disapproved of by Vice-Chancellor Shadwell in the case of Elborne v. Goode (m), on the ground that, in the opinion of the Vice-Chancellor, the Act does not apply to cases where the accumulation arises by operation of law, but only to cases where there is an express trust for accumulation. On the other hand, Lord Cranworth, in Tench v. Cheese (n), thought that if a testator directs that to be done which, as a necessary consequence, leads to an indefinite accumulation, he must, within the meaning of the Act, be taken to have directed accumulation (o).

It will be observed that the Act simply makes void the direction to accumulate, and leaves the rents to go to such person, &c., as would have been entitled thereto if such accumulation had not been directed. Where, then, a residue is given upon trust to accumulate the income for the life of A., or any other period, such income will, after the expiration of the twenty-one years and during the rest of the period of accumulation directed by the will, go to the next of kin or heir-at-law of the testator, according to the nature of the property (p). But, in a case where a testator directed the rents of an estate to be accumulated until a certain sum was raised, and subject to such direction the estate was devised to several persons in succession, it was held that the direction to accumulate operated as a charge on the successive estates, and that accumulations made after twenty-one years from the testator's death belonged not to his heir-at-law, but to the persons entitled to the rents and profits under the devise (q).

What is a provision for raising portions within the exception in sect. 2.

With respect to the exception in the 2nd section of the Act of a provision for raising portions, it has been held (1) that the portions to be provided for may be portions given by the same instrument which contains the provision by way of accumulation, or by a former instrument (r); (2) that where the provision is for children of any person other than the grantor, &c., the parent must take some interest under the same instrument, but that it need not be an interest in the very property directed to be accumulated (r); (3) that a direction to accumulate the income of a testator's residue or of a legacy (s), followed by a gift of that residue or legacy with the accumulation to the children of a person taking an interest under the will, is not a provision for raising portions for such child within the meaning of the exception.

As to the validity of accumulations to pay debts.

A direction to accumulate rents and profits for an indefinite period for the purpose of paying debts, with a devise of the land (subject to such trust) to uses in strict settlement, does not contravene the rule against perpetuities, because, so soon as the fee simple vests in possession under the limitations, the owner can put an end to the accumulations (u), and a trust of this nature is excepted by the 2nd section from the operation of the Thellusson Act. But it was held in a

A contingent liability, under a covenant entered into by the testator, is a debt within the meaning of the exception in the 2nd section, and may be provided for by a direction to create a sinking fund without any reference to the period of accumulation allowed by the Act (y).

VII. Gifts to Charities.

Subject to certain exceptions (z), dispositions by will of land or any interest in land, or of personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land for charitable purposes, are prohibited and rendered void by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, which Act repeals and substantially re-enacts the Act 9 Geo. 2, c. 36.

Dispositions by will of land or money to be laid out in land for charitable purposes void.

With respect to the question what is an interest in land, the following points were decided on the construction of 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, and will probably be considered applicable to cases under the Act of 1888, viz., (1) That money secured by mortgage of land (a), including an equitable mortgage by deposit of deeds (b), a vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money (c), and the proceeds of growing crops (d), are interests in land within the meaning of the Act. (2) That shares in gas, canal, or railway or other companies possessing land for the purposes of their undertaking(e), including mining companies conducted on the cost-book principle, are not interests in land within the meaning of the Act, whether the particular Act incorporating the company does or does not contain a clause providing that the shares shall be personal estate, the test being, whether the share can, under any ordinary state of circumstances, result to the holder in the shape of land, and there is no difference in this respect between debenture stock and ordinary stock or shares. (3) That the debentures of railway and other companies, as well as their stock or shares, and mortgages of rates or tolls leviable on owners or occupiers of land, are not within the Act(f). (4) That policies of assurance by which the directors engage "to pay out of the funds," or "that the funds shall be liable," or "that a share of the funds shall be paid," are not within the Act, although the assets of the assurance company may consist partly of real estate(g); but that, in the case of private partnership, the interest of a deceased partner in land forming part of the partnership property is within the Act(h). (5) That the interest of a testator in the proceeds of real estate directed to be sold by the will of a former testator, but which in fact remains unsold at the death of the second testator, is within the Act, whether the second testator was entitled to the whole proceeds or only to a share therein or to a legacy payable thereout, and if the legacy payable thereout is payable also out of the personal estate of the first testator, there will be no apportionment(i). may be bequeathed to a charity, even though the debt may remain unpaid at the death of the covenantor, and has to be paid out of his real estate, his personalty being insufficient (k); but a covenant to leave money to a charity must be treated as a legacy, and is void in the proportion which the impure bears to the pure personalty (l).

A power conferred by Act of Parliament on a charitable institution to hold land without incurring any of the penalties of the Statutes of Mortmain, does not enable it to take land by devise (m), the statutes referred to being not the Act 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, but the older statutes prohibiting corporations from holding land without a licence in mortmain from the Crown (n). If, however, the special Act expressly authorizes the charity to take land by will, it seems necessary to hold that a devise to it would be valid, as otherwise the enactment would have no effect (o).

Power conferred by statute on an institution to hold land does not enable it to take land by devise.

Pure personal estate, i. e., personal estate unconnected with land, may be bequeathed by will for charitable purposes, if those purposes do not involve the purchase of land; and such a bequest is not obnoxious to the rule against perpetuities, although the trust may last for an indefinite period.

Gift of personal estate to a charity not obnoxious to rule against perpetuities.

Any gift for the promotion of a useful public purpose is charitable, but the purpose must be public; for if money is given in trust for such benevolent purposes as the executors shall approve (p), or in "private charity" (q), the law will not recognize such a trust. So also as regards gifts for the maintenance of religious services, those services must be such as tend directly or indirectly to the instruction or edification of the public; and a gift to a religious community of persons who spend their lives in celibacy for the purpose of sanctifying their souls by prayer and pious contemplation has been held not to be charitable (r).

Trust to repair church, or churchyard, or tomb, when a charitable object.

A trust to repair a church or a monument in a church, being an ornament of the building (s), or to repair a parsonage house (t) or a churchyard (u), is a good charitable trust, as being for the benefit of the inhabitants of the place; but a trust to repair a particular tomb in a churchyard is a mere private purpose, and not charitable; and if the trust is to last for an indefinite period, the gift is void as creating a perpetuity (x).

Gift to a charity to be applied in building void, unless on land already in mortmain.

A gift of money to a charity to be applied in building is prima facie void, as involving the purchase of land for a site (y).

But there is no objection to a bequest of money for the erection or repair of buildings on land already in mortmain (z), or for the endowment of churches or chapels in existence (a). Where there is land already in mortmain on which the buildings can be erected, it is sometimes difficult to ascertain whether a testator has sufficiently pointed to such land so as to render the gift good. In a case where a legacy was given to build a parsonage-house, and it appeared that there was glebe on which it could be erected, the gift was held good (b). In another case a gift of money to the trustees of a Wesleyan chapel to be applied towards the erection of a new chapel was held valid, there being land duly vested in the trustees at the date of the will on which a new chapel could be built (c); but in a similar case, the contrary was decided by another judge, on the ground that such land was not distinctly pointed out (d).

The validity of a gift of money to "establish" a charity seems to depend on whether the charity can be established without the purchase of land. Thus, in Attorney-General v. Williams (e), a gift of personalty to establish a school was held good, because the master might teach in his own house or in the church; and in Hartshorne v. Nicholson (f), a similar bequest was supported on the ground that a school might be established by hiring a room for the purpose. But in the case of Attorney-General v. Hull (g), a similar bequest was held to be void, because, taking the whole of the will together, the Court thought it was clearly the intention of the testator that land should be purchased (h). And in other cases, gifts to establish an hospital (i) or slaughter-houses (k) have been held void.

Gifts to "establish" a charity, when valid.

In order to render a gift invalid under the statute, it is not sufficient that the trustees may consistently with their trust apply the fund in a manner which would be illegal: the question in every case is, whether they must do so (l), for where trustees have a discretion to apply the money either in a way which the law allows, or in one which the law disallows, the presumption ought to be that the discretion will be exercised in the former mode (m).

To render charitable gifts void, it is not sufficient that trustees may apply it illegally.

Thus, if the trustees have an option to lay out the money in land or in investments not savouring of realty, the bequest would be good (n). And in a case where a sum of money was bequeathed to the mayor and jurats of a town to be laid out by them in such manner as they should think proper for the benefit and ornament of the town, the gift was supported although the discretion of the trustees might extend to the application of the fund in violation of the statute (o). And on the same principle a bequest of money to be applied in aid of erecting or endowing a church has been held good (p).

Bequest for building on condition that a site is provided, whether valid.

A bequest of money to a charitable society for building almshouses on condition that the society will procure lands for a site, is in effect a bequest for the purchase of land, and therefore void (q); but a bequest of money to be applied in erecting an almshouse provided that some person shall within a limited time give a piece of land as a site is good; and it is not a sufficient objection to a gift to a charity that its tendency is to bring lands into mortmain (r). And a bequest for the endowment of a future church, or to build almshouses as soon as land should be given for the purpose, is a valid bequest, and the Court will direct an enquiry whether the fund can be applied for the purpose (s). If it turns out that a site cannot be obtained, the legacy lapses, and will not be applied cy-près (t).

Assets not marshalled in favour of a charity.

If a testator bequeaths a general legacy to a charity without specifying the fund out of which it is to be paid, the Court will not marshal the assets in favour of the legacy, but such proportion of the legacy would fail as the prohibited portion of the testator's property bears to the pure personalty (u).

of money to be laid out in land, the legacy fails in favour of the next of kin and not of the heir (y).

If land or impure personalty is given to a person on a secret trust for a charity, the gift is void, but in order to constitute a secret trust, there must have been in the lifetime of the testator an express or implied promise or assent on the part of the legatee to carry out the testator's intention (z).

What constitutes a secret trust for a charity.

If a testator shows a general intention in favour of charity, but the objects are not specifically defined, or the defined objects fail, the Court will carry out the general intention cy-pres (a). If, however, the testator shows an intention not of general charity, but to give to some particular institution only, and the gift fails because the institution has ceased to exist, the legacy will fall into the residue (b).

VIII. Conversion.

Where a testator gives his personal estate or the residue of his personal estate in general terms to A. for life, with remainder over, the trustees are bound to convert into money all such property as is of a perishable or wasting nature, such as leaseholds, long annuities, &c.; the principle being that it is prima facie to be presumed that a testator intends that the same property which is given to the tenant for life shall go to those in remainder, and in order to effect such intention, wasting property must be turned into permanent property (d). But if it appear from the context of the will that the testator intended that the tenant for life should enjoy the property in specie, such indication of intention takes the case out of the general rule. Whether such an intention sufficiently appears is frequently a difficult question. A direction out of the rents to renew leaseholds and keep houses in repair (e); a trust to sell the property on the decease of the tenant for life (f), or only in a given event (g); a direction not to sell without the consent of all parties (h), and a power to trustees to retain any portion of the testator's property in the same state in which the same shall be at his death, or to sell and convert the same (i), have been held sufficient evidence of the testator's intention that leaseholds should or might be enjoyed in specie. In some cases, again, where the gift of the residue has been distinguished by a mention of particular parts of the testator's property, or where the property has been pointed to specifically in the gift over, a similar intention has been inferred as to the property so specified (k).

A bequest of rents to tenant for life, whether sufficient to entitle him to enjoy in specie.

In Pickup v. Atkinson (l) it was held that a bequest of the rents, profits, dividends, and interests of the residue in general terms to the tenant for life, was not of itself sufficient to entitle him to enjoy leaseholds in specie, but in other cases the contrary seems to have been decided (m).

The rule as to conversion applies not only to perishable and wearing out property in the strict sense of the term, but also to all property not consisting of investments authorized by the will or by law.

Rule as to conversion applies to all the personal estate not consisting of authorized investments.

Executors are allowed a year from the testator's death for the realizing of his property, and the conversion of such part as ought to be converted. If they neglect this duty they are liable for any loss which may arise.

Liability of executors who neglect to convert.

As between tenant for life and remainderman their respective rights in the testator's residuary estate are as follows:—The tenant for life is entitled, as from the day of the testator's death, to the whole income derived from such part of the testator's estate as is properly invested (o), but as to such part of the estate as is not so invested he is entitled to an annual sum equal to the interest of so much 3 per cent. stock (p) as would have been purchased with the unconverted property if such conversion had been made at the end of the year, and the excess of income accruing from the unconverted property is to be deemed corpus (q). The following exception has, however, been made, viz., that if the property is so circumstanced as that it is producing a large annual income, and is secure, but cannot be immediately converted without a loss to the estate, then a value in money will be set upon it, and the tenant for life will be allowed 4 per cent. on such

M. & G. 247, the rights of the parties were adjusted on the principle that the executors were liable for the money which would have been produced by a conversion of unauthorized securities at the end of a year, with interest at 4 per cent., and that the tenant for life was entitled to that interest. The decision may have been right under the special circumstances of the case, but has not altered the general rule, which is as stated in the text.

value from the testator's death, the excess of income beyond 4 per cent. being treated as corpus (r).

The rule as to conversion is to be applied for the benefit of as well as against the tenant for life, and consequently extends to any part of the testator's estate which may be reversionary. If executors in the exercise of their discretion think that a loss will arise by a conversion of reversionary property, and consequently wait until it falls into possession, their doing so will not be allowed to prejudice the tenant for life, and the Court will direct a value to be set upon such reversion at the end of the first year, and will give to the tenant for life the difference between the fund actually received and the value of the reversion as so ascertained (s).

Tenant for life

legacies.

It will be borne in mind that the tenant for life of a residue is entitled to the income of such residue only, and not to the income which may accrue on such part of the testator's estate as is applied in payment of legacies during the period which may intervene between the death of the testator and the actual payment of such legacies. Thus, in a case where a testator gave £16,000 in legacies, and then gave the residue of his personal estate to his wife for life with remainders over, and all his estate was in Consols at his death, it was held that the income which accrued after the testator's death and before the payment of the legacies on so much of the fund as was applied in payment of such legacies did not belong to the tenant for life, but formed part of the corpus of the residue (t); and in another case it was held that where a testator bequeaths legacies, and gives his residue to a tenant for life, with remainder over, executors, though as between themselves and the persons interested in the residue they are at liberty to have recourse to any funds they please in order to pay debts and legacies, yet will be treated by the Court in adjusting accounts between the tenant for life and remainder-man, as having paid the debts and legacies not out of capital only, but with such portion of the capital as together with the income of that portion for one year was sufficient for the purpose (u).

In order to prevent any question arising out of the doctrine above discussed, every will by which a residue is given upon trusts for sale and conversion, should expressly authorize the trustee to postpone such sale and conversion, and should direct that the rents and income arising from the unconverted property shall, from the testator's death, go to the same persons and in the same manner as the income of the proceeds of the conversion thereof would be applicable if such conversion had been made (x). Under such a direction executors may carry on a testator's business for a reasonable time after his death with a view to sell it as a going concern, and the profits arising therefrom will belong to the tenant for life as income (y).

Direction as to application of income desirable.

If real estate is directed to be sold, and the proceeds of sale are absolutely bequeathed, the property from that time acquires the character of personalty, and in the event of the death of the beneficiary before a sale, the proceeds would belong to his personal representatives. On the other hand, moneys which are directed to be laid out in the purchase of land, from the creation of the trust assume the character of real estate, and devolve as such on the real representatives of the beneficiary, whether he dies before the conversion or afterwards.

Destination of moneys arising from land directed to be sold.

At any time before conversion, the beneficiary, if sui juris and absolutely entitled, may elect to take the property directed to be converted in its actual state; and such election will be implied from his acts, e.g., if, in the case of land directed to be sold, he grants a lease of it (z), or receives the rent of it for some years after the time for sale (a).

Heir not disinherited as to interests not disposed of.

When real estate is directed to be converted, and the whole of the proceeds of sale are not absolutely disposed of, or the disposition thereof wholly or partially fails by lapse or otherwise, a question sometimes arises as to the relative rights of the heir-at-law and the personal representatives of the testator. It is clear that the heir is not disinherited by the direction to convert, unless the whole beneficial interest in the proceeds of sale is in the event absolutely disposed of; so far, therefore, as the beneficial interest is either directly or indirectly undisposed of, or becomes so by subsequent events, the undisposed of interest belongs to the heir, and not to the next of kin (b); but if after the failure of the disposition the heir dies, his personal representatives and not his heir are entitled to the undisposed of proceeds (c). The principle is clear—the trust for conversion is created for the benefit of the legatees, and not for the next of kin, so that there is no ground for depriving the heir-at-law of the undisposed of interest, simply because, under the trust for the particular purposes of the will, a sale may have taken place. In Taylor v. Taylor (d), a testator directed his real estate to be sold, and the proceeds to go as his personal estate, and he bequeathed all the residue of his personal estate (including the proceeds of sale) on trusts for his children equally; one of the children died, and it was held that that child's lapsed share in the proceeds should go to the heir-at-law of the testator.

IX. In what cases precatory words create a trust.

Trusts raised by words of recommendation, &c.

A testator not uncommonly associates an absolute gift or devise with words of "recommendation," "hope," "request," or other terms of a precatory character, which raise the important question whether

(b) Eyre v. Marsden, 2 Keen, 574; 1 Jarm. on Wills, 4th ed. pp. 619 et seq. If, however, real estate is settled by deed upon trust to sell for certain specified purposes, and any of those purposes fail, then, whether the trust for sale is to arise in the lifetime of the settlor, or not until after his decease, the property to that extent results to the settlor in personalty from the moment the deed is executed. Clarke v. Franklin, 4 K. & J. 257.

(c) Wilson v. Coles, 28 Beav. 215.

(d) 3 De G. M. & G. 190.

he intended to impose a trust on the devisee, and often, it is apprehended, the Court has been obliged to decide that the devisee must hold the estate saddled with a trust, when there was no such intention on the part of the testator, and when in fact the words have been introduced into the will rather for the purpose of communicating some of the general feelings of the testator, and of affecting the conscience of the devisee, than with a view to fetter the property in his hands.

As a general rule it has been laid down that when property is given absolutely to any person, and the same person is by the will recommended or entreated or wished to dispose of it in favour of another, the recommendation, entreaty, or wish, will create a trust—1st, if the words are so used that upon the whole they ought to be construed as imperative; 2ndly, if the subject of the recommendation or wish be certain; and 3rdly, if the objects or persons intended to have the benefit of the recommendation or wish, be also certain (e).

The following are instances in which the words of gift have been held to create a trust:—

trust.

A devise to the testator's wife of real and personal estate, in the fullest confidence that after her decease she will devise the property to the testator's family (f); a recommendation to the testator's daughter to dispose of the property among her children (g); a gift by the testator to his wife, with a recommendation to her to dispose of the property by will amongst certain persons whom the testator named (h); a devise of copyholds to testator's wife, not doubting that she would dispose of the same to and amongst her children as she should please (i); a gift to a wife for her life, accompanied with the following words: "It being my will and desire that the principal should be left entirely to the

But in the following instances it was held that no trust was created:—

A bequest of dividends to the testator's brother to enable him to assist such of the children of ——— as he should find deserving of encouragement (l); a devise to the testator's wife that she might support herself and her children according to her discretion, and for that purpose (m); a gift to a son for his own use and benefit, well knowing he would discharge the trust reposed in him by remembering his, the testator's, other sons and daughters (n); a gift of income to testator's wife, with request to dispose of the savings among his children (o); a gift to the testator's wife of the capital of a business, trusting that she would act justly and properly to and by all the testator's children (p); a gift to two daughters, associated with the following words:—"If they die single of course they will leave what they have amongst their brothers and sisters, or their children" (q); a gift of real and personal estate to A. B., his heirs, executors, and assigns, for his and their own use and benefit for ever, trusting and wholly confiding in his honour that he will act in strict conformity with the testator's wishes (r); a gift to a wife, her executors, administrators and assigns to and for her and their own use and benefit, upon the fullest trust and confidence reposed in her that she would dispose of the same to and for the joint benefit of herself and his children (s); a gift of a legacy to a "wife to be disposed of by her will in such way as she shall think proper, but I recommend her to dispose of one-half to her own relations, and one-half among such of my relations as she shall think proper" (t); a gift to wife "being fully satisfied that she will dispose of same by will or otherwise, in a fair and equitable manner to our united relatives, bearing in mind that my relatives are generally in better circumstances than hers are" (u); a gift to wife "to and for her own use and benefit absolutely, having full confidence in her sufficient and judicious provision for my dear children" (x); a gift to wife "to be at her disposal in any way she may think best for the benefit of herself and family" (y); a gift to a married woman "for her own proper use and benefit" separately from her husband, "the proceeds to be applied by her in the maintenance of all her children" (z).

In some of the cases above referred to, the words were held not to create a trust on the ground that the interest given to the objects was not sufficiently defined (a). It follows that in the preparation of a will for a testator who wishes his devisee to dispose of the subject of the devise in a particular manner, but does not intend to create a trust binding on him, the will should contain some words or clause to make this intention manifest. If, on the other hand, the testator's object is to impose a trust, the trust and the nature of the discretion intended to be vested in the devisee should be declared in clear and formal language; and care should be taken that there is no uncertainty as to the subject or interest to be given, or the objects to be benefited.

Will should state expressly whether trust is intended or not.

X. The effect of a charge of debts and the implied power of sale thereby created.

Personal estate vests in executors for payment of debts.

All the personal estate of a deceased person (including his leasehold lands) vests in his executors in the first instance, although specifically bequeathed, and may be disposed of by them for the payment of the testator's debts, and the purchaser is not bound to see to the application of his purchase-money. And there is no particular time at which a presumption arises that the debts have all been paid, and consequently that the executors' right to sell has ceased (b).

Real estate formerly not liable to debts unless charged by will.

By the common law the real estate of a deceased person was not liable to his general debts, but if the testator by his will expressly charged his real estate with the payment of his debts, such a charge was, and of course still is, effective in equity.

In what cases a general direction for payment of debts creates a charge.

A general direction, or an expression of desire in a will that the testator's debts shall be paid, creates a charge on the real estate for their payment (c). But if such a direction or expression of desire is followed by the gift of a particular property for the purpose of paying debts, the implied charge will be considered as limited by the subsequent gift, and will be confined to the property included in such gift (d). Where, however, the will contains an express charge of debts upon the real estate, such express charge will not be cut down by the subsequent creation of a fund for the payment of the debts (e).

In what cases a direction that the debts shall be paid by the executors is a charge.

A direction that the debts shall be paid by the executors does not of itself charge the real estate (f). If, however, the executors are also made devisees, the question whether the estate devised to them is thereby charged with the debts is one of intention to be collected from the whole of the will. Thus it has been held that a charge is created, where the devise is of all the real estate to the executor (there being only one) either beneficially or on trust, or to all the executors jointly (g), but not where one only of several executors is the devisee (h), or where the executors take unequally (i), or where part only of the real estate is given to them, and the rest given to others (k).

A charge of debts confers a power of sale for the purpose of giving effect to it. It was frequently a difficult question in the case of wills coming into operation before the passing of the Act about to be mentioned, who was or were the person or persons in whom the power of sale for payment of debts was vested (l). It is now, however, provided by sects. 14 to 18 inclusive of the 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, as follows:—

A charge of debts confers a power of sale.

SECT. 14. Where by any will which shall come into operation after the passing of this Act, the testator shall have charged his real estate or any specific portion thereof with the payment of his debts, or with the payment of any legacy or other specific sum of money, and shall have devised the estate so charged to any trustee or trustees for the whole of his estate or interest therein, and shall not have made any express provision for the raising of such debt, legacy, or sum of money out of such estate, it shall be lawful for the said devisee or devisees in trust, notwithstanding any trusts actually declared by the testator, to raise such debts, legacy, or money as aforesaid, by a sale and absolute disposition, by public auction or private contract, of the said hereditaments or any part thereof, or by a mortgage of the same, or partly in one mode and partly in the other, and any deed or deeds of mortgage so executed may reserve such rate of interest and fix such period or periods of repayment as the person or persons executing the same shall think proper.

Powers given by last section extended to survivors, devisees, &c.

15. The powers conferred by the last section shall extend to all and every person or persons in whom the estate devised shall for the time being be vested by survivorship, descent, or devise, or to any person or persons who may be appointed under any power in the will or by the Court of Chancery, to succeed to the trusteeship vested in such devisee or devisees in trust as aforesaid.

Executors to have power of raising money, &c., where there is no sufficient devise.

16. If any testator who shall have created such a charge as is described in the fourteenth section shall not have devised the hereditaments charged as aforesaid in such terms as that his whole estate and interest therein shall become vested in any trustee or trustees, the executor or executors for the time being named in such will (if any) shall have the same or the like power of raising the said moneys as is hereinbefore vested in the devisee or devisees in trust of the said hereditaments, and such power shall from time to time devolve to and become vested in the person or persons (if any) in whom the executorship shall for the time being be vested: but any sale or mortgage under this Act shall operate only on the estate and interest, whether legal or equitable, of the testator, and shall not render it unnecessary to get in any outstanding subsisting legal estate.

Purchasers, &c., not bound to inquire as to powers.

17. Purchasers or mortgagees shall not be bound to inquire whether the powers conferred by sections 14, 15, and 16 of this Act or either of them, shall have been duly and correctly exercised by the person or persons acting in virtue thereof.

Sections 14, 15, and 16 not to affect certain sales, &c., nor to extend to devises in fee or in tail.

18. The provisions contained in sections 14, 15, and 16 shall not in any way prejudice or affect any sale or mortgage already made or hereafter to be made under or in pursuance of any will coming into operation before the passing of this Act, but the validity of any such sale or mortgage shall be ascertained and determined in all respects as if this Act had not been passed, and the said several sections shall not extend to a devise to any person or persons in fee or in tail, or for the testator's whole estate and interest charged with debts or legacies, nor shall they affect the power of any such devisee or devisees to sell or mortgage, as he or they may by law now do.

According to the terms of sect. 14, the power is to be vested in the trustees only where the testator has not made any express provision for raising the debts, &c. out of the estate charged. It is conceived that the simple purpose of these words is to prevent any particular provision which the testator may have made for the application of his property, or of particular parts of it in payment of his debts, from being frustrated. If, however, he has made express provision for the payment of his debts out of particular parts of his estate, and such parts prove to be insufficient for the purpose, it is presumed that the trustees might sell the remainder of the estate vested in them under the powers conferred by this section in order to meet the deficiency (m).

Operation of section where testator has made a partial provision for debts.

It has been held that an administrator with the will annexed cannot sell under sect. 16 (n).

Administrator with will annexed cannot sell under sect. 16.

It will be seen that under the 18th section the case of a devise to any person or persons in fee or in tail, or for the testator's whole estate and interest charged with debts or legacies, is withdrawn from the Act. Under such a devise, subject to debts or to debts and legacies, it is well established that the devisee, if he is also the executor or one of the executors, can sell or mortgage, and that the purchaser or mortgagee is not bound to see to the application of his money, but whether a devisee not being an executor can make a good title alone, remains undecided (o). If, however, land is devised to A. absolutely subject to legacies only, it is apprehended that a title cannot be made without showing the payment or release of the legacies, and if it is intended to pay them out of the purchase-money, the purchaser must see to the application of his purchase-money accordingly (p).

How long power remains in force under the 14th
section.

The existence of the power of sale conferred by the Act is not likely to create any practical difficulty in cases coming within the 14th section. The payment of debts is thereby in effect made one of the trusts on which the trustees hold the property, and upon any sale made by them within twenty years from the testator's death, a purchaser can safely take a title from them without inquiry (q).

How long
under the 16th
section.

But there is more difficulty in cases coming within the 16th section. Suppose, for instance, that the real estate is devised to the use of A. for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail. During A.'s life, the executors would clearly have a power of sale for payment of debts, but on A.'s death his eldest son bars the entail and becomes owner in fee simple, and the question is, whether the executor's power still subsists, or whether the case does not come within the exception at the end of the 18th section—in other words, whether that exception applies only to devises creating a fee simple or fee tail in possession at the testator's death, or extends also to estates originally limited in remainder, so soon as they become estates in possession.

Express provision for raising debts, &c., should be inserted.

On the whole, the above enactments cannot be considered as placing the law in relation to a charge of debts on a perfectly satisfactory footing, and the practitioner is recommended not to rely on them, but as a general rule to insert in a will an express provision for raising money to pay debts and legacies by proper trusts or powers vested in trustees for that purpose.

If an owner of land dies intestate, or makes a will containing no charge of debts either express or implied, the heir or devisee is liable to the debts to the extent of the lands descended or devised, and the land itself is to be administered in equity, and there is no difference in this respect between specialty and simple contract debts (r).

If the heir or devisee aliens for valuable consideration, whether by way of sale or ante-nuptial settlement, before any proceedings are taken for administration, the alienation is valid, and he remains liable personally for the ancestor's or testator's debts to the extent of the value of the land, as if they were his own (s). But a voluntary alienation, or a judgment entered up against the heir or devisee will not prevail (t).

Alienation by heir, &c., for value, good against creditors.

An alienation by a legatee of personal estate with the assent of the executor is valid against any debts of the testator remaining unpaid (u).

So is an alienation for value by a legatee of personal estate.

The 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 104, extends not only to debts due at the testator's death, but also to all liabilities which may result out of obligations entered into by him during his life (x).

Act extends to future liabilities.

A devise or trust for the payment of debts raises no trust for the payment of those debts which have been barred by the Statute of Limitations prior to the death of the testator (y); and if the time allowed by the statute has not run out at the testator's death, such a devise or trust will not prevent the statute from running in equity after the death of the testator either as to real (z) or personal estate (a).

XI. Descent, and the mode in which the personal estate of an intestate is distributed.

Descent governed by Common Law and Inheritance Act.

General result of rules of descent, as to order of succession.

The freehold land of a person dying intestate devolves according to the rules of descent established by the common law, as modified by the Act 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 106, for a full statement and explanation of which the reader is referred to Stephen's Commentaries, Book II. Part I. c. xi. It will be sufficient here to state as a general result of these rules that the order of succession where the intestate (whom we may call A.) has acquired land by purchase is as follows:—

Sons according to seniority and their issue.
Daughters equally and their issue.

- (1.) First in order come A.'s eldest son and his issue ad infinitum, next A.'s second son and his issue, and so on to the youngest son. If A. has left no son nor issue of a son, A.'s daughters and their lineal descendants take in equal shares as between daughters, the issue of a deceased daughter representing her. As among the issue of deceased sons and daughters the descent is governed by the rules (i) that males are preferred to females, (ii) that among males the eldest is preferred, while females take equally, and (iii) that the parent is always preferred to, and takes in exclusion of his own issue.

Father.

- (2.) If A. has left no issue, his father succeeds.

Brothers and sisters of the whole blood.

- (3.) If A. has left no issue nor a father, A.'s brothers of the whole blood and their lineal descendants take, an elder brother and his issue being always preferred to younger brothers and their issue. The issue of a dead brother represent their parent as in the case of A.'s own sons.
- (4.) Then come A.'s sisters of the whole blood equally and their issue, the issue of a dead sister representing her as in the case of A.'s daughters.

Half-brothers and sisters on the father's side.

- (5.) Then come A.'s half-brothers on the father's side, and their issue in similar order.
- (6.) Then A.'s half-sisters on the father's side, and their issue in similar order.

Paternal grandfather, uncles and aunts and their issue.

- (7.) Then A.'s paternal grandfather, then A.'s paternal uncles and aunts, and their issue in similar order.

- (8.) Then A.'s more remote paternal ancestors, and their issue in similar order, the nearer ancestor and his issue being always preferred to the more remote ancestor and his issue. Other paternal ancestors and their issue.
- (9.) When all the paternal line is exhausted, the maternal ancestors and their issue take in similar order. Maternal ancestors and their issue.

Where the intestate has himself acquired the land by descent, the descent on his death must be traced to the last purchaser, i.e. to the person who last acquired the land otherwise than by descent (b). In the application of this rule a question has arisen in the case of a man who after purchasing land dies intestate leaving two daughters, one of whom afterwards dies intestate leaving a son, whether the moiety of the deceased daughter passes entirely to the grandson, or to the other daughter and grandson equally. It has been held that the grandson takes the whole, he being in respect of that moiety the heir of the purchaser (c).

The personal estate of an intestate (subject to the payment of his debts and funeral and testamentary expenses) is distributable (unless the intestate is a married woman) according to the rules laid down in the Act 22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 10, as amended by 1 Jac. 2, c. 17, sect. 7. The general result of these enactments is as follows:—

- (1.) If the intestate (whom we may call A.) leaves a widow, she takes one-third, if there are children, and if not, one-half. Widow's share.
- (2.) The children take equally between them two-thirds, if there is a widow, and if not, the whole. If any child has died before A. leaving issue, the issue take per stirpes the share which the deceased child would have taken if he or she had survived A., and this distribution per stirpes takes place when all A.'s children have died before him leaving issue (d). If any child of A. Children and their representatives.
- Advancements to be brought into hotchpot.

(not being his heir-at-law) has any estate in land by the settlement of A., or has received any advancement from A. by way of portion, he must bring any such advancement into hotchpot (e).

Father.

- (3.) If A. leaves no issue, his father takes one-half or the whole, according as A. has left a widow or not.

Mother, and sisters, and their representatives.

- (4.) If A. leaves no issue nor a father, one-half or the whole (according as A. has left a widow or not) goes to his mother (f) and brothers and sisters equally. If there are several brothers or sisters and some or one of them (but not all) have died leaving issue, the issue take per stirpes the share which their parent would have taken if living. The half-blood take in equal rank with the whole blood.

Next of kin.

- (5.) If A. leaves no issue, father, brother, or sister, one half or the whole (according as A. has left a widow or not) goes to his mother (if any), and if he leaves no mother, then to his nearest of kin in equal degree, but no representation is allowed among collaterals after brothers and sisters.

No representation after

(g) Strictly they ought to come in with brothers and sisters, who are also in the second degree; but before the Statute of Distributions it had been held that brothers and sisters were to be preferred to grandparents, and this principle was adhered to afterwards. 2 Wms.

Exors. (7th ed.).

(h) It will be borne in mind that if A. had left a brother or sister, and nephews or nieces, being the children of a deceased brother or sister, the nephews or nieces would have taken a share under (5); but if A. leaves no brothers or sisters, nephews and nieces can only come in as above stated.

An advancement by portion within the 3rd section of the Statute of Distributions is a sum given by a parent to establish a child in life or to make a provision for such child; as, e.g., on marriage, or by buying a commission or outfit for a son going into the army, or by buying the goodwill of a business, or by paying a son's admission fee to an Inn of Court, or the premium and stamp on his being articulated to a solicitor, but mere annual payments will not be treated as advancements, e.g., the payment of a fee to a special pleader in the case of a son going to the bar, or the price of outfit and passage-money of an officer in the army going out to India with his regiment (i). And a sum of money given by a father to a son, to enable him to pay a debt or debts may be an advancement, as well as money given for any other purpose (k).

What is an advancement.

The Statute of Distributions does not apply to the case of a wife dying possessed of personal estate. In such case the husband is entitled to administer and to take the whole for his own use (l).

Husband entitled to whole of wife's personalty.

The special customs concerning the distribution of personal estates of intestates which formerly prevailed in the City of London, and in the Province of York, &c., are repealed as to all persons dying after the 31st Dec., 1856, by the 19 & 20 Vict. c. 94.

Customs of City of London, York, &c., repealed.

Moveable property wherever locally situate is distributed according to the law of the place where the intestate was domiciled at his death, but for this purpose a chattel interest in land is not regarded as moveable.

XII. The probate of wills and the duties on probates and letters of administration, and under the Legacy and Succession Duty Acts.

Wills of personalty must be proved.

Wills of personalty must be proved and administration to the effects of intestates taken out in the Probate Division of the High Court of Justice, either in the principal registry, or in the registry of the district in which the testator or intestate had a fixed place of abode at the time of his death (m). Recent Acts (n) provide that where an intestate's estate does not exceed £100, the widow or children of the intestate, if residing more than three miles from the Probate District Registry, may apply to the Registrar of the County Court, and obtain letters of administration through him.

As to probate of will relating to real estate.

Previously to the Act 20 & 21 Vict. c. 77, a will which related to land only ought not to have been proved, and the probate was not evidence of the due execution of such will as to the land; but by section 64 of the above Act it is provided that in any action at law or suit in equity where according to the existing law it would be necessary to produce and prove an original will in order to establish a devise of real estate, the party intending to establish on proof such devise may give notice to the other party of his intention to produce the probate or a stamped copy in evidence, and in such case the probate or stamped copy shall be sufficient evidence, although the will may not have been proved in solemn form, unless the party receiving such notice shall within four days give notice that he disputes the validity of the devise. And by other sections of the Act, the probate or a stamped copy is made conclusive evidence of the due execution and contents of the will as to real estate, when the will has been proved in solemn form or has been established in a contentious cause or matter, and the heir-at-law has been cited (o).

Transmission

represent the original testator, but letters of administration de bonis non with the will annexed of the original testator must be taken out. In like manner, if A. dies intestate, and B. takes out letters of administration to his estate and afterwards dies, the executor or administrator of B. does not represent A., but new letters of administration de bonis non of A. must be taken out.

If two or more persons are appointed executors and all prove the will, the representation passes to the executor of the last survivor.

Previously to the Act above referred to, if one of two joint executors renounced probate, the renunciation might be retracted at any time, and the renouncing executor come in and prove. Consequently, if one of two joint executors renounced, and the proving executor died first, the representation did not pass to his executor; and if the renouncing executor still refused to prove, letters of administration de bonis non to the original testator became necessary. But it is now provided that where an executor renounces probate of a will, or dies without having taken probate, or does not appear on a citation to take probate, the right of such person in respect of the executorship shall wholly cease, and the representation to the testator and the administration of his effects shall without any further renunciation, go, devolve, and be committed in like manner as if such person had not been appointed executor (p).

Effect of renunciation by executor.

Probate is necessary of a will made in execution of a power and affecting personalty; but a will merely appointing a guardian need not be proved (q).

Probate of will in exercise of power.

By the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1881 (r), the following stamp duties are imposed on probates of wills and letters of administration in England or Ireland, viz. :—

Stamp duties on probates and letters of administration after 1st June, 1881.

Donations
mortis causâ and property comprised in voluntary settlements
made subject to probate duty.

It is also provided that like duty shall be paid in respect of—(a) any property taken as a donation mortis causâ made by any person dying on or after the 1st June, 1881, or taken under a voluntary disposition made by any person so dying, purporting to operate as an immediate gift, inter vivos, whether by way of transfer, delivery, declaration of trust or otherwise, which shall not have been bonâ fide made three months before the death of the deceased: (b) any property which a person dying on or after such day, having been absolutely entitled thereto, has voluntarily caused, or may voluntarily cause to be transferred to or vested in himself and any other person jointly,—whether by disposition or otherwise, so that the beneficial interest therein or in some part thereof passes or accrues by survivorship on his death to such other person: (c) any property passing under any past or future voluntary settlement made by a person dying on or after such day by deed or any other instrument not taking effect as a will, whereby an interest in such property for life or any other period determinable by reference to death is reserved either expressly or by implication to the settlor, or whereby the settlor may have reserved to himself the right by the exercise of any power to restore to himself or to reclaim the absolute interest in such property.

If the voluntary instrument made liable to probate duty by the above enactment has paid the five shillings ad valorem settlement duty, such duty will be returned (g).

The probate or administration duty is payable in respect only of such personal estate as at the time of the death of the deceased is within the jurisdiction of the court. Consequently property which at the death is in a foreign country is exempt from duty, although it may be subsequently brought into this country by the executor. Thus it has been held that French Government rentes and United States stock are exempt from duty (r), while on the other hand the duty has been held to attach to the securities of a foreign government which were in this country at the death of the deceased, and were marketable securities here transferable by delivery only (s). Indian Government notes on which interest is payable in London are bona notabilia in England (t).

Probate or administration duty payable only on personal estate within jurisdiction of court.

Whatever the executor receives virtute officii is liable to probate duty. Thus if a person enters into a binding contract to sell land, and such contract is completed after his death, duty is payable on the purchase-money (u). But duty is not payable in respect of the proceeds of land directed to be sold either by the will of the deceased or by a deed made in his lifetime, and which remains capable of being revoked by him up to the time of his death. Thus, where a freehold estate was conveyed by H. to trustees upon trust by sale or mortgage to pay certain debts, and to pay the residue of the proceeds to H., his executors, administrators, and assigns, the land was sold after H.'s death, and it was held that no probate duty was payable in respect of the proceeds (x). But if A. conveys land to trustees in trust to sell and pay the proceeds to B., and B. dies before the sale, probate duty would clearly be payable by B.'s executor in respect of such proceeds. And where land is devised in trust for sale, and there is a failure of the trusts so that the testator's heir takes the proceeds, such heir takes it as money, and on his death probate duty is payable on it, although the land still remains unsold (y).

Duty when payable on proceeds of sale of land.

Share of a partner in real estate subject to probate duty. Desperate debts.

The share of a partner in real estate forming part of the partnership property is in equity personal estate, and liable as such to probate duty (z).

Desperate and doubtful debts owing to the deceased are not liable to probate duty (a).

Personalty disposed of under power.

Probate duty is payable in respect of personalty disposed of by a testator under a general power (b).

Where testator is domiciled abroad.

Probate duty is payable in respect of the personalty in this country of a testator domiciled abroad (c).

No deduction heretofore made for debts in first instance, but return of duty to be got afterwards.

In making the necessary affidavit as to the value of the estate of the deceased, the executor or administrator has been heretofore not allowed to make any deduction for debts (d), except that since the 1st September, 1868, where leasehold estates were the sole security by way of mortgage for any debt owing from the deceased, the amount of such mortgage debt might be deducted (e). In all other cases an executor or administrator might obtain a return of probate or administration duty on showing that he had paid debts to such an amount as to reduce the value of the estate below the sum on which duty had been paid, but an application for this purpose must have been made within three years after probate, &c., except in special cases, when the time would be extended (f).

But under Act of 1881, deduction may be made for debts and funeral expenses.

It is now provided by the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1881, section 28, that the executor or administrator may deliver with the affidavit a schedule of the debts due from the deceased to persons resident in the United Kingdom and the funeral expenses, and that for the purpose of the duty the aggregate Legacy duty.

By the stat. 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, as modified and altered by the Customs and Inland Revenue Acts of 1881 and 1888, the following duties are payable on legacies and successions to personal estates upon intestacies, viz. : Duties on legacies.

For every legacy, specific, or pecuniary, or of any other description, given by any will or testamentary instrument of any person out of his or her personal or moveable estate. £ s. d.

Also, for the clear residue (when devolving to one person), and for every share of the clear residue (when devolving to two or more persons) of the personal or moveable estate of any person (after deducting debts, funeral expenses, legacies, and other charges first payable thereout), whether the title to such residue, or any share thereof, shall accrue by virtue of any testamentary disposition, or upon a partial or total intestacy :

Where any such legacy or residue, or any share of such residue, shall have been given or have devolved to or for the benefit of a child of the deceased, or any descendant of a child of the deceased, or to or for the benefit of the father or mother or any lineal ancestor of the deceased :

If the legacy or residue or share of residue is payable out of or consists of any estate or effects which shall have paid probate or administration duty according to the Act of 1881 (g) No duty.

But if the legacy or residue or share of residue is payable out of, or consists of, any estate or effects in respect whereof probate or administration duty is not payable under the Act of 1881 per cent.

Where any such legacy or residue, or any share of such residue, shall have been given or have devolved to or for the benefit of a brother or sister of the father or mother of the deceased, or any descendant of a brother or sister of the father or mother of the deceased	per cent. 5 0 0

Where any such legacy or residue, or any share of such residue, shall have been given or have devolved to or for the benefit of a brother or sister of a grandfather or grandmother of the deceased or any descendant of a brother or sister of a grandfather or grandmother of the deceased	per cent. 6 0 0
---	--------------------

And where any such legacy or residue, or any share of such residue, shall have been given or have devolved to or for the benefit of any person in any other degree of collateral consanguinity to the deceased than is above described, or to or for the benefit of any stranger in blood to the deceased	per cent. 10 0 0
---	---------------------

And all gifts of annuities or by way of annuity, or of any other partial benefit or interest out of any such estate or effects as aforesaid, shall be deemed legacies within the intent and meaning of this schedule.

Exemptions.

Legacies and residues, or shares of residue of any such estate or effects as aforesaid, given or devolving to or for the benefit of the husband or wife of the deceased, or to or for the benefit of any of the Royal Family (g).

And all legacies which were exempted from duty by the Act passed in the 39th year of George the 3rd, c. 73, for exempting certain specific legacies given to bodies corporate or other public bodies, from the payment of duty (h).

Legacies and residue, or shares of residue of or out of the estate and effects of any person where the whole of such estate and effects does not amount to £100 (i).

Legacies or residue or shares of residue of less amount or value than £20, where the testator or intestate died before 1st June, 1881 (k).

Legacies given for the education or maintenance of poor children in Ireland, or to be applied in support of any public charitable institution in Ireland, or for any purpose (in Ireland) merely charitable (l).

The following is an abstract of the principal provisions of the Legacy Duty Acts now in force:—

The duty is to be paid by the executor (m) upon the payment of the legacy, and in default of payment, the duty is a debt from the executor and also from the legatee (n).

Duty to be paid by executor before paying legacy.

Every gift by will or testamentary instrument, which by virtue thereof is to have effect out of the personal estate of the deceased or out of any personal estate which he had power to dispose of, and whether such gift be by way of annuity, or in any other form, is to be deemed a legacy for the purpose of the Acts; and every donation mortis causa is also to be deemed a legacy. But no money which by any marriage settlement is subject to any limited power of appointment for the benefit of persons therein specially named and described as the objects of such power, or any issue of such persons, shall be liable to duty under the will by which the power is exercised (o).

The value of annuities to be calculated according to tables, and to be payable by four instalments.

The value of an annuity is to be calculated according to the tables in the schedule to the Succession Duty Act, 1853 (p), and the duty thereon is made payable in four equal annual instalments, and the value is to be calculated without regard to any contingency on which it may be determinable. But if the annuity determines by death before the end of the four years, the duty is payable in proportion only to so many of the payments of the annuity as actually became due and payable, and in case the annuity determines by any other contingency than death, not only all future instalments of duty cease to be payable, but a return is to be made of so much of the duty actually paid as will reduce the same to the amount which would have been payable for such annuity calculated according to the term for which it shall have endured (q).

The value of annuities payable out of legacies, how to be calculated and paid.

The value of an annuity charged on a legacy is to be ascertained in the same manner, and the duty on the legacy is to be paid on its value, after deducting the value of the annuity. The duty on the annuity is to be paid by the legatee, and he is to retain the same out of the annuity (r).

Duty on legacies given to purchase annuities.

The duty upon any legacy given by direction to purchase an annuity of a certain amount is to be calculated upon the sum necessary to purchase the annuity according to the before mentioned tables, and the annuity to be purchased is to be reduced proportionably (s).

Duty on legacies whose value can only be ascertained by application of the allotted fund.

The duty on legacies whose value can only be ascertained by actual application of the allotted fund is to be charged on the money or effects as applied (t).

How duties on legacies enjoyed by persons in succession shall be charged,

The duty on legacies enjoyed by persons in succession is to be charged as follows: If all the persons interested are chargeable at the same rate, the duty is to be charged on the legacy and paid as if it were a legacy to one and the same person; but if the persons interested are chargeable at different rates, then the persons having life or other temporary interests are to be charged on such interests as if the annual produce had been given to them by way of annuity, and the person who becomes absolutely entitled is to be charged with duty on the corpus when it falls into possession (u).

Where the duty payable on a legacy given to different persons in succession is chargeable at one and the same rate, the executor is to pay it before he transfers or pays the legacy to the trustees of it, but where such duty is chargeable at different rates, then the duty is to be paid by the executor unless the legacy has been paid to or vested in any trustee, in which case the trustee is to be liable for the duty as if he were the executor (x).

and whether payable by executor or trustees.

Plate, furniture, or other things, not yielding income, are not liable to duty while enjoyed by persons who have no right to dispose thereof (y).

Plate, &c.

The duty on legacies enjoyed in succession is to be charged as such, whether the person entitled take under the will or by intestacy (z).

Duties apply to intestacies.

The duty on legacies given on joint tenancy is to be paid by the joint tenants in proportion to their interests (a).

Legacies to joint tenants.

Where a legacy is contingent the duty is payable as if it were an absolute legacy to the first legatee, although the person entitled to the benefit of the contingency may not be liable to the same duty or to any duty: and if the contingency happens and the person thus becoming entitled is chargeable with a higher rate of duty, he must pay the difference (b).

Legacies given on contingencies.

Where a legacy is subject to a power of appointment in favour of special objects, the property is charged with duty as property given to different persons in succession, and the appointees are chargeable as if they had taken under the will creating the power. Where any property is given for a limited interest, and an absolute power of appointment is given to any person to whom the property would not go in default of appointment, the property is upon the execution of the power charged with duty as if it had been immediately given to the donee of the power after allowing any duty previously paid in respect thereof. Where any property is given with an absolute power of appointment and in default of appointment to the donee of the power, the property is chargeable as if it had been given to the donee in the first instance without the power (c).

estate is charged with duty as personal estate, unless it is given so as to be enjoyed by different persons in succession, and then each party is to pay duty as if it had not been directed to be laid out in real estate, unless it shall have been actually so laid out before the duty accrued, but no duty shall accrue in respect thereof after it has been so laid out. If before the personal estate is laid out, any person becomes entitled to an estate of inheritance in possession in the real estate to be purchased therewith, the duty is to be charged on it as personal estate and paid thereout (d), and this applies not only where the person so becoming entitled is the original donee, but also to every subsequent devolution of the equitable inheritance previously to the money being so laid out (e).

Estates pur autræ vie.

Estates pur autræ vie applicable by law as personal estate are charged with duty as personal estate (f).

Money left to pay duty not chargeable.

If a legacy is given with a direction to pay the duty out of some other fund, the money applied in payment of the duty is not chargeable with the duty (g).

Specific legacies.

Specific legacies and bequests of property not reduced into money are to be valued in the manner pointed out in the Act (h).

Duty on legacies not satisfied in money, &c.

Where a legacy is satisfied otherwise than by actual payment, or is released for consideration, or is compounded for, the duty is chargeable on the amount or value of the property taken in satisfaction thereof, or as the consideration for the release thereof, or composition for the same, and where a legacy is given in satisfaction of any other legacy, the duty is not to be paid on both subjects, but on that yielding the largest duty (i).

Legatees refusing to accept legacies, duly deducted, to pay costs.

If a legatee refuse to accept his legacy after deducting the duty and to give a proper discharge for it, and if a suit is afterwards instituted for such legacy, the Court may order the legatee so refusing to pay costs (k).

Court to provide for duty in administration suits.

In administration suits the Court is to provide for the payment of the duty (l).

As to stamping the receipt.

Where too little duty is paid by mistake, the commissioners may, within three months, if no suit is instituted, accept the difference with 10 per cent. on the difference (p). Mistakes as to duty may be rectified.

Where by reason of infancy or absence beyond the seas of the legatee the executor cannot pay a legacy or residue, he may pay it into Court after deducting the duty (q). Power to executors to pay legacies of infants, &c., into court.

If any legacy or part of residue has to be refunded by reason of debts of the testator or otherwise, the duty is to be repaid. Refunding duty.

An executor, to whom a legacy or residue is given, must, before retaining it, transmit the particulars to the commissioners who are to assess the duty thereon (r). Executor retaining legacy to transmit particulars to commissioners.

The liability to legacy duty on the personal estate depends on the domicile of the deceased at the time of his death, all personal estate being supposed to be locally situate in the place where the owner died. If he was domiciled in England at the time of his death, his personal estate both in England and abroad is liable to the duty, but if he was domiciled abroad no duty is payable on his personal estate either in England or abroad (s). And where a man who is domiciled abroad at his death makes his will under a general power, the personal property thus appointed is exempt from legacy duty (t). But an estate pur autre vie in land in England, "applicable by law in the same manner as personal estate," is liable to legacy duty Liability to duty depends on domicile.

Composition
for duty.

The Commissioners of Inland Revenue are empowered to accept composition for legacy duty (x).

Interest on arrears.

Arrears of legacy and succession duty bear interest at 4 per cent. (y).

Succession Duty.

The following is an abstract of the principal provisions of the Succession Duty Act, 1853 (z), as modified and altered by the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888 (a).

What dispositions of property confer suc-
cessions.

Every disposition of property by reason whereof any person becomes beneficially entitled to any property or the income thereof, upon death, either immediately or after any interval, either certainly or contingently, and either originally or by way of substitutive limitation, and every devolution upon death of any beneficial interest in property or the income thereof to any person in possession or expectancy, confers on the person so entitled by reason of any such disposition or devolution a "succession," and the term "successor" denotes the person so entitled, and the term "predecessor" denotes the settlor, disponent, testator, obligor, ancestor, or other person from whom the interest of the successor is derived (b).

Title by survivorship confers a succession.

When persons have any property vested in them jointly by a title not conferring on them a succession, a beneficial interest in such property accruing to any of them by survivorship is to be deemed a succession (c).

Power of
appointment.

If the donee of a general power of appointment taking effect on a death exercise it, he will for the purpose of duty be deemed to be entitled at the time of exercising the power to the interest appointed as a succession derived from the donor of the power; and if the donee of a limited power of appointment taking effect on a death exercise it, the person taking the appointed property will be deemed to take the same as a succession derived from the donor of the power as predecessor (d).

(a) 51 Vict. c. 8.

(b) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 51, s. 2.

(d) Sect. 4.

Where property is subject to a charge, estate, or interest determinable by the death of any person, or at any period ascertainable only by reference to death, the increase of benefit accruing to any person on the extinction or determination of the charge, &c., is to be deemed a succession accruing to the person then entitled beneficially to the property or the income thereof (e).

Extinction of determinable interests confers a succession.

Where any disposition of property not being a sale, and not conferring an interest expectant on death on the person in whose favour the same is made, is accompanied by a reservation or assurance of, or contract for any benefit to the grantor or any other person for life, or for any period ascertainable only by reference to death, such disposition confers, at the time appointed for the determination of such benefit, an increase of beneficial interest in the property as a succession equal in annual value to the yearly value of the benefit so reserved, &c. (f).

Disposition accompanied by reservation of benefit to grantor, &c. confers a succession.

Under the Act of 1853 (g), the rate of duty is as follows:—

Rate of duty under Act of 1853.

Where the successor is the lineal issue or lineal ancestor of the predecessor, one pound per centum upon the value of the succession, but this is not payable on any property which has paid probate or administration duty under the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1881 (h):

Where the successor is a brother or sister, or a descendant of a brother or sister of the predecessor, three pounds per centum upon such value:

Where the successor is a brother or sister of the father or mother, or a descendant of a brother or sister of the father or mother of the predecessor, five pounds per centum upon such value:

Where the successor is a brother or sister of the grandfather or grandmother, or a descendant of the brother or sister of the grandfather or grandmother of the predecessor, six pounds per centum upon such value:

Where the successor is in any other degree of collateral consanguinity to the predecessor than is hereinbefore described, or is a stranger in blood to him, ten pounds per centum upon such value.

Additional duty under
Act of 1888.

The Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888 (h), imposes an additional duty in respect of every succession on the death of a person dying on or after the 1st July, 1888, at the following rate, viz., where the successor is the lineal issue or lineal ancestor of the predecessor, at the rate of ten shillings per centum, and in other cases at the rate of thirty shillings per centum. But the additional duty is not payable upon the interest of a successor in leaseholds passing to him by will or devolution by law, or in property liable to probate or administration duty under the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1881.

Provisions as to married persons.

Where any person chargeable with succession duty, or with legacy duty, is married to a wife or husband of nearer consanguinity to the predecessor, the duty is payable as if the wife or husband were the successor (i).

What duties payable when successor is also predecessor.

Where a person takes a succession under a disposition made by himself, then, if at the date of such disposition he shall have been entitled to the property expectantly on the death of any person dying after the 19th May, 1853, and such person shall have died during the continuance of such disposition, he shall be chargeable with duty on his succession at the same rate as he would have been chargeable if no such disposition had been made; but a successor is not liable to duty in any other case under a disposition made by himself, and no person is chargeable with duty upon the extinction or determination of a charge or interest created by himself, unless at the date of the creation thereof he shall have been entitled to the property subjected thereto on the death of some person dying after the 19th May, 1853 (k).

Provision as to joint predecessors.

Where the successor derives his succession from more predecessors than one, and the proportional interest derived from each of them is not distinguishable, the commissioners may agree with the successor as to the duty payable; but if no such agreement is made, the successor will be deemed to have derived his succession in equal proportions from each predecessor, and will be chargeable with duty accordingly (l).

Where there has been a devolution by death of a successor, only one duty to be paid at the higher rate.

Where, on the 19th May, 1853, any reversionary property expectant on death was vested by alienation or other derivative title in any person, such person will be charged with duty at the same time and rate as the original successor would have been chargeable if there had been no alienation, &c., and where, after the 19th May, 1853, any succession, before falling into possession, has become vested by alienation or any title not conferring a new succession in any other person, the duty is payable at the same rate and time as if there had been no such alienation, &c., and where the title to any succession is accelerated by the surrender or extinction of any prior interest, the duty is payable as if there had been no such acceleration (n).

Duty to be paid by alienee of succession.

Acceleration.

Property given to any charitable or public purpose is liable to duty at 10 per cent. (o).

Gifts to charities, &c.

No policy of assurance on life creates the relation of predecessor and successor between the insurers and the assured, and no bond or contract made by any person bond fide for valuable consideration in money or money's worth for the payment of money or money's worth after the death of any other person, creates the relation of predecessor and successor between the parties, but a disposition or devolution of the moneys payable under such policy, bond, or contract, may create a succession (p).

Provision for policies on life and contracts for valuable consideration.

Where the whole succession or successions derived from the same predecessor, and passing upon any death to any person or persons, does not amount in money or principal value to £100, no duty is payable, and no duty is payable upon any succession of less value than £20 in the whole, or upon any moneys applied to the payment of the duty on any succession according to any trust for that purpose, or by any person in respect of a succession, who, if the same were a legacy bequeathed to him by the predecessor, would be exempted from the payment of duty in respect thereof under the Legacy Duty Acts (g). And no person charged with the duties on legacies and shares of personal estate under the Legacy Duty Acts, in respect of any property subject to such duties, will be charged also with succession duty in respect of the same acquisition of the same property (r).

Leaseholds to be charged with succession duty instead of legacy duty.

Duties to be paid on successor becoming entitled in possession.

Leasehold hereditaments and legacies payable out of real estate are no longer chargeable under the Legacy Duty Acts as belonging to the personal estate of the testator or deceased (s).

The duty must be paid at the time when the successor becomes entitled in possession to his succession, except that if there is a prior charge or interest not created by the successor, the duty in respect of the increased value accruing on the determination of the charge or interest is payable at the time of such determination, and except that in the case of an annuity or property chargeable as such the duties are payable by instalments, and no duty is payable on the determination of a lease at rack rent in respect of the increase accruing to the successor on such determination (t).

Interest of successor in real property to be considered as an annuity.

The interest of a successor in real property will be taken to be of the value of an annuity equal to the annual value of the property according to the tables in the schedule annexed to the Act of 1853, and the duty chargeable thereon is payable (subject to the option hereinafter mentioned) by eight equal instalments, the first instalment to be paid at the expiration of twelve calendar months after the succession falls into possession, and the remaining seven instalments to be paid half-yearly; provided that if the successor die before all the instalments have become due, those that are not due at his decease will cease to be payable except in the case of a successor who shall have been competent to dispose by will of a continuing interest in such property, in which case the instalments unpaid at his death are a continuing charge on such interest in exoneration of his other property, and are payable by the owner for the time being of such interest (u).

Option given by Act of 1888 as to payment of instalments.

In the case of a successor who becomes entitled to his succession upon the death of a person dying on or after the 1st July, 1888, an option is given to him either to pay the duty by eight half-yearly instalments as provided by the Act of 1853, or by two equal moieties, whereof the first moiety is payable by four equal yearly instalments, and the second moiety is payable on the day for payment of the last instalment of the first moiety, or if not so paid, then by four equal yearly instalments with interest at 4 per cent. per annum from such last-mentioned day, and a successor availing himself of the option may tender the duty in advance, and receive interest thereon. In the event of a successor availing himself of this option, and dying before all the duty is paid, the unpaid duty will continue to be payable subject to a reduction of so much as would have ceased to be payable if the duty had been payable by eight half-yearly instalments under the Act of 1853 (v). The above option is also given to a successor becoming entitled to his succession upon the death of a person dying before the 1st July, 1888, if no instalment of duty has become due from him, or if only one instalment has become due and has been paid before that day (v).

The interest of a successor in moneys to arise from the sale of real property under any trust for the sale thereof, is chargeable with duty as personal property, unless such moneys are subject to any trusts for the re-investment thereof in the purchase of other real property, to which the successor would not be absolutely entitled.

Real property directed to be sold to be charged as personalty.

The interest of any successor in money subject to any trust for the investment thereof in the purchase of real property to which the successor would be absolutely entitled, is chargeable with duty as personal property; and money subject to any trust for the investment thereof in the purchase of real property to which the successor would not be absolutely entitled, is chargeable with duty as real property (x).

Personal property to be invested in land, how to be charged.

Where the donee of a general power of appointment becomes chargeable with duty in respect of the property appointed by him, he will be allowed to deduct from the duty so payable any duty he may have already paid in respect of any limited interest taken by him in the property.

Allowance to donee of general power of appointment.

made in respect of any incumbrance created or incurred by the successor, not made in execution of a prior special power of appointment; but an allowance will be made in respect of all other incumbrances, and for moneys laid out by the successor previously to his possession, in substantial repairs or permanent improvements; and the Act of 1853 contains further provisions as to allowances.

Allowance to be made in respect of relinquished
property.

Where any successor, upon taking a succession, is bound to relinquish or be deprived of any other property, the commissioners' allowance will be made to him as may be just in respect of the value of such property (y).

As to compounding and payment in advance of duty.
Duty to be a first charge on property.

The commissioners are empowered to compound duties, and to receive any duty in advance, and to allow discount thereon.

The duty is a first charge on the interest of the successor, and of all persons claiming in his right, in all the real property in respect whereof such duty is assessed: and the duty is also a first charge on the interest of the successor in the personal property in respect whereof the same is assessed while the same remains in the ownership or control of the successor, or of any trustee for him, or of his guardian or committee, or tutor or curator, or of the husband of any wife who shall be the successor; and the duty is a debt due to the Crown from the successor having, in the case of real property comprised in any succession, priority over all charges and interests created by him, but it does not affect any other real property of the successor than the property comprised in such succession. And where any settled real property comprised in a succession is subject to any power of sale, exchange, or partition, exerciseable with the consent of the successor, or by the successor with the consent of another person, he is not disqualified by the charge of duty on his succession from effectually authorizing by his consent the exercise of the power or exercising the power with proper consent, as the case may be, and in such case the duty is charged substitutively upon the successor's interest in all real property acquired in substitution for the real property before comprised in the succession, and in the meantime upon his interest also in all moneys arising from the exercise of any such power, and in all investments of such moneys.

Trustees and other persons in whom any property, or the management of any property, subject to the duty, is vested, and every person in whom the same is vested by alienation or other derivative title at the time of the succession falling into possession, are personally accountable for the duty, but to the extent only of the property or funds actually received or disposed of by them (z).

What persons accountable for duty.

The commissioners are bound to deliver stamped receipts for the duty, and also a certificate of payment to any person interested in the property affected by the duty, on applying for the same (a).

Receipts and certificates of payment to be given.

The following points have been decided on the construction of the Succession Duty Act:—

1. That where a testator dies domiciled abroad, succession duty attaches to his real estate situate in this country, but not to his personal estate on the original bequest thereof; but if personal estate is given by the will of a person domiciled abroad to trustees for the benefit of persons in succession, and the fund is invested by the trustees in this country, succession duty will be payable on all future devolutions under the trusts, though the party on whom it devolves may (like the testator) be domiciled abroad (b). And foreign moveable property, e. g., foreign government funds, comprised in a British settlement and vested in trustees subject to British jurisdiction, and recoverable by the beneficiaries in a British court, is subject to succession duty although the beneficiaries may be domiciled abroad (c).

Succession duty attaches irrespective of domicile of settlor.

2. That a person is liable to succession duty in respect of property to which he succeeds after the commencement of the Act of 1853, although he may have become entitled thereto in expectancy before the Act (d).

Duty attaches wherever succession falls into possession after Act.

3. That section 2 applies to every case where a person becomes entitled to property by any means upon the death of a within other sections.

Instances of the rule.

person dying after the commencement of the Act, unless such case comes within the operation of some other section. Thus where under a marriage settlement property was settled in trust for the husband and wife successively for life with remainder (in an event which happened) as the wife should by deed or will appoint, the husband died before the Act, and the wife died in 1856, having by her will appointed the property. It was held that as the power came into operation before the commencement of the Act, the case was not within the 4th section; that it was consequently within the general provision of the 2nd section, and that for the purpose of the duty the appointee was the successor and the original settlor the predecessor (e).

So also, where by a marriage settlement property belonging to the wife's father was limited to the husband and wife successively for life with remainder (in the event which happened) as the wife should by deed or will appoint. The wife by deed appointed the property to her father, the original settlor, who died in 1831, having devised it to a stranger in blood. The wife survived her husband, and died after the commencement of the Act. It was held that as no duty would have been payable by the father if he had survived his daughter, he being himself the predecessor as well as successor, the case was not within the 15th section; that it therefore came within the general provision of the 2nd section, and that a duty of 10 per cent. was payable by the devisee of the father (f).

Rule that descent is to be traced from last purchaser does not apply to succession duty.

Under 4th section, "death after commencement of Act" refers to power.

4th section

4. That if A. dies intestate, leaving two sons, B. and C., and afterwards B. dies intestate, leaving his brother C. his heir, he, B., and not A., is the predecessor, and 3 per cent. is payable notwithstanding the Act 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 106, sect. 2 (g).

5. That the words in the 4th section, "taking effect on the death of a person dying after the commencement of the Act," refer to the power of appointment, and not to the disposition by which the power is created, or to the disposition made under the power (h).

6. That the 4th section applies to the case of one person having a general power, but not to a power given in a family settlement to a father and son jointly, where one is intended to be a check upon the other. Under an appointment made in exercise of a joint power, the donor, not the donee, is the predecessor (i).

does not apply to joint powers.

7. That under the 4th section the donee of a general power taking effect on a death happening since the commencement of the Act, becomes, by exercising the power, the successor as to the estate appointed, as if such estate had been limited to him by the original instrument, and if such donee so exercises the power as to create a succession, the appointee pays duty upon a succession derived from the donee, and not from the original settlor (k).

After appointment by one under general power, donee is predecessor.

8. That if A., entitled to property in remainder expectant on a life estate, for a valuable consideration in money or money's worth, charges his remainder with a sum of money in favour of B., and B. settles the sum so charged, duty will be payable on that sum on the death of the tenant for life, and for this purpose B. (and not A.) will be considered the predecessor (l).

Where a charge in reversion is created for a valuable consideration in money or money's worth, and settled, purchaser is predecessor. Marriage is not a valuable consideration.

9. That marriage is not a valuable consideration in money or money's worth within the meaning of the 17th section (m).

10. That if A. is tenant for life with remainder to his eldest son B. in tail, and on B. coming of age, A. and B. disentail the property and make a re-settlement under which B. takes a rent-charge during the joint lives of A. and B., and subject to such rent-charge the property is limited to A. for life with remainder to B. for life, with remainder to B.'s first and other sons in tail, &c., B.'s life estate is a succession under a disposition made by himself alone within the meaning of the 12th section, and not a succession derived from joint predecessors under the 13th section, and consequently B. on the death of A. will be liable to duty, and for this purpose the original settlor remains the predecessor (n).

Construction of 38th section as to deduction for loss of property.

11. That in the case mentioned in the last paragraph, B. is entitled, under section 38, to a deduction for the annuity which he loses on A.'s death, and for this purpose it makes no difference whether the re-settlement was before or after the Act (o).

Construction of 15th section with reference to re-settlement by father and son.

12. That if a father and son, tenants for life and in tail, resettle the property, and by such re-settlement charge it with a portion for a younger son of the father, duty is payable by such younger son at 3 per cent. as on a succession derived from his brother. The charge is not an alienation under the 15th section (p).

Under first branch of 15th section descent is a derivative title.

13. That a title by descent is a derivative title within the meaning of the first branch of the 15th section. Thus, where a testator devised property to his wife for life with remainder to R. : R. died in 1844 intestate, and the wife died in 1859 ; it was held that the heir of R. must pay the same duty as R. would have been liable to, if living (q). It will be observed that the words "not conferring a new succession" are not inserted in the first branch, and it is apprehended that if R. in the above case had died after the Act came into operation, the devolution to his heir would have been a new succession, and duty at 1 per cent. only payable.

Duty where alienor dies before falling in of succession.

14. That where a succession is aliened and falls into possession after the death of the alienor, duty under section 15 is at same rate as if alienor had survived the falling into possession (r).

15. That where part of a child's share is advanced to him in the lifetime of his parents under the ordinary power of advancement in a marriage settlement, duty will be payable on the death of the parents under the last branch of section 15 (s).

On death of reversioner before Act, legacy duty payable.

Act, legacy duty under the will of the reversioner is payable, but no succession duty (t).

17. That if A., tenant for life, and B., tenant in remainder, join in conveying the fee simple to C. as purchaser, and C. dies before A., having devised to D. in fee, D. pays duty on his succession from C., but is not liable to further duty on the death of A. (u).

After alienation by tenant for life and in remainder, if purchaser dies and trustee or devisee pays duty, no further duty payable on falling in of succession.

18. That sect. 18 exempting persons who have paid legacy duty from the payment of succession duty in respect of the same acquisition of the same property applies only where the same person is called on to pay twice over; consequently, in a case where personal property was given by a testator who died in 1816 to A. for life with remainder as she should appoint, and A. paid legacy duty on the absolute interest, and afterwards appointed to her nieces, it was held on the death of A. that the nieces must pay succession duty as on a succession derived from the testator, notwithstanding the payment of the legacy duty by A. (x).

Construction of sect. 18 exempting persons who have paid legacy duty from paying succession duty "on the same acquisition of the same property."

19. That the competency to dispose by will referred to in the 21st section relates to the quantity of interest, and not to the personal capacity of the individual, and consequently the circumstance that the person becoming entitled to the succession and dying before all the instalments of duty are payable, was insane or a feme covert, does not exempt the estate of such person from the remaining instalments (y). And a tenant in tail who disentails, and thus acquires the fee, and afterwards dies before all the instalments have become payable, is not within the exemption (z).

Construction of 21st section as to competency to dispose.

20. That the term "necessary outgoings" in section 22 does not include the property-tax, nor the cost of collecting rent during the absence of the owner abroad, nor the expenses of management incurred by trustees under a power of management conferred on them by the will (a).

Construction of 22nd section as to "necessary outgoings."

Construction of 34th section as to allowance for incumbrances.

21. That mortgages made by a tenant for life and remainderman under a joint power of appointment reserved to them are incumbrances created by the remainderman within the meaning of the 34th section, and consequently that the latter is not entitled to any deduction in respect of them (b).

Construction of term "annual value" in 26th section.

22. That the term "annual value" in the 26th section means present actual annual value, and that such value, and not possible or prospective annual value, is the basis on which succession duty is to be calculated. Consequently, where at the time when the succession accrued land was stated to be incapable of being sold or let profitably as building land, or of being used productively for agricultural or other purposes, and the Crown admitted such statement to be true, it was held by the House of Lords that no duty was payable, although the land was a few years afterwards sold at a high price as building land. It was intimated, however, by some of the law lords in giving judgment, that, but for the admission by the Crown the property would probably have been held to have a present annual value at the time when the succession accrued; for that, if it was saleable at all, the annual value might have been treated at 3 per cent. on the purchase-money, or such an annuity as might have been purchased with the amount for which the land would sell (c).

On sale of settled land, duty is shifted to purchase-money.

23. That if land is sold under a power of sale in a settlement (d), or under the provisions of the Settled Estates Act, 1877 (e), the purchaser takes it free from succession duty, which is shifted by the operation of sect. 42 to the purchase-money or its investments.

Certificate of Inland Revenue Office conclusive.

24. That a certificate from the Inland Revenue Office that the duty has been paid, discharges the land, and the purchaser can require no further evidence on the subject (f).

No. I.

WILL giving everything to WIFE or HUSBAND (a).

OF ALL TO WIFE OR HUSBAND.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me, A. B., of, &c. I give all my property to my dear wife [or to my dear husband] C. B., and appoint her [or him] the sole executrix [or executor] of this my will. IN WITNESS whereof I have set my hand to this my will the — day of —, 18—.

(Signature of testator.)

Signed by the above named A. B., as his [or her] last will in the presence of us, both being present at the same time, who in his [or her] presence and in the presence of each other have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses.

(Names and addresses of witnesses.)

(a) A married woman can by will dispose of all property, whether real or personal, belonging to her for her separate use at the time of her death, whether her separate ownership arises under the Married Women's Property Act or otherwise; and a will made by her in general terms will operate as an exercise of all general powers of appointment by will, whether created at the date of the will or afterwards. The will of a married woman will in future be in the same form as the will of a man, and any of the following precedents may be used for a married woman mutatis mutandis. Form of will of a married woman.

It will be borne in mind, however, that according to a recent decision, a will made by a married woman since 1882 will not pass property acquired by her after the determination of the coverture. Re Price, 28 C. D. 709.

No. II.

OF REAL AND PERSONAL ESTATE UPON TRUST FOR WIFE AND CHILDREN.

WILL of REAL (a) and PERSONAL ESTATE; BEQUEST of PLATE, FURNITURE, &c., and a LEGACY to WIFE. BEQUESTS of other LEGACIES; DEVISE and BEQUEST of residue to TRUSTEES upon trust for SALE and CONVERSION; TRUSTS of moneys to pay FUNERAL and TESTAMENTARY expenses and DEBTS, and to INVEST residue and to vary securities. TRUSTS of RESIDUE to pay the income to WIFE for life, and after her death for TESTATOR'S CHILDREN; PROVISIO that ISSUE of deceased children shall take their PARENT'S SHARE; POWER to postpone sale and conversion.

I, A. B., of, &c., HEREBY REVOKE all former wills and testamentary dispositions made by me, and declare this to be my last will and testament. I appoint C. D., of, &c., E. F., of, &c., and G. H., of, &c. (hereinafter called "my trustees"), to be the executors and trustees of this my will (b): AND I APPOINT my dear wife — during her life, and after her death my trustees, to be the guardian and guardians of my infant children (c). I GIVE all my powers to mother to appoint guardians.

(a) Even if the testator has no real estate at the time of making his will, it is desirable to extend the devise to real estate, because it is possible that he may acquire some before his death.

(b) It is generally desirable to appoint the same persons to be executors and trustees. If different persons are appointed, it is the duty of the executors to get in the personal estate and apply it in due course of administration, and when all the debts and legacies are paid to hand over the residue to the trustees, whose functions then commence. If the personalty is insufficient for payment of debts and legacies, the trustees, and not the executors, would have to raise the deficiency out of the real estate. This separation of functions is manifestly inconvenient.

(c) A father is empowered to appoint a guardian for his infant children by deed or will by the stat. 12 Car. 2, c. 24, s. 8.

By the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886 (49 & 50 Vict. c. 27), it is provided that on the death of the father of an infant, the mother, if surviving, shall be the guardian, either alone or jointly with any guardian appointed by the father, and the mother may by deed or will appoint a guardian or guardians after the death of herself and the father; and where guardians are appointed by both parents, they are to act jointly. A mother may also provisionally appoint a person to act as guardian jointly with the father, and in that case the Court, if it considers the father unfit to act alone, may confirm the appointment.

I GIVE, &c. (other legacies) (e): I DEVISE AND BEQUEATH all my real and personal estate not hereby otherwise disposed of, unto my trustees: UPON TRUST that my trustees shall sell, call in, and convert into money the same or such part thereof as shall not consist of money, and shall with and out of the moneys produced by such sale, calling in, and conversion, and with and out of my ready money, pay my funeral and testamentary expenses and debts, and the legacies bequeathed by this my will or any codicil hereto, but so that the proceeds of real estate shall not be applied in payment of legacies, unless the other moneys applicable thereto under this trust shall be insufficient for payment thereof (f), and shall with the consent in writing of my said wife during her life, and after her decease at the discretion of my trustees, invest the residue of the said moneys, with power for my trustees from time to time with such consent or at such discretion as aforesaid to vary such investments, AND SHALL stand possessed of the said residuary trust moneys, and the investments for the time being representing the same (hereinafter called the residuary trust funds), IN TRUST (g) to pay the income thereof to my said wife during her life, and after her decease, IN TRUST (g) for all my children who being sons [have attained or (h)] shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being daughters [have attained or (h)] shall attain that age, or [shall] marry under that age, in equal shares, and if there shall be only one such child, the whole to be in trust for that one child: [PROVIDED ALWAYS that if any child of mine shall die in my lifetime leaving a child or children who shall survive me, and being a son or sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter or daughters shall attain that age or marry under that age, then and in every such

AND I ALSO DECLARE that as regards any real or leasehold

(i) It seems desirable, as a general rule, to provide for the case of a child of the testator dying in his lifetime leaving issue, as otherwise if such event should happen, it would be necessary for the testator to make a codicil, the case not being within sect. 33 of the Wills Act. See Brown v. Hammond, John. 210. But if the relative ages of the testator and his children are such that it is improbable that any child dying before the testator will leave issue, or the provision is otherwise not desired, the words in brackets may be omitted.

(k) A maintenance clause is unnecessary. See Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 43.

(l) In cases where the nature of the testator's property renders it advisable, the following words may be added:—

“Notwithstanding that the property the sale or conversion whereof shall be so postponed, may be of leasehold tenure, or may be otherwise of a perishable or wearing-out nature, and if any part of my estate shall be of a reversionary nature, the same shall not be sold or converted into money until it falls into possession, unless my trustees shall think it probable that a loss will arise to my estate by postponing the sale and conversion thereof, and I declare that the rents, &c.” (as above).

(m) A tenant for life cannot be compelled to keep the property in repair (Powys v. Blagrove, Kay, 495), and it is, therefore, desirable to confer a power of expending money in repairs and improvements on the trustees. In the absence of such a power, it would be the duty of the trustees, if the property is out of repair, to apply to the Court for directions; and in that case the Court would apportion the costs between capital and income in a mode equitable to tenant for life and remainderman, and would not throw the whole burden on the former. In re Hotchkys, 32 C. D. 408.

If the testator holds railway or other shares not fully paid up, the following power will be found useful:—

AND I DECLARE that it shall be lawful for my trustees to pay out of my estate any call or calls upon any shares which I may at the time of my decease hold in any railway or other company, and also to accept or refuse any new shares or stock in any such railway or other company which may be allotted to them in respect of any shares or stock therein for the time being, and to pay out of my estate any call or calls to become due in respect of any new shares or stock which may be accepted by them.

her.

3. I AUTHORIZE my wife to select out of my plate, linen, china, glass, books, pictures, prints, furniture, and other household effects, such articles as she may desire to have, and I give the articles to be so selected by her unto my said wife absolutely.

(a) This will be inserted if the testator is tenant on the court rolls of any copyhold property as a trustee or mortgagee. See 50 & 51 Vict. c. 73, s. 46.

4. I GIVE my plate and plated articles, books, pictures and prints, unto my trustees, IN TRUST to permit my wife, —, to use and enjoy the same during her life, and after her death, IN TRUST for my son, —, absolutely: AND I DIRECT my trustees to make an inventory of the articles included in the foregoing bequest, one copy whereof shall be signed by my trustees, and delivered to my said wife, and another copy shall be signed by my said wife, and retained by my trustees: AND I DECLARE that my trustees shall not be bound to see to the preservation of the said articles, nor be answerable for any loss or injury which may happen thereto during the life of my said wife.

Pecuniary legacies.

7. I GIVE the following legacies (namely) To — the sum of £—, To — the sum of £—, &c., &c. AND I DECLARE that all the said legacies shall be free from legacy duty. [AND I ALSO DECLARE (b) that all legacies given to married women shall be for their respective separate use.]

Legacy with substitution of issue if legatee dies before testator.

8. I GIVE the sum of £— to C. D., and if he shall die in my lifetime leaving issue, I give the said sum of £— to my trustees IN TRUST for such child or children of the said C. D., as being a son or sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter or daughters shall attain that age or marry, and if more than one in equal shares: AND I DECLARE that the income of the presumptive share of any infant under this trust shall be applicable for his or her maintenance under the statutory provision in that behalf, and that if no child of Reason why a legacy to a married woman should be given to her for her separate use.

(b) It seems desirable to insert this declaration, having regard to sect. 19 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882. If it is omitted, the legacy would be considered as not given to her for her separate use for the purpose of any covenant or provision relating to her after-acquired property contained in her marriage settlement (see In re Whitaker, 34 C. S., which settlement is dated the — day of —, I covenanted with — (names), the trustees named in the said settlement, for the payment to them by my executors or administrators, within twelve calendar months after my decease, of the sum of £2,000, with interest for the same after the rate of £4 per cent. per annum, computed from my decease, to be held by the said trustees upon the trusts therein declared for the benefit of my said daughter and her husband and issue: NOW I HEREBY GIVE AND DEVISE such part of my messuage, farm, and lands, situate at

—, as is of freehold tenure, and all other (if any) my real estate (except copyhold hereditaments), and all my moneys, securities for money, and other personal estate and effects whatsoever unto my trustees: AND I GIVE AND DEVISE such part of the said messuage, farm, and lands as is of copyhold tenure, and all other (if any) my copyhold lands and tenements, To THE USE of such person or persons and in such manner (a) as my trustees shall within twenty-one years after my decease, by any deed or deeds, for the purpose of carrying into effect any sale made under the trusts hereinafter in that behalf declared, appoint: AND IN DEFAULT of and until such appointment I give and devise the same unto and to the use of the said C. D. in trust for my trustees and to be surrendered and disposed of as my trustees shall direct: AND I DECLARE that my trustees shall sell, call in, and convert into money the said real and personal estate (including the said copyhold hereditaments) hereinbefore devised and bequeathed or such part thereof as shall not consist of money, and shall with and out of the moneys to arise from such sale, calling in, and conversion, and with and out of the moneys of which I shall be possessed at my death, pay my funeral and testamentary expenses and debts (other than the said sum of £2,000 covenanted to be paid in and by the said marriage settlement of my said daughter H. S.), and shall stand possessed of the residue of the said moneys (hereinafter called “the residuary trust funds”) IN TRUST for all my children as tenants in common, to be divided between them in such manner that the share of my said son G. B. shall be less in amount than the share of each of my other children by the sum of £800, and that the shares of my other children shall be equal:

copyholds) to trustees.

Devise of copyholds to such uses as trustees shall appoint, and in default of appointment to use of trustees.

Declaration that trustees shall, out of proceeds of sale and conversion, pay debts, and hold residue in trust for children, so that eldest son's shall be less by amount advanced to him than the share of the others.

(a) Where part of the testator's property is copyhold, and he intends that it shall be sold after his death, the proper course is to give to the trustees a power of appointment over it. Under such a power the trustees may on a sale appoint the property to the purchaser, who will be entitled to require admittance without the intermediate admittance of the trustees, and thus a single instead of a double fine is payable. If, however, an immediate sale is not contemplated, there is no advantage in the plan, because the lord of the manor will be entitled at any time before a sale to require some one to be admitted, and in default of such admittance to seize the land quousque for want of a tenant. As the fine payable on the admission of joint tenants exceeds that payable on the admission of a single tenant, the limitation in default of appointment is in the text to one of the trustees in trust for all of them.

PROVIDED ALWAYS, and I declare (b), that the share of my daughter H. S. shall be charged with the payment to the trustees of her marriage settlement of the said sum of £2,000 thereby covenanted to be paid by my executors or administrators as aforesaid, and with the interest of the same, in exoneration of the residue of my estate and effects: PROVIDED ALWAYS, and I declare that if any child of mine living at my decease being a son shall die under the age of twenty-one years, and without leaving issue, or being a daughter shall die under that age and without having been married, as well the original share of every or any child so dying, as also any share or shares accruing to him or her under this provision, shall go to the others of my children in equal shares: PROVIDED ALSO, and I further declare that if any child of mine shall die in my lifetime, leaving a child or children who shall survive me, and being a son or sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter or daughters shall attain that age or marry under that age, then and in every such case the last-mentioned child or children shall take (and if more than one, equally between them) the share (as well original as accruing) which his, her, or their parent would have taken under this my will if such parent had survived me and attained the age of twenty-one years: PROVIDED ALWAYS, and I declare that if any child or grandchild of mine entitled in expectancy to a share of the residuary trust funds under this my will shall at my death be under the age of twenty-one years, my trustees shall invest the expectant share of each such minor with power to vary the investments thereof from time to time, and the income thereof shall be applicable for his or her maintenance under the statutory provision in that behalf (c): AND I ALSO DECLARE that my trustees may at any time or times raise any part or parts not exceeding together one moiety of the expectant share of any minor under the trusts of this my will, and apply the same for his or her preferment, advancement, or benefit, in such manner as my trustees shall think fit (Power to postpone sale and conversion, supra, p. 536):

(b) It is assumed that the settlement contains a provision for settling H. S.'s after-acquired property, so that the share she takes under the will will become subject to such settlement.

(c) See Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 43.

PROVIDED ALWAYS, and I declare that if either of my sons having attained the age of twenty-one years shall within twelve calendar months after my death, by a notice in writing, to be given to my trustees or any one of them, offer to purchase the hereditaments hereby devised and bequeathed in trust for sale or any part thereof, then and in such case the same hereditaments shall be sold to the son making such offer at a price to be agreed on between my trustees and my said son, or if they are unable to agree, then at a price to be determined by the valuation of two indifferent persons, one to be chosen by each party or by an umpire to be chosen by the two valuers before they proceed to act in the valuation: AND I FURTHER DECLARE that if two or more of my said sons shall offer to purchase the same hereditaments under the option hereinbefore given to my said sons in that behalf the preference shall be given to the eldest of the sons making such offer: PROVIDED ALWAYS, that no purchaser of any hereditaments under the trust for sale hereinbefore declared, shall be bound or concerned to see or inquire whether any of my sons shall have made such offer to purchase as aforesaid, nor be affected by notice that such offer has been made: PROVIDED ALWAYS, and I further declare that it shall be lawful for my trustees from time to time to arrange with any one or more of my children or grandchildren entitled to a share or shares in the residuary trust funds, that as regards any specific part of my property for the time being remaining unsold or not consisting of money, the same instead of being sold and converted into money shall be taken by such child or children, or grandchild or grandchildren in satisfaction or part satisfaction of his or her or their share or respective shares in the residuary trust funds, and for this purpose the property to be so taken shall be deemed to be of such value as shall be agreed on between my trustees and the person or persons taking the same. I, A. B., of, &c. (Commencement and appointment of executors, trustees, and guardians, supra, p. 534; Bequest of furniture, &c., and a legacy to wife): I GIVE to my said wife an annuity of £—— during her life, to be paid to her by equal half-yearly payments, the first of such payments to be made at the expiration of six calendar months after my decease: I GIVE to each of my children (other than my eldest son ——) who being a son attains the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter attains that age or marries, the sum of £5000, free from legacy duty: AND IF any child (other than my eldest son) shall die in my lifetime leaving issue, then and in every such case I give the legacy of £5000, which each or any such child would have taken under this my will if he or she had survived me and attained the age of twenty-one years, to his or her children (if any) who being a son or sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter or daughters shall attain that age or marry, and if there shall be only one such child, the whole to go to that one child: AND I DECLARE that if at my decease any child or grandchild of mine presumptively entitled to a legacy or a share of a legacy under the aforesaid bequests, shall be under the age of twenty-one years, and being a female shall be also unmarried, then and in every such case my trustees shall retain the presumptive legacy or share of such minor, and invest the same, with power from time to time to vary the investments thereof, to the intent that the income of the same legacy or share shall be applicable for or towards the maintenance and education (a) of such minor,

(a) It was held that sect. 26 of 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, did not apply to a contingent legacy where the infant on attaining twenty-one would not be entitled to the intermediate interest. In re George, 5 Ch. WILL by a TENANT FOR LIFE in REMAINDER of SETTLED ESTATES, in exercise of POWERS of JOINTURING and CHARGING with PORTIONS for YOUNGER CHILDREN, subject to the PRIOR LIMITATIONS contained in the WILL creating the powers.

WILL IN EXERCISE OF POWERS TO JOINTURE AND CHARGE WITH PORTIONS.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT of me, A. B., of, &c. : WHEREAS my late father, X. B., Esq., deceased, by his will dated, &c. (Recite will of testator's father devising freehold estates to his eldest son Y. B. for life, with remainder to Y. B.'s first and other sons in tail male, with remainder to his second son (the present testator) for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail male, with divers remainders over. Power to each tenant for life to jointure and charge with portions and maintenance for younger children in the usual form) : AND WHEREAS my elder brother Y. B. is living, but he has no issue : AND WHEREAS I have several children by C. B. my wife, all of whom are infants : AND WHEREAS I am desirous of exercising the several powers of jointuring my wife and of charging with portions and maintenance for my younger children given to me by my father's said will as aforesaid in the manner hereinafter expressed, and I am also desirous of disposing of my own estate and effects in the manner hereinafter expressed : Now I HEREBY REVOKE all former wills and testamentary appointments and dispositions made by me, and declare as follows :—

Commencement.
Recite will of testator's father, and that testator has several children.

1. In exercise and execution of the power for this purpose given to me by my father's said will as aforesaid, and of all other powers (if any) me hereunto enabling, I HEREBY APPOINT unto my said wife a yearly rent-charge of £500 to be charged upon and payable out of all and singular the hereditaments devised in strict settlement by my father's said will aforesaid, and to commence from my decease or from the decease and failure of issue male of the said Y. B. (which shall last happen), the said yearly rent-charge to be paid by equal quarterly payments, the first of such payments to be made on the expiration of three calendar months after the time hereby appointed for the commencement of the said rent-charge, &c.

2. In exercise and execution of the power for this purpose given to me by my father's said will as aforesaid, and of all other powers (if any) me hereunto enabling, I HEREBY CHARGE all and singular the hereditaments devised in strict settlement by my father's said will with the sum of £15,000 for the portions of such of my younger children as being sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being daughters shall attain that age or marry, in equal shares, and for this purpose the expression "younger children" shall be construed to mean and include every daughter of mine, and also every son not being at his birth or becoming during his minority an eldest or only son entitled to the said hereditaments for an estate tail in possession or in remainder immediately expectant on some estate prior in order of limitation to my life estate: AND I DECLARE that if any son of mine being an eldest or only son, when he attains the age of twenty-one years, shall afterwards die before his estate tail under my father's said will falls into possession, and without having disentailed the said hereditaments or any part thereof, with the consent of the said Y. B. as the protector of the settlement, such son shall also be deemed a younger son for the purpose of this charge (a): PROVIDED ALWAYS that if only one younger child of mine being a son shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter shall attain that age or marry, such child shall have the sum of £5,000 only for his or her portion, and if two younger children of mine and no more being a son or sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter or daughters shall attain that age or marry, such two children shall have between them the sum of £8,000 only for their portions, and if three younger children of mine and no more being a son or sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a daughter or daughters shall attain that age or marry, such three children shall have between them the sum of £12,000 and no more for their portions, AND in either of the aforesaid cases the said sum of £15,000 shall be reduced to an amount sufficient to provide the said sum of £5,000, £8,000, or £12,000 as the case may be required for such portion or portions, together with such sum or sums of money (if any) as may be applied for the benefit of a son or sons who shall not live to attain a portion or portions under the power of advancement hereinafter contained, and the difference between the said sum of £15,000 and such reduced amount shall sink into the said hereditaments and cease to be charged thereon.

3. IN exercise of the power for this purpose given to me by my father's said will as aforesaid, and of all other powers (if any) me hereunto enabling, I HEREBY APPOINT that (subject and without prejudice to the uses and estates preceding my estate for life under my father's said will and to the powers annexed to such preceding uses and estates, and to the uses and estates limited in exercise of such powers, and subject and without prejudice also to the yearly rent-charge hereinbefore limited to my said wife and to the said powers and remedies for enforcing payment thereof) all and singular the hereditaments devised in strict settlement by my father's said will shall go, remain, and be TO THE USE of C. D., of, &c., and E. F., of, &c., for the term of five hundred years, computed from my decease, without impeachment of waste, UPON TRUST that the said trustees shall (subject to the trusts hereinbefore declared for securing the payment of the said yearly rent-charge), by mortgage, or other disposition of the said hereditaments, or any part thereof, for all or any part of the said term, or by and out of the rents and profits thereof, or by any other reasonable ways or means, levy and raise such sum of money as under the foregoing charge in that behalf shall become payable for a portion or portions as aforesaid, at the time or respective times when the same shall so become payable, and shall pay and apply the moneys to be so raised accordingly: PROVIDED ALWAYS, that it shall be lawful for the said trustees at any time or times after my decease, or the decease and failure of issue male of the said Y. B. (which shall last happen), at the discretion of the said trustees, to raise by the ways and means aforesaid, or any of them, any part or parts not exceeding together the moiety of the vested or expectant portion of any child under the foregoing charge, and to apply the same for the advancement, preferment, or benefit of such child, in such manner as the said trustees shall think fit: AND UPON FURTHER TRUST that in case at my decease or at the decease and failure of issue male of the said Y. APPOINTMENTS OF NEW TRUSTEES.

Provisions of the new Act with a view to facilitate the vesting of trust property on an appointment of new trustees.

THE Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, contains important provisions relating to the appointment of new trustees, which are set out in the Dissertation on Trustees (a). The Act also provides in section 34 as follows:—

- (1.) When a deed by which a new trustee is appointed to perform any trust contains a declaration by the appointor to the effect that any estate or interest in any land subject to the trust, or in any chattel so subject, or the right to recover and receive any debt or other thing in action so subject, shall vest in the persons who by virtue of the deed become and are the trustees for performing the trust, that declaration shall, without any conveyance or assignment, operate to vest in those persons, as joint tenants, and for the purposes of the trust, that estate, interest, or right.
- (2.) Where a deed by which a retiring trustee is discharged under this Act contains such a declaration as is in this section mentioned by the retiring and continuing trustees and by the other person, if any, empowered to appoint trustees, that declaration shall, without any conveyance, or assignment, operate to vest in the continuing trustees alone, as joint tenants, and for the purposes of the trust, the estate, interest, or right to which the declaration relates.
- (3.) This section does not extend to any legal estate or interest in copyhold or customary land, or to land conveyed by way of mortgage for securing money subject to the trust, or to any such share, stock, annuity, or property as is only transferable in books kept by a company or other body, or in manner prescribed by or under Act of Parliament.

(a) Suprà, p. 189.

- (4.) For purposes of registration of the deed in any registry, the person or persons making the declaration shall be deemed the conveying party or parties, and the conveyance shall be deemed to be made by him or them under a power conferred by this Act.
- (5.) This section applies only to deeds executed after the commencement of this Act.

The above section dispenses with the necessity of requiring the concurrence of the surviving or continuing trustees, or the representative of a last surviving or continuing trustee, where the power is vested in some one else, e.g., the beneficiary for life, inasmuch as the latter can by a simple declaration divest the trust property out of the persons in whom it may be vested at the time of the appointment for the purpose of vesting it in the persons who will be the trustees after the appointment (b).

When power is vested in tenant for life, concurrence of continuing trustees may be dispensed with.

(b) By the Stamp Act now in force (33 & 34 Vict. c. 97), an appointment of a new trustee is made liable to a stamp duty of 10s. And sect. 78 provides that every instrument and every decree or order of any court or of any commissioners whereby any property on any occasion, except a sale or mortgage, is transferred to or vested in any person, is chargeable with duty as a conveyance or transfer of property, subject to a proviso that a conveyance or transfer made for effectuating the appointment of a new trustee is not to be charged with any higher duty than 10s. It has been held that if an instrument contains an appointment of a new trustee and also a conveyance of the trust property, it requires two stamps of 10s. each. Hadgett v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, 3 Ex. D. 46.

(Other Particulars.)

DISENTAILING ASSURANCES.

A TENANT in tail in possession of freehold land may, under the Fines and Recoveries Abolition Act (a), dispose of the fee simple or any less estate by a deed enrolled in the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice (b); but if the estate tail is preceded by an estate for years determinable on the dropping of a life or lives, or any greater estate (not being an estate for years), created by the same settlement, the tenant in tail, unless he is also tenant in fee simple in remainder expectant on his own estate tail, cannot, without the consent of the person called by the Act "the protector of the settlement" (c), create any larger estate than a base fee, i. e., an estate which will be a complete bar to the issue, but not to those in remainder or reversion, and during the continuance of such issue will devolve or be disposable of by him as a fee simple.

Powers of a tenant in tail in possession or remainder.

A tenant in tail who has created a base fee may convert such base fee into a fee simple by another enrolled deed, so soon as there ceases to be a protector of the settlement (d), or during the protectorship with the protector's consent. And if the owner of a base fee becomes entitled to the immediate reversion in fee simple, the estate is enlarged ipso facto (e).

Enlargement of base fee.

The general rule laid down by the Act as to protectors is, that where there is a tenant in tail under a settlement, and there is subsisting under the same settlement any estate for years determinable on the dropping of a life or lives, or any greater estate (not being an estate for years), prior to the estate tail, then the owner of the prior estate, or the first of such prior estates, if more than one, then subsisting under the same settlement, or the person who would have been so if no absolute disposition thereof had been made

General rule as to the person who shall be protector.

Land Act, 1882, without having the deed enrolled.

(the first of such prior estates, if more than one, being for all the purposes of the Act deemed the prior estate), is the protector of the settlement, and is to be deemed the owner of such prior estate, although the prior estate may have been charged by the owner thereof, or by the settlor, or otherwise howsoever, and although the whole of the rents and profits be required for the payment of the charges thereon, and although such prior estate may have been absolutely disposed of by the owner thereof, or by or in consequence of the bankruptcy or insolvency of such owner, or by any other act or default of such owner, and that an estate by the curtesy in respect of the estate tail, or of any prior estate created by the same settlement, is to be deemed a prior estate under the same settlement, and that an estate by way of resulting use or trust, to or for the settlor, is also to be deemed an estate under the same settlement (f).

Power to settlor to appoint a protector.

The settlor may appoint any person, or number of persons, not exceeding three, to be protector or protectors in lieu of the person who would have been the protector if there had been no such appointment (g).

Office of protector
survives, and if all appointed protectors die,
tenant for life
is protector.

If two or three protectors are appointed, the office passes to the survivors and survivor (h); and if all the protectors die, and the settlement contains no power to perpetuate the protectorship, or, there being such a power, it is not exercised, the tenant for life becomes protector (i).

Lunatic
protector.

Where the protector is a lunatic, the Lord Chancellor, or other person for the time being intrusted with the care of lunatics, is the protector in the place of such lunatic (j).

Consent of protector, how given.

The consent of the protector must be given by the same assurance by which the disposition is effected, or by another deed executed on or before the day on which the assurance is made (k). And the protector cannot revoke his consent (l). If the consent is given by a distinct deed, it must be enrolled at or before the time when the assurance of the tenant in tail is enrolled (m).

The Act provides that where the tenant in tail is a married woman, the concurrence of her husband shall be necessary, and the deed must be acknowledged by her (n); and in a recent case, Jessel, M. R., expressed an opinion (though it was unnecessary to decide the point) that such concurrence and acknowledgment are necessary, even when the wife is equitable tenant in tail for her separate use (o). Whether this view is correct or not, it is apprehended that under the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, which makes a married woman competent to dispose of real or personal property as if she were a feme sole, a woman who has married or acquired an estate tail since the 31st December, 1882, can bar the entail without her husband's concurrence and by an unacknowledged deed. The acknowledgment of a married woman may be taken subsequently to the enrolment of the deed, and after the expiration of the six months limited for enrolment (p). Where a married woman is protector she may consent to a disposition by the tenant in tail as if she were a feme sole (q).

Disposition by married women tenants in tail.

Married woman protector.

The powers of disposition given to tenants in tail are applicable to copyholds, except that the disposition in the case of an estate at law is to be made by surrender, and, in the case of an equitable estate, by surrender, or deed entered on the court rolls of the manor, instead of being enrolled in the Chancery Division. The protector's consent to a disposition of copyholds may be by deed, to be produced to the lord of the manor at or before the time when the disentailing surrender is made, and then entered on the court rolls, or it may be given to the person taking the surrender, in which case the fact of the consent must be mentioned in the memorandum of surrender (r).

If a tenant in tail creates a voidable estate in favour of a purchaser for valuable consideration, and afterwards, under the Act, makes a disposition of the same lands, such disposition, whatever its object may be, has the effect of confirming the voidable estate to the extent to which the second deed is an effective disposition, except that if the second disposition is made to a purchaser for valuable consideration who has not express notice of the voidable estate, then the voidable estate is not confirmed as against such purchaser and the persons claiming under him (t).

Where a tenant in tail of lands becomes bankrupt, the trustee appointed in the bankruptcy is empowered to deal with the lands in the same manner as the bankrupt might have dealt with the same (u).

Lands to be sold, where the money arising from the sale thereof is subject to be invested in the purchase of land to be settled so that any person, if the lands were purchased, would have an estate tail therein, and also money subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be settled, so that any person, if the lands were purchased, would have an estate tail therein, may be disentailed, and they are, for this purpose, considered subject to the same estates as the lands to be purchased would, if purchased, have been actually subject to; but where the property thus disentailed consists of leasehold lands for years, or of money, such leasehold lands or money are, as to the person in whose favour or for whose benefit the disentailing disposition is made, treated as personal estate (v).

Every deed required to be enrolled operates (when enrolled) from the time of its execution, except as against any person claiming for valuable consideration under any subsequent deed duly enrolled before the enrolment of the first deed (x).

sons claiming any estate, interest, or right which such tenant in tail might lawfully have barred, are barred also, and when time has begun to run against a tenant in tail, it continues to run after his death against all persons whom he might have barred (y).

runs against all whom he could have barred.

If a tenant in tail makes an assurance, which is not effectual to bar the remainders over, and the person claiming by virtue of such assurance enters into possession or receipt of the profits, the remaindermen are barred (under the new Act) (z) at the end of twelve years from the time at which such assurance, if it had then been executed by the tenant in tail, would, without the consent of any other person, have operated to bar the remainder.

An assurance by a tenant in tail, which is ineffectual to bar the remainders, if followed by possession confers a good title against the remaindermen at the end of twelve years from the time when the assurance, if then executed, would have barred them.

But the above provision only applies to assurances which are effectual to bar the issue, and not to an unenrolled deed (a).

If an estate pur autre vie is limited in the form of an estate tail, although it will descend according to the terms of the limitation during its continuance, the quasi tenant in tail can bar the entail and the remainders over by any act inter vivos, without observing the formalities prescribed by the Fines and Recoveries Abolition Act, but not by will, and the existence of prior incumbrances creates no impediment (b). The renewal by a quasi tenant in tail of a lease for lives will bar the entail and the remainders over, and the result will be the same, although the surrendered lease may be vested in trustees and they do not concur in the surrender (c). If the quasi entail is preceded by a life interest, the remainders over will not be barred without the concurrence of the tenant for life (d), although without such concurrence it would seem that the quasi tenant in tail can bar himself and his issue (e).

BOND for PAYMENT of MONEY by INSTALMENTS.

FOR PAYMENT OF MONEY BY INSTALMENTS.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that I, A. B., of, &c. (obligor), am held and firmly bound (b) to C. D., of, &c. (obligee), in the sum of £—— (twice the amount of the sum to be repaid), to be paid to the said C. D. SEALED with my seal: DATED this —— day of ——, in the year 18——.

Bond.

NOW THE CONDITION of the above-written bond or obligation is such, that if the above-bounden A. B. shall pay to the said C. D. the sum of £—— by the instalments following (that is to say), the sum of £——, part thereof, on the —— day of —— now next ensuing, the sum of £——, other part thereof, on the —— day of ——, 18——, and the sum of £——, residue thereof, on the —— day of —— in the same year, and shall also at the several times hereinbefore appointed for payment of the said several instalments of the said sum of £ ——, pay to the said C. D. interest for the said sum of £——, or such part

Condition of Bond.

(a) By the Stamp Act (33 & 34 Vict. c. 97), the stamp duties chargeable on bonds for payment or repayment of money or the transfer or retransfer of stock, are the same as on a mortgage for the same purposes. (See Stamps on Mortgages, vol. i.) The stamp duties chargeable where the bond is to secure an annuity, except upon the original creation thereof by way of sale are stated under the head of Stamps on Settlements, supra, p. 266. A bond of any kind not specifically charged with any duty is liable to a 10s. stamp, unless the amount limited to be recoverable does not exceed £300, in which case the duty will be the same ad valorem duty as on a bond for the amount limited.

(b) By the Conveyancing Act, 1881, sect. 59, it is provided that a bond or obligation under seal, although not expressed to bind the heirs, shall operate in law to bind the heirs and real estate as well as the executors and administrators and personal estate of the obligor.

FOR PAYMENT

thereof as for the time being shall remain unpaid, after the rate of £— for every £100 by the year (such interest to commence and be computed from the day of the date of the above-written bond or obligation), THEN the above-written bond or obligation shall be void, otherwise the same shall remain in full force and virtue.

No. II.

TO SECURE ANNUITY.

BOND for SECURING the PAYMENT of an ANNUITY (a).

(BOND from A. B. (obligor) to C. D. (obligee) in the sum of £—, supra, p. 673). WHEREAS the above-bounden A. B. lately agreed with the said C. D. for the sale to him of an annuity of £—, during his life, for the sum of £—, such annuity to be secured by the bond of the said A. B.: AND WHEREAS, in pursuance of the said agreement, the said C. D. has paid to the said A. B. the sum of £—, and the said A. B. has executed the above-written bond.

Condition of Bond.

NOW THE CONDITION of the above-written bond is such that if the said A. B. shall pay to the said C. D. during his life one annuity or yearly sum of £— by equal quarterly portions, on the — day of —, the — day of —, the — day of —, and the — day of —, in every year, the first quarterly portion of the said annuity to be paid on the — day of —, then the above-written bond shall be void, otherwise the same shall remain in full force and virtue.

(a) The stamp duty on this bond will be the same ad valorem duty as on a conveyance in consideration of the purchase-money to be paid for the annuity. (See 33 & 34 Vict. c. 97, s. 75.)

until the said benefice should become vacant, and to be secured by the bond of the said A. B., at the price of £2,000: AND

Payment of purchase-money and advowson.

WHEREAS in pursuance of the said agreement, the said C. D. has paid to the said A. B. the said purchase-money of £2,000, and in consideration thereof the said A. B. has conveyed the said advowson unto and to the use of the said C. D. in fee simple by an indenture bearing even date with the above-written bond, and has also executed the above-written bond:

NOW THE CONDITION of the above-written bond is such that if the said A. B. shall pay to the said C. D. the annual sum of £80, until the said benefice shall become vacant by the death, resignation, or deprivation of X. Y., the present incumbent thereof, or if the said X. Y. shall be promoted to a bishopric, and the crown shall thereupon present to the said benefice, then, until the death, resignation, or deprivation of the person presented by the crown as aforesaid, the said annual sum to be paid by equal half-yearly payments on the — day of — and the — day of —, the first of such payments to be made on the — day of — next, then and in such case the above-written bond shall be void, otherwise the same shall remain in full force and virtue.

M., late of, &c., deceased, and his heirs, by an indenture dated, &c., and made, &c., and the title of the said A. B. to the said hereditaments is derived under the will of the said W. M., which bears date the —— day of ——, and was proved, &c., and under an indenture of appointment, dated the —— day of ——, being an appointment to him the said A. B., under a power in the said will contained: AND WHEREAS, previously to the execution of the said indenture of even date with these presents it was stipulated and agreed that in addition to the ordinary covenants for title implied by law the said A. B. should, for the satisfaction and indemnity of the said C. D., execute the above-written bond or obligation, subject to the condition hereinafter contained: NOW THE CONDITION of the above-written bond or obligation is such, that if the said C. D., his appointees, heirs, or assigns, shall from time to time, and at all times hereafter, hold, possess, and enjoy, the hereditaments comprised in and assured by the said indenture of even date with these presents, or expressed so to be, and every part thereof, and receive and take the rents and profits of the same, and every part thereof, for his and their own use, without any lawful let, suit, trouble, eviction, claim, or demand whatsoever of, from, or by any person or persons whomsoever, and free and clear of and from all adverse estates, titles, liens, charges, and incumbrances whatsoever, THEN the above-written bond or obligation shall be void, otherwise the same shall remain in full force and virtue.

B., but cannot be found: AND WHEREAS previously to the execution of the said indenture of even date herewith, it was agreed that for the satisfaction and indemnity of the said C. D., and in addition to the ordinary covenants for title implied by law, the said A. B. should execute the above-written bond subject to the condition hereinafter contained: NOW THE CONDITION of the above-written bond or obligation is such, that if the said A. B. shall at all times hereafter keep indemnified the said C. D., his heirs and assigns, from and against all actions, losses, costs, charges, expenses, claims, and demands whatsoever in respect of the said hereditaments and premises comprised in the said recited indenture of even date herewith to which he or they would not have been subject or liable if the said indenture of the —— day of —— (being an absolute conveyance of the said hereditaments to the said A. B. in fee simple) had been duly delivered to the said C. D. upon the completion of the purchase, and in particular from and against all actions, losses, costs, charges, expenses, claims, and demands whatsoever to which he or they is or are, or shall or may become subject or liable in case it shall appear that the said indenture is not in effect an absolute conveyance of all the said hereditaments to the said A. B. for an estate in fee simple in possession, free from incumbrances, or that the same indenture has been deposited with any person or persons by way of security, or has been otherwise dealt with in such a manner as to prejudice or affect the absolute title of the said A. (a) The 9 Geo. 4, c. 94, sect. 1, provides that every engagement made after the passing of the Act for the resignation of any spiritual office, being a benefice with cure of souls, dignity, prebend, or living ecclesiastical, to the intent or purpose to be manifested by the terms of such engagement, that any one person whosoever, to be specially named and described therein, or one of two persons to be specially named and described therein, being such persons as are thereafter mentioned, shall be presented to such spiritual office, or that the same shall be given or bestowed to or upon him, shall be valid, and the performance of the same may also be enforced in equity; provided that such engagement shall be so entered into before the presentation, nomination, collation, or appointment of the party so entering into the same as aforesaid. 9 Geo. 4, c. 94.

Sect. 2 provides that where two persons shall be so specially named and described in such engagement, each of them shall be, either by blood or marriage, an uncle, son, grandson, brother, nephew, or grand-nephew of the patron or of one of the patrons of such spiritual office, not being merely a trustee or trustees of the patronage of the same, or of the person or one of the persons for whom the patron or patrons shall be a trustee or trustees, or of the person or one of the persons by whose direction such presentation, collation, gift, or bestowing shall be intended to be made, or of any married woman whose husband in her right shall be the patron or one of the patrons of such spiritual office, or of any other person in whose right such presentation, collation, gift, or bestowing shall be intended to be made.

Sect. 4 provides that one part of the deed, instrument, or writing by which such engagement shall be made, given, or entered into, shall, within two calendar months next after the date thereof, be deposited in the office of the registrar of the diocese wherein the benefice shall be locally situate.

Sect. 5 provides that every resignation to be made in pursuance of any such engagement as aforesaid shall refer to the engagement in pursuance of which it is made, and state the name of the person for whose benefit it is made, and that it shall not be lawful for the ordinary to refuse such resignation unless upon good and sufficient cause to be shown for that purpose, and the person for whose benefit it is made must be presented within six calendar months next after notice of such resignation shall have been given to the patron.

Sect. 6 provides that the Act shall not apply to presentations by the Crown, or by any ecclesiastical or other public body.

B. shall within six calendar months after being requested so to do in writing by the said C. D. or other the patron or patrons for the time being of the said rectory, well and effectually resign the said rectory to the bishop of the said diocese, and cause such resignation to be accepted, so that the said C. D. or other patron or patrons for the time being of the said rectory, may present thereto the said E. D., or in case the said E. D. shall not be admitted into priest's orders as aforesaid during the life of the said A. B., or the said A. B. shall not be requested to resign the said rectory in manner aforesaid, THEN and in any of the said cases the above-written bond shall be void, otherwise the same shall remain in full force and virtue.

RELEASES.

No. I.

RELEASE by RESIDUARY LEGATEES to the TRUSTEES and EXECUTORS of a WILL on the distribution of the RESI-DUARY ESTATE of the TESTATOR (a).

RELEASE BY RESIDUARY LEGATEES.

THIS INDENTURE, made the — day of —, BETWEEN Parties.

A. B., of, &c., and C. D., of, &c. (releasors), of the one part, and E. F., of, &c., and G. H., of, &c. (releasees), of the other part:

(Recite will whereby the testator devised and bequeathed to E. F. and G. H. all his real and personal estate, upon trust to sell and convert the same into money, and to stand possessed of the same, after the payment of his debts and legacies, in trust for the testator's wife for life, and after his decease, in trust for his children in equal Recite will.

(a) Executors and trustees are entitled to have their accounts examined and settled before they hand over the balance to the cestuis que trust, and it is usual and proper in such case for the cestuis que trust to execute a formal deed of release. But if a trust is declared of a specified fund in favour of a specified person, so that there are in fact no accounts to be settled, and the trustee merely hands over the fund in its original state, in strict accordance with the declared trust, he is not entitled to require a release under seal: Chadwick v. Heatley, 2 Coll. 137; King v. Mullins, 1 Drew. 308.

In what cases executors and trustees should have a release.

Releases should be drawn so as to show on the face of the deed that the releasors are fully aware of all the circumstances connected with the subject of release, of their own rights and position, and of the position of the intended releasees as to breach of trust, liability, &c., and they should also explicitly state the claims to be released. Releases will be generally governed by the recitals, so that where the words of the release are general, but the recitals refer only to a particular matter, the release will be construed to relate in fact to the matter recited: Ramsden v. Hylton, 2 Ves. Sen. 304; Pritt v. Clay, 6 Beav. 503.

How releases ought to be drawn.

Where there are other persons than the releasors who can be interested in or may have claims on the matter or property to which the release relates, the releasing parties generally execute a covenant of indemnity as well as a release, but not otherwise.

Precedents of releases connected with sales of land will be found in Vol. I. under head of "Purchase Deeds."

F. and G. H. have, before the execution of these presents, paid the said sum of £— to the said A. B. and C. D. in equal shares, as they do hereby acknowledge: AND WHEREAS, previously to the last-mentioned payment, the said E. F. and G. H. rendered to the said A. B. and C. D. an account of the real and personal estate of the said testator, and of the disposition and application of the same and the proceeds thereof, and of the income thereof respectively, and the said A. B. and C. D. examined the said account and are satisfied therewith, as they do hereby acknowledge and declare :

AND they have therefore agreed to execute such release as is hereinafter contained : NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH, that in consideration of the premises, the said A. B. and C. D. hereby release the said E. F. and G. H., and each of them, from all actions, claims, and demands whatsoever, for or in respect or on account of the real and personal estate of the said testator, and the rents, profits, and income thereof respectively, or any part or parts thereof respectively, or any act, deed, matter, or thing whatsoever done or omitted to be done by the said E. F. and G. H., or either of them, in or about the execution of the said will or the trusts thereof, or in anywise relating to the premises : [AND the said A. B. and C. D. hereby jointly and severally covenant (a) with the said E. F. and G. (a) Retiring trustees are not, as a general rule, entitled to a release from the cestuis que trust, but sometimes it is expressly stipulated that they shall have one, as where the dealings with the trust funds have not been regular, and the irregularities have been committed at the instance of the cestuis que trust, who are sui juris. Again, if besides the appointment of new trustees, some alteration is made in the trusts with the consent of the beneficiaries, such an arrangement may properly be treated as a winding up of the old trust, and the creation of a new one, and it would be proper to give the retiring trustees a release. An instance of such a case is, where the trustees of a settlement of real estate have made sales and purchases and interim investments, involving the keeping of accounts.
If there is a re-settlement of the estate on the eldest son coming of age, the accounts should be submitted to him and his father, and a release given to the trustees.

PARTNERSHIP DEEDS.

What is a partnership.

PARTNERSHIP is a contract whereby two or more persons engage together in some business or undertaking, bringing for this purpose into community capital or labour or both, and sharing the profits (a). The prin-

Participation in profits a prima facie test of partnership, but not conclusive.

(a) Although participation in profits is a prima facie test of partnership, it is not conclusive, as there may be circumstances to rebut the inference of partnership, as where under a deed of arrangement between an insolvent firm and its creditors, trustees were directed to carry on the business under a new title for the benefit of the creditors until their debts were paid, it was held that the creditors were not partners, and the test was stated to be whether the trustees were carrying on the business as their agents; and the fact that they were not entitled to the profits to an indefinite extent, but only until their debts were paid, was relied on as rebutting the presumption that they were the owners of the business, standing in the relation of principals to the persons ostensibly carrying on the trade. Cox v. Hickman, 8 H. L. C. 268.

28 & 29 Vict. c. 86.

Lender of money on terms that interest shall vary with profits, not a partner.

By the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 86, it is provided (sects. 1 and 2) that the advance of money by way of loan to a person engaged or about to engage in any trade or undertaking upon a contract in writing, with such provision that the lender shall receive a rate of interest varying with the profits, or shall receive a share of the profits arising from carrying on such trade or undertaking, shall not of itself constitute the lender a partner with the person or persons carrying on such trade or undertaking, or render him responsible as such; and that no contract for the remuneration of a servant or agent of any person engaged in any trade or undertaking by a share of the profits of such trade or undertaking shall of itself render such servant or agent responsible as a partner therein, nor give him the rights of a partner; and the 3rd section provides that no person being the widow or child of a deceased partner of a trader, and receiving by way of annuity a portion of the profits made by such trader in his business, shall by reason only of such receipt be deemed to be a partner of or to be subject to any liabilities incurred by such trader; and the 4th section declares that no person receiving by way of annuity or otherwise a portion of the profits of any business in consideration of the sale by him of the goodwill of such business, shall by reason only of such receipt be deemed to be a partner of or be subject to the liabilities of the person carrying on such business. By the 5th section it is provided that in the event of the trader being made a bankrupt, or entering into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than 20s. in the pound, or dying insolvent, the lender shall not re-

Nor a servant who receives share of profit as remuneration.

Nor a widow or child of deceased partner, who receives share of profits by way of annuity.

Nor a vendor of business who receives a share of profits as consideration.

principal legal consequence of the contract is that, as regards third persons, each partner has authority to bind the firm in all matters coming within the ordinary scope of the business, and that the contracts and engagements of the firm may be enforced against every member of it. And where a person retires by agreement from a firm which continues to carry on business, his liability continues until the fact of his retirement is notified. A notice in the London Gazette is sufficient as against all persons who had no dealing with the old firm, but it is necessary to give express notice to old customers.

Implied authority of each partner to bind the firm.

Notice to be given on retirement of partner.

The rights and liabilities of the partners as between themselves are usually regulated by express contracts. A well drawn partnership deed defines the nature of the business, the duration of the partnership, and the name of the firm. It also states the amount of capital, and by whom and in what shares it is to be brought in, and the proportions in which profits and losses are to be divided. It also provides for a yearly or other periodical balancing of accounts, and for the arrangements to be made on the determination of the partnership, whether by effluxion of time, the death or bankruptcy of a partner, or otherwise.

Usual provisions in partnership deeds.

The provisions relating to capital and the division of profits and losses often require special attention. Where the capital is brought in by the partners equally, and they share equally in the profits, there Provisions as to capital, profits and loss.

cover any part of his principal or of the profits or interest payable in respect of such loan, and that the vendor of such goodwill as aforesaid shall not recover any such profits until the claims of the other creditors of the trader for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied.

The above enactment has been criticised as being founded to some extent on a misapprehension of the law as it stood when the Act passed, there being no rule (as is supposed in the Act) that a loan of money on an agreement that interest should be paid varying with the profits would constitute the lender a partner. And it has been held that the Act does not apply to any contract unless the advance of money would independently of the Act have created the relation of debtor and creditor as distinguished from the relation of partners; and a declaration in the deed that the lender shall not be a partner will be nugatory if the result of the agreement, as a whole, is to give him the rights and impose on him the obligations of a partner. Pooley v. Driver, 5 Ch. D. 458; Ex parte Delhasse, 7 Ch. D. 511; Badeley v. Consolidated Bank, 38 C. D. 238.

Provision of Act as to lender not being a partner does not apply if the result of the arrangement is to confer on him the rights and obligations of a partner.

When more capital is brought in by one partner than by the other, provision should be made for its return, and for interest in the meantime.

is no difficulty ; but if this is not the case, the respective rights of the partners as regards capital and profits and losses should be carefully defined. Suppose, for instance, that A. and B. are partners on the terms of an equal division of profits, but A. brings in all the capital. In the absence of express stipulation, the capital will be considered as thrown into the common fund, and will, like the profits, belong to the partners equally. This is not generally intended, and provision should therefore be made in such a case for securing to A. the return of his capital out of the partnership assets on the winding up of the business, and the payment to him of interest thereon in the meantime.

Participation in losses.

If the business is conducted at a loss, or if the net returns are less than the capital employed in producing them, the capital is of course diminished to this extent, and the share of each partner is diminished in proportion. If the whole of the capital is lost, and the firm has moreover incurred liabilities beyond what the capital will satisfy, such liabilities will, in the absence of special agreement, have to be borne by the partners in the same proportions in which they would have been entitled to profits (if any).

Partnership determines by death or bankruptcy.

A partnership is determined by the death or bankruptcy of a partner, and when there are three or more partners, the death or bankruptcy of one is a dissolution as to all, unless the contract provides to the contrary. Lunacy does not of itself determine the partnership, but under the Act 16 & 17 Vict. c. 70 (b), the Lord Chancellor may, on the application of the other partners, decree a dissolution.

Effect of lunacy.

Execution against one partner, is a dissolution.

A judgment obtained against one member of a firm for his private debt may be put in execution against his share of the partnership effects, and such an execution operates as a dissolution of the partnership (c).

Misconduct of a partner when a ground for dissolution.

It is not unusual to provide that in the event of certain breaches of duty by a partner, the other partner or partners shall have the power of expelling him. In the absence of such a provision, the Court will decree a dissolution if the misconduct of a partner is such as to destroy altogether the mutual confidence without which his business cannot be carried on (d).

(b) Sect. 123.

Where a partnership is determined by the death or retirement of a partner, it is generally wished that the business shall continue to be carried on by the others. In order, therefore, to prevent the compulsory winding up of the concern, it is usual to provide some other mode of ascertaining the share of the deceased or outgoing partner. One plan is to provide that the share of capital shall be taken at its value as ascertained by the last yearly balance sheet, and that some fixed sum by way of interest from that time up to the death or retirement shall be allowed in lieu of profits. This plan obviates the necessity for any new balancing of accounts; but it is open to this objection, that if there should have been any serious loss since the last stock-taking, the loss will fall on the continuing partners alone. Another plan is to give to the continuing partners the option of purchasing the share at a valuation, to be made on the day of the death or retirement. It has been decided that a clause of this kind will be enforced, and that if the valuation cannot be made by the person and in the manner directed, the Court will ascertain the value (e).

Special provisions necessary to prevent compulsory winding-up, on death, &c., of a partner.

Plan for ascertaining value of deceased partner's share, by reference to last yearly account, or by valuation.

In framing any provision for determining the share of a deceased or outgoing partner, it should be stated whether anything is to be allowed for the goodwill. Goodwill.

THIS INDENTURE, made the — day of —, BETWEEN A. B., of, &c. (one partner), of the one part, and C. D., of, &c. (other partner), of the other part: WITNESSETH, that the said A. B. and C. D., hereby mutually covenant and agree to become and be partners in the trade or business of —, upon and subject to the terms, conditions, and stipulations expressed in the following articles (that is to say) :—

1. THE partnership shall continue for the term of twenty-one years from the date of these presents, unless the same shall be previously determined under the provisions hereinafter contained.

2. THE firm and style of the partnership shall be — & Co.

3. THE partnership business shall be carried on at or upon the leasehold premises being No. —, — street, in the city of —, held by the said A. B. and C. D. under a lease, dated the — day of —, at the yearly rent of £—, or at such other place as shall from time to time be agreed on by the said partners.

4. THE bankers of the firm shall be Messrs. — & Co., at —, or such other bankers as shall be from time to time agreed on by the partners. Each partner shall be at liberty to draw cheques in the name of the firm.

5. THE capital of the firm shall consist of the sum of £—, to be brought in by the partners in equal shares [or in the shares following, namely, state the shares], and to be made up as follows (that is to say), the implements and plant now used in the said business shall be deemed to be of the value of £—, and to be brought in by the said partners in equal shares [or in the shares aforesaid], and the further sum of £— shall be paid to the credit of the firm by the said partners in equal shares [or in the shares aforesaid] immediately after the execution of these presents.

6. IF either partner shall at any time, with the consent of the other partner, advance any money to the firm beyond the amount of the capital hereby agreed to be brought in by him, the same shall be a debt to him from the firm, and may be withdrawn by him at any time at one calendar month's notice, and shall in the meantime bear interest after the rate of £5 per cent. per annum, computed from the time of such advance.

BETWEEN TWO PERSONS.

7. THE profits of the business shall belong to the partners in equal shares [or as to — parts thereof to the said A. B., and as to the remaining — part thereof to the said C. D.].

Profits.

8. THE rent of the said leasehold premises, or of any other premises where the business shall for the time being be carried on, and all rates, taxes, payments for insurance, and other outgoings whatsoever, in respect of the same, and all expenses incurred in or about the said business, and all losses, if any, arising therein shall be paid and borne out of the earnings of the said business, or if the same shall be deficient, shall be paid and borne by the partners in equal shares.

Expenses and losses.

9. EACH partner may draw out of the partnership cash the monthly sum of £40 on account of his share of profits for the current year, and if on taking any yearly account it shall appear that the sums drawn out by him exceed his share of profits for that year he shall forthwith repay the excess.

Power to each partner to draw monthly sums.

10. PROPER books of account shall be kept by the partners, and entries made therein of all such matters, transactions, and things as are usually written and entered in books of account kept by persons engaged in concerns of a similar nature, and such books, together with all securities, letters, and other things belonging to or concerning the said partnership, shall be kept at the office where the partnership business shall for the time being be carried on, and each of the partners shall have free access to inspect, examine, and copy the same, whenever he shall think fit.

Books of account to be kept.

11. BOTH partners shall devote their whole time and attention to the partnership business, and neither of them shall, directly or indirectly, be engaged in any other business. They shall be faithful to each other in all partnership transactions, and at all times furnish to each other correct accounts and statements of and concerning all such transactions without any concealment or suppression. Neither partner shall employ any money or effects belonging to the firm, or engage its credit except on account of the partnership business, and the bond fide carrying on of the same, or do or suffer anything whereby any such money or effects or his interest therein may be taken in execution or in any wise assigned, charged, or incumbered for or in respect of his private debts. Neither partner shall without the consent of the other become bail or surety for any person.

Neither partner to discharge clerk or servant without consent of other.

12. NEITHER partner shall without the consent of the other discharge any clerk or servant in the employment of the firm except for flagrant misconduct.

Not to give credit after notice to the contrary.

13. NEITHER partner shall lend any money or deliver on credit any goods belonging to the firm to any person whom the other partner shall by notice in writing have forbidden him to trust, and if either partner shall do so, he shall make good to the firm all loss arising thereby.

Not to release or compound debt.

14. NEITHER partner shall without the consent in writing of the other release or compound any debt owing to or claim of the firm, and if either partner do so, he shall, if required by the other, make good to the firm the full amount of such debt or claim.

Annual accounts.

15. On the 31st day of December in every year during the continuance of the said partnership, a general account shall be taken up to the same 31st day of December, of the stock in trade, credits, property and effects, debts and liabilities of the said partnership, and every such annual account shall be entered in two books, and be signed in each such book by each partner, and after such signature each of them shall keep one of the said books, and shall be bound by such account, except that if any manifest error be found therein by either partner, and signified to the other within three calendar months after the same shall have been so signed by both of them, such error shall be rectified. Immediately after the signing of such account each partner may draw out his share of the profits as thereby appearing [subject, however, to the next article].

Reserve fund.

[16. IMMEDIATELY after taking such annual account, one tenth part of the profits for the past year shall be set apart as a reserve fund to meet future losses and extraordinary expenses, until the reserve fund shall amount to £—. The reserve fund shall be invested from time to time in securities agreed on by the partners, and the interest or income arising therefrom shall be deemed part of the profits of the said business and be divided accordingly. If the reserve fund after having been at its full amount shall be diminished, one tenth part of the annual profits shall again be added thereto until it reaches its full amount, and so on from time to time as occasion may require (a).]

BETWEEN
TWO PERSONS.

17. If either partner shall die or become bankrupt during the partnership term, the other partner shall be at liberty to purchase the share of the deceased or bankrupt partner in the partnership property upon giving to his legal personal representative or trustee (as the case may require) a notice in writing to that effect at any time within three calendar months from the death or bankruptcy, such purchase to take effect as from the day of such death or bankruptcy.

On death or bankruptcy of a partner the other partner may purchase his share.

[18. EITHER partner may retire from the firm at the end of any year of the partnership term, upon giving to the other partner or leaving at the place where the business is carried on twelve calendar months' previous notice in writing in that behalf. In such case the other partner shall be at liberty to purchase the share of the retiring partner in the property of the firm upon giving to him or leaving at the said place of business a notice in writing to that effect at any time before the determination of the partnership by reason of the first-mentioned notice (b).]

Power to other party to retire, in which case his share may be purchased by the other.

(a) This will only be inserted when from the nature of the business it is thought necessary.

(b) The above clause will be inserted only when expressly stipulated for. Sometimes the following clause will meet the intention of the parties:—

If upon taking any such annual account as aforesaid it shall appear that the partnership business has not been carried on during the then preceding year so as to produce profit after allowing to each partner interest after the rate of £5 per cent. per annum on the amount of his capital for the time being in the said business, it shall be lawful for either partner, at any time within one calendar month from the time of the taking such account, to give a notice in writing to the other partner of his desire that the said partnership shall determine, or to leave such notice at the place where the partnership business shall for the time being be carried on, and in such case the partnership shall cease and determine immediately upon the giving or leaving of such notice.

Power to either partner to determine partnership in the event of no profits.

If (c) either partner shall commit a wilful breach of these articles or act contrary to the good faith which ought to be observed between partners, or shall become incapable by reason of lunacy or otherwise to take his part in the management of the partnership business, then and in either of such cases the other partner may by a notice in writing given to him, or (if he shall be found lunatic by inquisition) to his committee, expel him from the partnership as from the date of such notice, but so that if the expulsion shall be on account of a breach of duty the notice shall be given within one calendar month after the discovery thereof: And if any question shall arise whether a case has happened to authorise the exercise of this power, such question shall be referred to arbitration under the provision in that behalf hereinafter contained. The partner giving such notice of expulsion as aforesaid may by the same or any other notice to be given as aforesaid within one calendar month from the date of the first notice signify his intention to purchase the share of the expelled partner in the partnership property, in which case he shall be deemed the purchaser thereof accordingly as from the date of such expulsion.]

20. THE price to be paid for the purchase of the share of a deceased or bankrupt [or retiring or expelled] partner under the foregoing provisions shall be the net value thereof after providing for the debts and liabilities of the firm on the day of the determination of the partnership, and if the parties shall be unable to agree as to the value thereof, the same shall be ascertained by two indifferent persons, one to be appointed by the vendor or vendors, and the other by the purchaser, or by an umpire to be appointed by the two valuers before they proceed to business, and if either party shall fail to appoint a valuer for the space of fourteen days after being called on so to do by the other party, or shall appoint a valuer who shall refuse to act, the valuer appointed by the other party shall make a final valuation alone. Final division at end of partnership if no other arrangement is made.

23. UPON the determination of the partnership during the joint lives of the partners, either of them shall be at liberty to advertise the dissolution in the London Gazette and other papers, and to send notices thereof to customers and others.

Dissolution may be advertised in London Gazette, &c.

24. IF, during the continuance of the said partnership, or at any time afterwards, any difference shall arise between the said partners, or their respective representatives, in regard to the construction of any of the articles herein contained, or to any division, act, or thing to be made or done in pursuance hereof, or in regard to the rights or liabilities of either party hereunder, or to any other matter or thing relating to the said partnership or the affairs thereof, such difference shall be forthwith referred to two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party in differ-

(Short Form.)

5. THE profits and losses of the business shall be divided between the partners in equal shares (b). Profits and losses.

6. PROPER accounts shall be kept of all partnership transactions, and on the 31st day of December in every year, or as soon afterwards as possible, a balance-sheet shall be made out, showing the assets and liabilities of the firm, and what belongs and is due to each partner for capital and share of profits, and the same shall be signed by both partners, and when so signed shall be conclusive, except that if a manifest error shall be discovered therein within three calendar months after the signature thereof such error shall be rectified. Yearly stock-taking.

7. EACH partner may draw the monthly sum of £—— out of the partnership cash on account of his share of profits for the current year, but if on taking the yearly account it shall appear that the monthly sums drawn out by either partner exceed his share of profits, he shall forthwith refund the excess. Monthly drawings.

8. UPON the determination of the partnership (c), the assets of the partnership shall be realized and applied, 1st, in payment of the debts and liabilities of the firm, and 2ndly, in paying to each partner the amount of his capital in the said business, and the surplus (if any) shall be divided between the partners or their respective representatives in equal shares [or in proportion to their shares in the profits of the business]. Final account and division at end of partnership.

9. ALL matters in difference in relation to the partnership affairs shall be referred to the arbitration of two indifferent persons, one to be appointed by each party, and every such arbitration shall be subject to the provisions relating to arbitration contained in the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854. Arbitration clause.

IN WITNESS, &c.

(b) This precedent can be easily adapted to a case where the capital is found by the parties, and the profits are divided in unequal shares. But it should be borne in mind, that if the capital is found in different proportions to those in which profits are divided, there should be a provision allowing interest on capital.

(c) If it is wished to give a surviving partner the option to purchase the share of a deceased partner, a provision to that effect can be framed from Precedent No. I.

any deduction for rates, taxes, or other impositions whatsoever (except the landlord's property tax), to be paid by equal half-yearly instalments on the — day of — and the — day of — in every year, the first of such payments to be made on the — day of —. All external repairs and painting shall be done by and at the expense of the said A. B., and all internal repairs and painting shall be done by and at the expense of the firm.

Certain fixtures, &c., to remain property of senior partner.

4. ALL the books, fixtures, and things now being in or about or belonging to the said offices are the property of the said A. B., and shall remain his exclusive property during the said partnership.

Profits, how to be divided.

5. THE partners shall be interested in the profits of the said business in the shares following (that is to say), the said A. B. shall be entitled to three fourths of the said profits, and the said C. D. shall be entitled to one fourth part thereof.

Capital.

6. THE capital (if any) from time to time required for carrying on the said business shall be made up by the said A. B. and C. D. in the same proportions as they are entitled to the profits of the said business as aforesaid, and if either partner shall at any time advance more than his due proportion of capital, the excess shall be considered as a loan from him to the firm, and shall be repaid on demand, and until repayment shall bear interest after the rate of £5 per cent. per annum.

Power to partners to draw out monthly sums.

7. THE said A. B. shall be at liberty to draw out of the funds of the partnership, for his personal expenses, the monthly sum of £—, and the said C. D. shall be at liberty to draw out of the said funds, for his personal expenses, the monthly sum of £—, and the sum to be so drawn out shall be in part or full satisfaction (as the case may be) of the shares of the said A. B. and C. D. respectively in the profits of the said business for that year: PROVIDED ALWAYS, that if in any year the sums drawn out as aforesaid by either partner shall exceed the amount of his share of the net profits for that year, such partner shall refund the excess as soon as the same shall be ascertained at the taking of the yearly account hereinafter mentioned.

Losses to be borne by partners in proportion to their share of profits.

8. ALL the expenses of and incidental to the carrying on of the said business, and all losses which may be incurred on account thereof, shall be paid and borne out of the profits of the said business, or in case the same shall be deficient, then shall be paid by the said partners in the proportions following (that is to say), three fourths thereof shall be paid by the said A. B., and the remaining one fourth part thereof by the said C. D.

BETWEEN
SOLICITORS.

9. THE said partners shall keep proper books of account, and enter therein the particulars of all business done and of all receipts and disbursements, and all such other matters and things as ought to be entered in the said books in the usual and regular course of business of a solicitor, and the said books shall be kept in the offices of the firm, and be open at all convenient times to the inspection of both partners.

Books of
account.

10. THE said C. D. shall devote the whole of his time to the said business, and diligently employ himself therein and promote to the utmost of his power the benefit and advantage of the said partnership.

Junior partner to give his whole time to business.

11. THE said A. B. shall not be obliged to attend to the said business, any further than he shall think proper, and may either actively engage in the said business or abstain wholly or partially from any active part therein, as he shall from time to time think proper.

Senior partner not to be obliged to attend to business.

12. EACH of the partners shall be faithful to the other, and neither of them shall, without the previous consent in writing of the other of them, employ any of the moneys or effects of the said partnership, or engage the credit thereof in any matter or thing, except upon the account and for the benefit of the said partnership, and neither of them shall, without the previous consent in writing of the other of them, enter into any bond, or become otherwise bound, as bail or surety for any person or persons whomsoever, or do or suffer any act or thing whereby the other of the said partners or the moneys or effects of the said partnership shall or may be charged, attached, or affected.

Partners to be faithful to each other.

13. On the — day of — in every year an account in writing shall be taken of the moneys, credits, and effects, debts and liabilities of the said partnership, which annual account shall be written in two books, to be respectively signed by the said partners, and after such signing each of the said partners shall take one of the said books into his custody, and shall be concluded by the said account, unless some error shall appear therein, and shall be notified within three calendar months after the taking of such account, and then the said account shall be opened so far only as to rectify such error, and after the making up of every such annual account, all interest (if any) which shall be due to either partner for any money which may have been lent by him to the said firm, shall, in the first place, be taken by such partner, and afterwards the said partners shall divide between them in the proportions aforesaid the net profits of the said business which have accrued or been gained during the then preceding year.

Final account
and division at end of partnership.

14. IN case the partnership shall determine during the joint lives of the said partners, a general statement and account shall within six calendar months after such determination be made and taken of the partnership affairs and transactions, and of the moneys, credits, and effects, debts and liabilities of the said firm, and the said moneys, credits, and effects shall be applied in manner following (that is to say), first, in payment of the debts and liabilities of the said firm; secondly, in repaying to each partner the capital brought by him into the said business, with all interest due thereon, and the surplus of the said moneys, credits and effects shall be divided between the said partners in such manner that the said A. B. shall receive three-fourth parts thereof, and the said C. D. shall receive the remaining one fourth part thereof.

Final account
and division on death of a partner.

15. IN case either of the said partners shall die during the continuance of the said partnership, the like statement, account, and division shall be made and taken between the surviving partners, and the executors or administrators of the deceased partner as are by Article 14 directed to be made and taken respectively between the partners on the determination of the said partnership during their joint lives: PROVIDED ALWAYS, that the surviving partner shall be at liberty to purchase the printed books, office fixtures, and furniture (if any) which shall belong to the firm at a valuation, such valuation to be made by two indifferent persons or their umpire, to be appointed respectively as is hereinafter provided in the case of arbitrators or their umpire upon a reference to arbitration, and the amount of such valuation shall form part of the partnership funds, and be divided accordingly: PROVIDED ALSO, that all deeds, drafts of deeds, and other papers belonging to clients or otherwise which shall be in the custody of the said partners, or either of them, on account of the firm, shall (subject to the claims of the persons to whom the same shall belong) remain in the hands of or be delivered to the surviving partner.

BETWEEN
SOLICITORS.

16. THE said A. B. shall be at liberty at any time during the said term to give the whole or any part of his share in the said business, and the profits thereof, to any son of him the said A. B. who may become a duly qualified solicitor, and to introduce such son into the said partnership business to the extent of the share to be so given to him as aforesaid, and in such case the said introduced partner shall thenceforth during the residue of the said term of — years carry on the said business in partnership with the said A. B. and C. D., or the said C. D., as the case may be, for the then residue of the said term, upon and subject to the like terms, conditions, and stipulations as are herein contained with regard to the said intended partnership between the said A. B. and C. D., or as near thereto as the circumstances will permit, save and except that the said introduced partner shall be bound to devote the whole of his time to the said business, and diligently employ himself therein, and shall not have the power which is hereinbefore given to the said A. B. of determining the said partnership by notice.

share in the assets after allowing for the liabilities is often found an embarrassing one.

It seems from recent cases (Potter v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue, 23 L. J. Ex. 345; Christie v. Same, L. R. 2 Ex. 46; Phillips v. Same, ib. 399), that such a transaction is a sale, and consequently if any deed or instrument is executed in order to vest the property in the continuing partners, such an instrument requires an ad valorem stamp duty of 10s. per cent. as on a sale. So far as regards houses or land, goodwill, tenant's fixtures, or other property which can only be transferred by deed or a written instrument, the duty cannot be avoided. But where the whole of the assets consists of goods and chattels and book debts, and nothing is paid for the goodwill, an actual assignment by deed seems unnecessary. The chattels pass by delivery, and the book debts can be received by the continuing partners without any power of attorney.

In the above Precedent there is an actual assignment which will require an ad valorem duty. See the following Precedents, in which the duty is either wholly or partially avoided.

to be executed.

other part (Recite partnership, and that account has been settled and retiring partner's share ascertained, as in last Precedent, omitting all reference to the goodwill): NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED between the parties hereto as follows:—

1. THE said A. B. shall, as from the date of these presents, retire from the said business, and the said C. D. and E. F. shall henceforth carry on the same in partnership in equal shares without the said A. B.

2. THE said C. D. and E. F. shall pay to the said A. B. the sum of £—— by four equal half-yearly instalments at the end of six, twelve, eighteen, and twenty-four calendar months respectively, computed from the date of these presents, with interest on the same sum, or the instalments thereof for the time being remaining unpaid, after the rate of £5 per cent. per annum computed from the date of these presents, and shall give and execute to him their joint and several bond for securing the payment of the said sum of £——, by such instalments and with such interest as aforesaid, and also for indemnifying him against the debts and liabilities of the said partnership: And the said A. B. shall accept the said sum of £—— to be secured as aforesaid in full satisfaction of all his share and interest in the stock-in-trade, credits, and effects of the said partnership.

3. INASMUCH (b) as in estimating the sum to be paid as aforesaid nothing was added in respect of the goodwill of the business, the said A. B. shall be at liberty to carry on the like or any other business wherever he may think fit.

4. BESIDES the said bond a proper deed shall be executed between the parties hereto for the purpose of carrying into effect this agreement if and so far as a deed is necessary for that purpose.

As witness, &c.

POWERS OF ATTORNEY.

Definition of a power of attorney and its liability to revocation.

Relaxation of rule by statute.

Trustees, &c., making payments, &c., under power of attorney, without notice of revocation by death or otherwise, indemnified.

A POWER of attorney is an authority given in due form of law by one person to another to act for him. By common law, a power of attorney is revocable by the grantor at any time, unless given for a valuable consideration (a), and it determines on his death (b). But this rule has been relaxed by recent statutes. Thus by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, sect. 26, it is provided as follows:—

No trustee, executor, or administrator making any payment, or doing any act bond fide under or in pursuance of any power of attorney, shall be liable for the moneys so paid, or the acts so done, by reason that the person who gave the power of attorney was dead at the time of such payment or act, or had done some act to avoid the power, provided that the fact of the death, or of the doing of such act as last aforesaid, at the time of such payment or act bond fide done as aforesaid by such trustee, executor, or administrator, was not known to him: provided always that nothing herein contained shall in any manner affect or prejudice the right of any person entitled to the money against the person to whom such payment shall have been made, but that such person so entitled shall have the same remedy against such person to whom such payment shall be made, as he would have had against the trustee, executor, or administrator if the money had not been paid away under such power of attorney.

(a) Walsh v. Whitcomb, 2 Esp. Ca. 565; Smart v. Sandars, 5 Com. Bench, 916.

(b) Watson v. King, 4 Chamb. 272; Wallace v. Cook, 5 Esp. Ca. 117.

And by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, sect. 47, as follows:—

- (1.) Any person making or doing any payment or act, in good faith, in pursuance of a power of attorney, shall not be liable in respect of the payment or act by reason that before the payment or act the donor of the power had died or become lunatic, of unsound mind, or bankrupt, or had revoked the power, if the fact of death, lunacy, unsoundness of mind, bankruptcy, or revocation was not at the time of the payment or act known to the person making or doing the same.
- (2.) But this section shall not affect any right against the payee of any person interested in any money so paid; and that person shall have the like remedy against the payee as he would have had against the payer if the payment had not been made by him.
- (3.) This section applies only to payments made and acts done after the commencement of this Act.

Same indemnity extended to persons acting under powers generally.

And by the Conveyancing Act, 1882, as follows:—

- Sect. 8.—(1.) If a power of attorney, given for valuable consideration, is in the instrument creating the power expressed to be irrevocable, then, in favour of a purchaser,—
- (i.) The power shall not be revoked at any time, either by anything done by the donor of the power without the concurrence of the donee of the power, or by the death, marriage, lunacy, unsoundness of mind, or bankruptcy of the donor of the power; and
 - (ii.) Any act done at any time by the donee of the power, in pursuance of the power, shall be as valid as if anything done by the donor of the power without the concurrence of the donee of the power, or the death, marriage, lunacy, unsoundness of mind, or bankruptcy of the donor of the power, had not been done or happened; and
 - (iii.) Neither the donee of the power nor the purchaser shall at any time be prejudicially affected by notice of anything done by the donor of the power, without the concurrence of the donee of the power, or of the death, marriage, lunacy, unsoundness of mind, or bankruptcy of the donor of the power.

Effect of power of attorney, for value, made absolutely irrevocable.

- (2.) This section applies only to powers of attorney created by instruments executed after the commencement of this Act.

Effect of power of attorney, for value or not, made irrevocable for fixed time.

Sect. 9.—(1.) If a power of attorney, whether given for valuable consideration or not, is in the instrument creating the power expressed to be irrevocable for a fixed time therein specified, not exceeding one year from the date of the instrument, then, in favour of a purchaser,—

- (i.) The power shall not be revoked, for and during that fixed time, either by anything done by the donor of the power without the concurrence of the donee of the power, or by the death, marriage, lunacy, unsoundness of mind, or bankruptcy of the donor of the power; and
 - (ii.) Any act done within that fixed time by the donee of the power, in pursuance of the power, shall be as valid as if anything done by the donor of the power without the concurrence of the donee of the power, or the death, marriage, lunacy, unsoundness of mind, or bankruptcy of the donor of the power, had not been done or happened; and
 - (iii.) Neither the donee of the power nor the purchaser shall at any time be prejudicially affected by notice either during or after that fixed time of anything done by the donor of the power during that fixed time, without the concurrence of the donee of the power, or of the death, marriage, lunacy, unsoundness of mind, or bankruptcy of the donor of the power within that fixed time.
- (2.) This section applies only to powers of attorney created by instruments executed after the commencement of this Act.

Whether donee should execute power in name of principal.

It was formerly necessary that an attorney should execute his power in the name of the principal, and this is still the more correct and proper form to observe.

It is, however, provided by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, sect. 46, as follows:—

The donee of a power of attorney may, if he thinks fit, execute or do any assurance, instrument or thing in and with his own name and signature and his own seal, where sealing is required, by the authority of the donor of the power, and every assurance, instrument, and thing so executed and done shall be as effectual in law, to all intents, as if it had been executed or done by the donee of the power in the name and with the signature and seal of the donor thereof.

Instruments containing powers of attorney may be deposited in the central office of the Supreme Court, and office copies of instruments so deposited are sufficient evidence of their contents (a).

WARRANT of ATTORNEY to confess JUDGMENT (a).

To E. F., of, &c., and G. H., of, &c., Solicitors of Her Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature, jointly and severally, or to any other solicitor of the same Court. THESE ARE TO DESIRE AND AUTHORISE you the solicitors above named, or either of you, or any other solicitor of the said Court, to appear for me, A. B., of, &c., in the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division), in an action of debt for £—— for money lent, at the suit of C. D., of, &c., and thereupon to confess the said action; or suffer a judgment to pass against me in the same action, and to be thereupon forthwith entered up against me of record of the same Court for the sum of £—— and costs of suit: And I, the said A. B., hereby further authorise and empower you or any one of you, after the said judgment shall be entered up as aforesaid, for me and in my name, and as my act and deed, to sign, seal, and execute a good and sufficient release in the law to the said C. D., of all and all manner of errors, defects, and imperfections whatsoever, had, made, committed, done, or suffered, or to be had, made, committed, done, or suffered in, about, or concerning the aforesaid judgment, or the proceedings relating thereto: And whatsoever you, or any one of you, shall do or cause to be done in the premises, or any of them,

(a) A warrant of attorney to confess and enter up a judgment given as security for the payment or repayment of money, or for the transfer or re-transfer of stock, is liable to the same stamp duty as a mortgage for the same purpose. A warrant of attorney of any other kind is liable to a stamp duty of 10s. (33 & 34 Vict. c. 97.)

this shall be to you and to every of you a sufficient warrant or authority.

WARRANT OF ATTORNEY TO JUDGMENT.

IN WITNESS whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the — day of —, in the year of our Lord 18—.

A. B.

SIGNED, sealed, and delivered by the said A. B. in the presence of L. M., of —, in the county of —, one of the solicitors of Her Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature, expressly named by the said A. B. as his solicitor, and attending at his request to inform him of the nature and effect of the above instrument; and I, the said L. M., declare that I have informed the said A. B. of the nature and effect of the said instrument before his execution thereof, and that as his solicitor I subscribe my name as a witness to the due execution hereof (b).

L. M. [Signature of defendant's solicitor.]

(b) By the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), it is provided that a warrant of attorney to confess judgment in any personal action or cognovit actionem given by any person shall not be of any force unless there shall be present some attorney of one of the superior courts on behalf of such person expressly named by him, and attending at his request to inform him of the nature and effect of such warrant or cognovit before the same is executed; which attorney shall subscribe his name as a witness to the due execution thereof, and thereby declare himself to be attorney for the person executing the same, and state that he subscribes as such attorney (sect. 24); and a warrant of attorney not executed in manner aforesaid shall not be rendered valid by proof that the person executing the same did in fact understand the nature and effect thereof, or was fully informed of the same (sect. 25). And sect. 26 provides that where in an action a warrant of attorney to confess judgment is given, and the same, or a true copy thereof, is not filed in the Queen's Bench within twenty-one days after the execution thereof, as required by 3 Geo. 4, cap. 39, the same shall be deemed fraudulent and void, and if any such warrant of attorney was given subject to any defeazance or condition, such defeazance or condition shall be written on the same paper or parchment with the warrant before the filing thereof, otherwise the warrant shall be void. The above enactments are substituted for similar clauses in Acts of Parliament repealed by the Act 32 & 33 Vict. c. 83.

By the Judicature Act, 1873, sect. 87, all persons admitted as solicitors, attorneys, or proctors are to be called solicitors of the Supreme Court of Judicature.

No. II.

DEFEAZANCE
ON WARRANT OF ATTORNEY.

DEFEAZANCE to be indorsed on the WARRANT of ATTORNEY contained in the LAST PRECEDENT, given to secure the payment of £—— and Interest.

Recite mortgage of policy to secure £—— and interest.

WHEREAS by an indenture bearing even date with the within-written warrant of attorney, and made between (parties), in consideration of the sum of £1,000 paid by the said C. D. to the said A. B. the said A. B. has assigned a policy of assurance on his life for the sum of £——, effected in the ——— Assurance Office, and numbered ———, and the moneys thereby assured, unto the said C. D., by way of security for the payment of the sum of £1,000, with interest for the same after the rate of £5 per cent. per annum, on the ——— day of ——— next: AND the indenture now in recital contains covenants by the said A. B. for the payment of the said sum of £1,000, and the interest thereof, and to keep on foot the said policy, and to effect a new policy in case the subsisting policy shall become void, and to repay to the said C. D., his executors, administrators, or assigns, all moneys (if any) paid by him or them in or about the keeping on foot the said policy or in effecting or keeping on foot any such new policy as aforesaid: NOW BE IT REMEMBERED, that the within-written warrant of attorney is given as a collateral security for the payment of the principal money and interest secured by the said indenture: AND it is hereby declared that no execution shall be issued or taken out upon the judgment or judgments to be confessed in pursuance or by virtue of the said warrant of attorney, unless and until default shall be made in payment of the principal money and interest secured by the said indenture, or some part thereof respectively, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said indenture: AND that in case default shall be made in payment of the said principal money and interest, or any part thereof respectively, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said indenture, then and in such case it shall be lawful for the said C. D., his executors, administrators, or assigns, to sue out such execution or executions, or other process, upon or by virtue of the said judgment or judgments, or any of them, as he or they shall think fit or be advised for the recovery of such principal money and interest respectively, and all costs, charges, and expenses which he or they shall sustain or be put unto by reason of the non-payment of such principal money and interest respectively, or any part thereof: AND also that after the full payment to the said C. D., his executors, administrators, or assigns, of the said principal money and interest, and of all such costs, charges, and expenses, as aforesaid, he the said C. D., his executors, administrators, or assigns shall and will on the request and at the cost and charges of the said A. B., his heirs, executors, or administrators, acknowledge satisfaction of the said judgment or judgments upon the record or records thereof, in due form of law, and do all further or other acts, matters, or things which may be reasonably required for releasing and extinguishing all right and remedy upon the said judgment or judgments, and all executions thereupon respectively.

Defeazance.

SETTLED LAND ACT, 1882.

45 & 46 VICT. c. 38.

An Act for facilitating Sales, Leases, and other dispositions of Settled Land, and for promoting the execution of Improvements thereon. 45 & 46 VICT.
c. 38.
[10 August, 1882.]

BE it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :

I.—PRELIMINARY.

PRELIMINARY.

1.—(1.) This Act may be cited as the Settled Land Act, 1882. Short title;

(2.) This Act, except where it is otherwise expressed, shall commence and take effect from and immediately after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two, which time is in this Act referred to as the commencement of this Act. commencement;

(3.) This Act does not extend to Scotland. extent.

II.—DEFINITIONS.

DEFINITIONS.

2.—(1.) Any deed, will, agreement for a settlement, or other agreement, covenant to surrender, copy of court roll, Act of Parliament, or other instrument, or any number of instruments, whether made or passed before or after, or partly before and partly after, the commencement of this Act, under or by virtue of which instrument or instruments any land, or any estate or interest in land, stands for the time being limited to or in trust for any persons by way of succession, creates or is for purposes

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

of this Act a settlement, and is in this Act referred to as a settlement, or as the settlement, as the case requires.

(2.) An estate or interest in remainder or reversion not disposed of by a settlement, and reverting to the settlor or descending to the testator's heir, is for purposes of this Act an estate or interest coming to the settlor or heir under or by virtue of the settlement, and comprised in the subject of the settlement.

(3.) Land, and any estate or interest therein, which is the subject of a settlement, is for purposes of this Act settled land, and is, in relation to the settlement, referred to in this Act as the settled land.

(4.) The determination of the question whether land is settled land, for purposes of this Act, or not, is governed by the state of facts, and the limitations of the settlement, at the time of the settlement taking effect.

(5.) The person who is for the time being, under a settlement, beneficially entitled to possession of settled land, for his life, is for purposes of this Act the tenant for life of that land, and the tenant for life under that settlement.

(6.) If, in any case, there are two or more persons so entitled as tenants in common, or as joint tenants, or for other concurrent estates or interests, they together constitute the tenant for life for purposes of this Act.

(7.) A person being tenant for life within the foregoing definitions shall be deemed to be such notwithstanding that, under the settlement or otherwise, the settled land, or his estate or interest therein, is incumbered or charged in any manner or to any extent.

(8.) The persons, if any, who are for the time being, under a settlement, trustees with power of sale of settled land, or with power of consent to or approval of the exercise of such a power of sale, or if under a settlement there are no such trustees, then the persons, if any, for the time being, who are by the settlement declared to be trustees thereof for purposes of this Act, are for purposes of this Act trustees of the settlement.

(9.) Capital money arising under this Act, and receivable for the trusts and purposes of the settlement, is in this Act referred to as capital money arising under this Act.

(10.) In this Act—

(i.) Land includes incorporeal hereditaments, also an undivided share in land ; income includes rents and profits ; and possession includes receipt of income :

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

(ii.) Rent includes yearly or other rent, and toll, duty, royalty, or other reservation, by the acre, or the ton, or otherwise ; and, in relation to rent, payment includes delivery ; and fine includes premium or fore-gift, and any payment, consideration, or benefit in the nature of a fine, premium, or fore-gift :

(iii.) Building purposes include the erecting and the improving of, and the adding to and the repairing of, buildings ; and a building lease is a lease for any building purposes or purposes connected therewith :

(iv.) Mines and minerals mean mines and minerals whether already opened or in work or not, and include all minerals and substances in, on, or under the land, obtainable by underground or by surface working ; and mining purposes include the sinking and searching for, winning, working, getting, making merchantable, smelting or otherwise converting or working for the purposes of any manufacture, carrying away, and disposing of mines and minerals, in or under the settled land, or any other land, and the erection of buildings, and the execution of engineering and other works, suitable for those purposes ; and a mining lease is a lease for any mining purposes or purposes connected therewith, and includes a grant or licence for any mining purposes :

(v.) Manor includes lordship, and reputed manor or lordship :

(vi.) Steward includes deputy steward, or other proper officer, of a manor :

(vii.) Will includes codicil, and other testamentary instrument, and a writing in the nature of a will :

Powers to
tenant for life
to sell, &c.*

III.—SALE; ENFRANCHISEMENT; EXCHANGE; PARTITION.

General Powers and Regulations.

3. A tenant for life—

- (i.) May sell the settled land, or any part thereof, or any easement, right, or privilege of any kind, over or in relation to the same; and
- (ii.) Where the settlement comprises a manor—may sell the seignory of any freehold land within the manor, or the freehold and inheritance of any copyhold or customary land, parcel of the manor, with or without any exception or reservation of all or any mines or minerals, or of any rights or powers relative to mining purposes, so as in every such case to effect an enfranchisement; and
- (iii.) May make an exchange of the settled land, or any part thereof, for other land, including an exchange in consideration of money paid for equality of exchange; and
- (iv.) Where the settlement comprises an undivided share in land, or, under the settlement, the settled land has come to be held in undivided shares—may concur in making partition of the entirety, including a partition in consideration of money paid for equality of partition.

*Regulations
respecting sale, enfranchise-ment, exchange, and partition.*

4.—(1.) Every sale shall be made at the best price that can reasonably be obtained.

(2.) Every exchange and every partition shall be made for the best consideration in land or in land and money that can reasonably be obtained.

(3.) A sale may be made in one lot or in several lots, and either by auction or by private contract.

(4.) On a sale, the tenant for life may fix reserve biddings and buy in at an auction.

(5.) A sale, exchange, or partition may be made subject to any stipulations respecting title, or evidence of title, or other things.

(6.) On a sale, exchange, or partition, any restriction or reservation with respect to building on or other user of land, or with respect to mines and minerals, or with respect to or for the purpose of the more beneficial working thereof, or with respect to any other thing, may be imposed or reserved and made binding, as far as the law permits, by covenant, condition, or otherwise, on the tenant for life and the settled land, or any part thereof, or on the other party and any land sold or given in exchange or on partition to him.

General Powers and Regulations.

(7.) An enfranchisement may be made with or without a regrant of any right of common or other right, easement, or privilege theretofore appendant or appurtenant to or held or enjoyed with the land enfranchised, or reputed so to be.

(8.) Settled land in England shall not be given in exchange for land out of England.

Special Powers.

Special Powers.

5. Where on a sale, exchange, or partition there is an incumbrance affecting land sold or given in exchange or on partition, the tenant for life, with the consent of the incumbrancer, may charge that incumbrance on any other part of the settled land, whether already charged therewith or not, in exoneration of the part sold or so given, and, by conveyance of the fee simple, or other estate or interest the subject of the settlement, or by creation of a term of years in the settled land, or otherwise, make provision accordingly.

7.—(1.) Every lease shall be by deed, and be made to take effect in possession not later than twelve months after its date.

(2.) Every lease shall reserve the best rent that can reasonably be obtained, regard being had to any fine taken, and to any money laid out or to be laid out for the benefit of the settled land, and generally to the circumstances of the case.

(3.) Every lease shall contain a covenant by the lessee for payment of the rent, and a condition of re-entry on the rent not being paid within a time therein specified, not exceeding thirty days.

(4.) A counterpart of every lease shall be executed by the lessee and delivered to the tenant for life; of which execution and delivery the execution of the lease by the tenant for life shall be sufficient evidence.

(5.) A statement, contained in a lease or in an indorsement thereon, signed by the tenant for life, respecting any matter of fact or of calculation under this Act in relation to the lease, shall, in favour of the lessee and of those claiming under him, be sufficient evidence of the matter stated.

Building and Mining Leases.

8.—(1.) Every building lease shall be made partly in consideration of the lessee, or some person by whose direction the lease is granted, or some other person, having erected, or agreeing to erect, buildings, new or additional, or having improved or repaired, or agreeing to improve or repair, buildings, or having executed, or agreeing to execute, on the land leased, an improvement authorized by this Act, for or in connexion with building purposes.

(2.) A peppercorn rent, or a nominal or other rent less than the rent ultimately payable, may be made payable for the first five years or any less part of the term.

(3.) Where the land is contracted to be leased in lots, the entire amount of rent to be ultimately payable may be apportioned among the lots in any manner; save that—

(i.) The annual rent reserved by any lease shall not be less than ten shillings; and

(ii.) The total amount of the rents reserved on all leases for the time being granted shall not be less than the total amount of the rents which, in order that the leases may be in conformity with this Act, ought to be reserved in respect of the whole land for the time being leased; and

- (i.) The rent may be made to be ascertainable by or to vary according to the acreage worked, or by or according to the quantities of any mineral or substance gotten, made merchantable, converted, carried away, or disposed of, in or from the settled land, or any other land, or by or according to any facilities given in that behalf; and
- (ii.) A fixed or minimum rent may be made payable, with or without power for the lessee, in case the rent, according to acreage or quantity, in any specified period does not produce an amount equal to the fixed or minimum rent, to make up the deficiency in any subsequent specified period, free of rent other than the fixed or minimum rent.

(2.) A lease may be made partly in consideration of the lessee having executed, or his agreeing to execute, on the land leased, an improvement authorized by this Act, for or in connexion with mining purposes.

10.—(1.) Where it is shewn to the Court with respect to the district in which any settled land is situate, either—

11. Under a mining lease, whether the mines or minerals leased are already opened or in work or not, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the settlement, there shall be from time to time set aside, as capital money arising under this Act, part of the rent as follows, namely—where the tenant for life is impeachable for waste in respect of minerals, three fourth parts of the rent, and otherwise one fourth part thereof, and in every such case the residue of the rent shall go as rents and profits.

Powers.*

Special Powers.

Leasing powers for special objects.

12. The leasing power of a tenant for life extends to the making of—

- (i.) A lease for giving effect to a contract entered into by any of his predecessors in title for making a lease, which, if made by the predecessor, would have been binding on the successors in title; and
- (ii.) A lease for giving effect to a covenant of renewal, performance whereof could be enforced against the owner for the time being of the settled land; and
- (iii.) A lease for confirming, as far as may be, a previous lease, being void or voidable; but so that every lease, as and when confirmed, shall be such a lease as might at the date of the original lease have been lawfully granted, under this Act, or otherwise, as the case may require.

*Surrenders.*45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.*Surrenders.*Surrenders and 13.—(1.) A tenant for life may accept, with or without consideration, a surrender of any lease of settled land, whether made under this Act or not, in respect of the whole land leased, or any part thereof, with or without an exception of all or any of the mines and minerals therein, or in respect of mines and minerals, or any of them.

(2.) On a surrender of a lease in respect of part only of the land or mines and minerals leased, the rent may be apportioned.

(3.) On a surrender, the tenant for life may make of the land or mines and minerals surrendered, or of any part thereof, a new or other lease, or new or other leases in lots.

(4.) A new or other lease may comprise additional land or mines and minerals, and may reserve any apportioned or other rent.

(5.) On a surrender, and the making of a new or other lease, whether for the same or for any extended or other term, and whether or not subject to the same or to any other covenants, provisions, or conditions, the value of the lessee's interest in the lease surrendered may be taken into account in the determination of the amount of the rent to be reserved, and of any fine to be taken, and of the nature of the covenants, provisions, and conditions to be inserted in the new or other lease.

(6.) Every new or other lease shall be in conformity with this Act.

Copyholds.Copyholds.

14.—(1.) A tenant for life may grant to a tenant of copyhold or customary land, parcel of a manor comprised in the settlement, a licence to make any such lease of that land, or of a specified part thereof, as the tenant for life is by this Act empowered to make of freehold land.

Streets and Open Spaces.

16. On or in connexion with a sale or grant for building purposes, or a building lease, the tenant for life, for the general benefit of the residents on the settled land, or on any part thereof—

- (i.) May cause or require any parts of the settled land to be appropriated and laid out for streets, roads, paths, squares, gardens, or other open spaces, for the use, gratuitously or on payment, of the public or of individuals, with sewers, drains, watercourses, fencing, paving, or other works necessary or proper in connexion therewith; and
- (ii.) May provide that the parts so appropriated shall be conveyed to or vested in the trustees of the settlement, or other trustees, or any company or public body, on trusts or subject to provisions for securing the continued appropriation thereof to the purposes aforesaid, and the continued repair or maintenance of streets and other places and works aforesaid, with or without provision for appointment of new trustees when required; and
- (iii.) May execute any general or other deed necessary or proper for giving effect to the provisions of this section (which deed may be inrolled in the Central Office of the Supreme Court of Judicature), and thereby declare the mode, terms, and conditions of the appropriation, and the manner in which and the persons by whom the benefit thereof is to be enjoyed, and the nature and extent of the privileges and conveniences granted.

*Surface and Minerals apart.*45 & 46 VICT.
c. 38.Surface and Minerals apart.

17.—(1.) A sale, exchange, partition, or mining lease, may be made either of land, with or without an exception or reservation of all or any of the mines and minerals therein, or of any mines and minerals, and in any such case with or without a grant or reservation of powers of working, wayleaves or rights of way, rights of water or drainage, and other powers, easements, rights, and privileges for or incident to or connected with mining purposes, in relation to the settled land, or any part thereof, or any other land.

Separate dealing with surface and minerals with or without wayleaves, &c.

(2.) An exchange or partition may be made subject to and in consideration of the reservation of an undivided share in mines or minerals.

Mortgage.Mortgage.

18. Where money is required for enfranchisement, or for equality of exchange or partition, the tenant for life may raise the same on mortgage of the settled land, or of any part thereof, by conveyance of the fee simple, or other estate or interest the subject of the settlement, or by creation of a term of years in the settled land, or otherwise, and the money raised shall be capital money arising under this Act.

Mortgage for equality money, &c.

Undivided Share.Undivided Share.

19. Where the settled land comprises an undivided share in land, or, under the settlement, the settled land has come to be held in undivided shares, the tenant for life of an undivided share may join or concur, in any manner and to any extent necessary or proper for any purpose of this Act, with any person entitled to or having power or right of disposition of or over another undivided share.

Concurrence in exercise of powers as to undivided share.

Conveyance.Conveyance.

(2.) Such a deed, to the extent and in the manner to and in which it is expressed or intended to operate and can operate under this Act, is effectual to pass the land conveyed, or the easements, rights, or privileges created, discharged from all the limitations, powers, and provisions of the settlement, and from all estates, interests, and charges subsisting or to arise thereunder, but subject to and with the exception of—

(i.) All estates, interests, and charges having priority to the settlement; and

(ii.) All such other, if any, estates, interests, and charges as have been conveyed or created for securing money actually raised at the date of the deed; and

(iii.) All leases and grants at fee-farm rents or otherwise, and all grants of easements, rights of common, or other rights or privileges granted or made for value in money or money's worth, or agreed so to be, before the date of the deed, by the tenant for life, or by any of his predecessors in title, or by any trustees for him of them, under the settlement, or under any statutory power, or being otherwise binding on the successors in title of the tenant for life.

(3.) In case of a deed relating to copyhold or customary land, it is sufficient that the deed be entered on the court rolls of the manor, and the steward is hereby required on production to him of the deed to make the proper entry; and on that production, and on payment of customary fines, fees, and other dues or payments, any person whose title under the deed requires to be perfected by admittance shall be admitted accordingly; but if the steward so requires, there shall also be produced to him so much of the settlement as may be necessary to show the title of the person executing the deed; and the same may, if the steward thinks fit, be also entered on the court rolls.

TRUST MONEY.

21. Capital money arising under this Act, subject to payment of claims properly payable thereout, and to application thereof for any special authorized object for which the same was raised, shall, when received, be invested or otherwise applied wholly in one, or partly in one and partly in another or others, of the following modes (namely):

Capital money under Act;
investment,
&c. by trustees or Court.

- (i.) In investment on Government securities, or on other securities on which the trustees of the settlement are by the settlement or by law authorized to invest trust money of the settlement, or on the security of the bonds, mortgages, or debentures, or in the purchase of the debenture stock, of any railway company in Great Britain or Ireland incorporated by special Act of Parliament, and having for ten years next before the date of the investment paid a dividend on its ordinary stock or shares, with power to vary the investment into or for any other such securities:
- (ii.) In discharge, purchase, or redemption of incumbrances affecting the inheritance of the settled land, or other the whole estate the subject of the settlement, or of land-tax, rent-charge in lieu of tithe, Crown rent, chief tent, or quit rent, charged on or payable out of the settled land:
- (iii.) In payment for any improvement authorized by this Act:
- (iv.) In payment of equality for exchange or partition of settled land:
- (v.) In purchase of the seignory of any part of the settled land, being freehold land, or in purchase of the fee simple of any part of the settled land, being copyhold or customary land:
- (vi.) In purchase of the reversion or freehold in fee of any part of the settled land, being leasehold land held for years, or life, or years determinable on life:
- (vii.) In purchase of land in fee simple, or of copyhold or customary land, or of leasehold land held for sixty years or more unexpired at the time of purchase, subject or not to any exception or reservation of or in respect of mines or minerals therein, or of or in respects of rights or powers relative to the working of mines or minerals therein, or in other land :

- (viii.) In purchase, either in fee simple, or for a term of sixty years or more, of mines and minerals convenient to be held or worked with the settled land, or of any easement, right, or privilege convenient to be held with the settled land for mining or other purposes :
- (ix.) In payment to any person becoming absolutely entitled or empowered to give an absolute discharge :
- (x.) In payment of costs, charges, and expenses of or incidental to the exercise of any of the powers, or the execution of any of the provisions of this Act :
- (xi.) In any other mode in which money produced by the exercise of a power of sale in the settlement is applicable thereunder.

Regulations
respecting investment, devolution and income of securities, &c.

22.—(1.) Capital money arising under this Act shall, in order to its being invested or applied as aforesaid, be paid either to the trustees of the settlement or into Court, at the option of the tenant for life, and shall be invested or applied by the trustees, or under the direction of the Court, as the case may be, accordingly.

(2.) The investment or other application by the trustee shall be made according to the direction of the tenant for life, and in default thereof, according to the discretion of the trustees, but in the last-mentioned case subject to any consent required or direction given by the settlement with respect to the investment or other application by the trustees of trust money of the settlement ; and any investment shall be in the names or under the control of the trustees.

(3.) The investment or other application under the direction of the Court shall be made on the application of the tenant for life, or of the trustees.

(4.) Any investment or other application shall not during the life of the tenant for life be altered without his consent.

(5.) Capital money arising under this Act while remaining uninvested or unapplied, and securities on which an investment of any such capital money is made, shall, for all purposes of disposition, transmission, and devolution, be considered as land, and the same shall be held for and go to the same persons successively, in the same manner and for and on the same estates, interests, and trusts, as the land wherefrom the money arises would, if not disposed of, have been held and have gone under the settlement.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

(6.) The income of those securities shall be paid or applied as the income of that land, if not disposed of, would have been payable or applicable under the settlement.

(7.) Those securities may be converted into money, which shall be capital money arising under this Act.

23. Capital money arising under this Act from settled land in England shall not be applied in the purchase of land out of England, unless the settlement expressly authorizes the same.

Investment in land in England.

24.—(1.) Land acquired by purchase or in exchange, or on partition, shall be made subject to the settlement in manner directed in this section.

Settlement of land purchased, taken in exchange,
&c.

(2.) Freehold land shall be conveyed to the uses, on the trusts, and subject to the powers and provisions which, under the settlement, or by reason of the exercise of any power of charging therein contained, are subsisting with respect to the settled land, or as near thereto as circumstances permit, but not so as to increase or multiply charges or powers of charging.

(3.) Copyhold, customary, or leasehold land shall be conveyed to and vested in the trustees of the settlement on trusts and subject to powers and provisions corresponding, as nearly as the law and circumstances permit, with the uses, trusts, powers, and provisions to, on and subject to which freehold land is to be conveyed as aforesaid; so nevertheless that the beneficial interest in land held by lease for years shall not vest absolutely in a person who is by the settlement made by purchase tenant in tail, or in tail male, or in tail female, and who dies under the age of twenty-one years, but shall, on the death of that person under that age, go as freehold land conveyed as aforesaid would go.

(4.) Land acquired as aforesaid may be made a substituted security for any charge in respect of money actually raised, and remaining unpaid, from which the settled land, or any part thereof, or any undivided share therein, has theretofore been released on the occasion and in order to the completion of a sale, exchange, or partition.

(5.) Where a charge does not affect the whole of the settled land, then the land acquired shall not be subjected thereto, unless the land is acquired either by purchase with money arising from sale of land which was before the sale subject to the charge, or by an exchange or partition of land which, or an undivided share wherein, was before the exchange or partition subject to the charge.

(6.) On land being so acquired, any person who, by the direction of the tenant for life, so conveys the land as to subject it to any charge, is not concerned to inquire whether or not it is proper that the land should be subjected to the charge.

(7.) The provisions of this section referring to land extend and apply, as far as may be, to mines and minerals, and to easements, rights, and privileges over and in relation to land.

Approval by Land Commissioners of scheme for improvement and payment thereon.

26.—(1.) Where the tenant for life is desirous that capital money arising under this Act shall be applied in or towards payment for an improvement authorized by this Act, he may submit for approval to the trustees of the settlement, or to the Court, as the case may require, a scheme for the execution of the improvement, showing the proposed expenditure thereon.

(2.) Where the capital money to be expended is in the hands of trustees, then, after a scheme is approved by them, the trustees may apply that money in or towards payment for the whole or part of any work or operation comprised in the improvement, on—

(i.) A certificate of the Land Commissioners certifying that the work or operation, or some specified part thereof, has been properly executed, and what amount is properly payable by the trustees in respect thereof, which certificate shall be conclusive in favour of the trustees as an authority and discharge for any payment made by them in pursuance thereof; or on

(ii.) A like certificate of a competent engineer or able practical surveyor nominated by the trustees and approved by the Commissioners, or by the Court, which certificate shall be conclusive as aforesaid; or on

(iii.) An order of the Court directing or authorizing the trustees to so apply a specified portion of the capital money.

(3.) Where the capital money to be expended is in Court, then, after a scheme is approved by the Court, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on a report or certificate of the Commissioners, or of a competent engineer or able practical surveyor, approved by the Court, or on such other evidence as the Court thinks sufficient, make such order and give such directions as it thinks fit for the application of that money, or any part thereof, in or towards payment for the whole or part of any work or operation comprised in the improvement.

Concurrence in improvements.

27. The tenant for life may join or concur with any other person interested in executing any improvement authorized by this Act, or in contributing to the cost thereof.

Obligation on tenant for life
and successors

28.—(1.) The tenant for life, and each of his successors in title having, under the settlement, a limited estate or interest only in the settled land, shall, during such period, if any, as the Land Commissioners by certificate in any case prescribe, maintain and repair, at his own expense, every improvement executed under the foregoing provisions of this Act, and where a building or work in its nature insurable against damage by fire is comprised in the improvement, shall insure and keep insured the same, at his own expense, in such amount, if any, as the Commissioners by certificate in any case prescribe.

(2.) The tenant for life, or any of his successors as aforesaid, shall not cut down or knowingly permit to be cut down, except in proper thinning, any trees planted as an improvement under the foregoing provisions of this Act.

(3.) The tenant for life, and each of his successors as aforesaid, shall from time to time, if required by the Commissioners, on or without the suggestion of any person having, under the settlement, any estate or interest in the settled land in possession, remainder, or otherwise, report to the Commissioners the state of every improvement executed under this Act, and the fact and particulars of fire insurance, if any.

(4.) The Commissioners may vary any certificate made by them under this section, in such manner or to such extent as circumstances appear to them to require, but not so as to increase the liabilities of the tenant for life, or any of his successors as aforesaid.

(5.) If the tenant for life, or any of his successors as aforesaid, fails in any respect to comply with the requisitions of this section, or does any act in contravention thereof, any person having, under the settlement, any estate or interest in the settled land in possession, remainder, or reversion, shall have a right of action, in respect of that default or act, against the tenant for life; and the estate of the tenant for life, after his death, shall be liable to make good to the persons entitled under the settlement any damages occasioned by that default or act.

Execution and Repair of Improvements.

Execution and Repair of Improvements.

of Land Act, 1864.*

*Extension of 27 & 28 Vict.
c. 114, s. 9.*

Improvement of Land Act, 1864.

30. The enumeration of improvements contained in section nine of the Improvement of Land Act, 1864, is hereby extended so as to comprise, subject and according to the provisions of that Act, but only as regards applications made to the Land Commissioners after the commencement of this Act, all improvements authorized by this Act.

CONTRACTS.

Power for tenant for life
to enter into contracts.

VIII.—CONTRACTS.

31.—(1.) A tenant for life—

- (i.) May contract to make any sale, exchange, partition, mortgage, or charge; and
- (ii.) May vary or rescind, with or without consideration, the contract, in the like cases and manner in which, if he were absolute owner of the settled land, he might lawfully vary or rescind the same, but so that the contract as varied be in conformity with this Act; and any such consideration, if paid in money, shall be capital money arising under this Act; and
- (iii.) May contract to make any lease; and in making the lease may vary the terms, with or without consideration, but so that the lease be in conformity with this Act; and
- (iv.) May accept a surrender of a contract for a lease, in like manner and on the like terms in and on which he might accept a surrender of a lease; and thereupon may make a new or other contract, or new or other contracts, for or relative to a lease or leases, in like manner and on the like terms in and on which he might make a new or other lease, or new or other leases, where a lease had been granted; and

c. 38.

(v.) May enter into a contract for or relating to the execution of any improvement authorized by this Act, and may vary or rescind the same; and

(vi.) May, in any other case, enter into a contract to do any act for carrying into effect any of the purposes of this Act, and may vary or rescind the same.

(2.) Every contract shall be binding on and shall enure for the benefit of the settled land, and shall be enforceable against and by every successor in title for the time being of the tenant for life, and may be carried into effect by any such successor; but so that it may be varied or rescinded by any such successor, in the like case and manner, if any, as if it had been made by himself.

(3.) The Court may, on the application of the tenant for life, or of any such successor, or of any person interested in any contract, give directions respecting the enforcing, carrying into effect, varying, or rescinding thereof.

(4.) Any preliminary contract under this Act for or relating to a lease shall not form part of the title or evidence of the title of any person to the lease, or to the benefit thereof.

IX.—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

32. Where, under an Act incorporating or applying, wholly or in part, the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts, 1845, 1860, and 1869, or under the Settled Estates Act, 1877, or under any other Act, public, local, personal, or private, money is at the commencement of this Act in Court, or is afterwards paid into Court, and is liable to be laid out in the purchase of land to be made subject to a settlement, then, in addition to any mode of dealing therewith authorized by the Act under which the money is in Court, that money may be invested or applied as capital money arising under this Act, on the like terms, if any, respecting costs and other things, as nearly as circumstances admit, and (notwithstanding anything in this Act) according to the same procedure, as if the modes of investment or application authorized by this Act were authorized by the Act under which the money is in Court.

Application of money in hands of trustees under powers of settlement.

33. Where, under a settlement, money is in the hands of trustees, and is liable to be laid out in the purchase of land to be made subject to the settlement, then, in addition to such powers of dealing therewith as the trustees have independently of this Act, they may, at the option of the tenant for life, invest or apply the same as capital money arising under this Act.

Application of money paid for lease or reversion.

34. Where capital money arising under this Act is purchase-money paid in respect of a lease for years, or life, or years determinable on life, or in respect of any other estate or interest in land less than the fee simple, or in respect of a reversion dependent on any such lease, estate, or interest, the trustees of the settlement or the Court, as the case may be, and in the case of the Court on the application of any party interested in that money, may, notwithstanding anything in this Act, require and cause the same to be laid out, invested, accumulated, and paid in such manner as, in the judgment of the trustees or of the Court, as the case may be, will give to the parties interested in that money the like benefit therefrom as they might lawfully have had from the lease, estate, interest, or reversion in respect whereof the money was paid, or as near thereto as may be.

Cutting and sale of timber, and part of proceeds to be set aside.

35.—(1.) Where a tenant for life is impeachable for waste in respect of timber, and there is on the settled land timber ripe and fit for cutting, the tenant for life, on obtaining the consent of the trustees of the settlement or an order of the Court, may cut and sell that timber, or any part thereof.

(2.) Three fourth parts of the net proceeds of the sale shall be set aside as and be capital money arising under this Act, and the other fourth part shall go as rents and profits.

Proceedings for protection or recovery of land settled or claimed as settled.

36. The Court may, if it thinks fit, approve of any action, defence, petition to Parliament, parliamentary opposition, or other proceeding taken or proposed to be taken for protection of settled land, or of any action or proceeding taken or proposed to be taken for recovery of land being or alleged to be subject to a settlement, and may direct that any costs, charges, or expenses incurred or to be incurred in relation thereto, or any part thereof, be paid out of property subject to the settlement. 45 & 46 VICT.

c. 38.

37.—(1.) Where personal chattels are settled on trust so as to devolve with land until a tenant in tail by purchase is born or attains the age of twenty-one years, or so as otherwise to vest in some person becoming entitled to an estate of freehold of inheritance in the land, a tenant for life of the land may sell the chattels or any of them. Heirlooms.

(2.) The money arising by the sale shall be capital money arising under this Act, and shall be paid, invested, or applied and otherwise dealt with in like manner in all respects as by this Act directed with respect to other capital money arising under this Act, or may be invested in the purchase of other chattels, of the same or any other nature, which, when purchased, shall be settled and held on the same trusts, and shall devolve in the same manner as the chattels sold.

(3.) A sale or purchase of chattels under this section shall not be made without an order of the Court.

X.—TRUSTEES.

TRUSTEES.

38.—(1.) If at any time there are no trustees of a settlement within the definition in this Act, or where in any other case it is expedient, for purposes of this Act, that new trustees of a settlement be appointed, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the tenant for life or of any other person having, under the settlement, an estate or interest in the settled land, in possession, remainder, or otherwise, or, in the case of an infant, of his testamentary or other guardian, or next friend, appoint fit persons to be trustees under the settlement for purposes of this Act. Appointment of trustees by Court.

(2.) The persons so appointed, and the survivors and survivor of them, while continuing to be trustees or trustee, and, until the appointment of new trustees, the personal representatives or representative for the time being of the last surviving or continuing trustee, shall for purposes of this Act become and be the trustees or trustee of the settlement.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

Number of trustees to act.

39.—(1.) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, capital money arising under this Act shall not be paid to fewer than two persons as trustees of a settlement, unless the settlement authorizes the receipt of capital trust money of the settlement by one trustee.

(2.) Subject thereto, the provisions of this Act referring to the trustees of a settlement apply to the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee of the settlement for the time being.

Trustees'
receipts.

40. The receipt in writing of the trustees of a settlement, or where one trustee is empowered to act, of one trustee, or of the personal representatives or representative of the last surviving or continuing trustee, for any money or securities, paid or transferred to the trustees, trustee, representatives or representative, as the case may be, effectually discharges the payer or transferor therefrom, and from being bound to see to the application, or being answerable for any loss or misapplication thereof, and in case of a mortgagee or other person advancing money, from being concerned to see that any money advanced by him is wanted for any purpose of this Act, or that no more than is wanted is raised.

Protection of
individually.

41. Each person who is for the time being trustee of a settlement is answerable for what he actually receives only, notwithstanding his signing any receipt for conformity, and in respect of his own acts, receipts, and defaults only, and is not answerable in respect of those of any other trustee, or of any banker, broker, or other person, or for the insufficiency or deficiency of any securities, or for any loss not happening through his own wilful default.

Protection of trustees generally.

42. The trustees of a settlement, or any of them, are not liable for giving any consent, or for not making, bringing, taking, or doing any such application, action, proceeding, or thing, as they might make, bring, take, or do; and in case of purchase of land with capital money arising under this Act, or of an exchange, partition, or lease, are not liable for adopting any contract made by the tenant for life, or bound to inquire as to the propriety of the purchase, exchange, partition, or lease, or answerable as regards any price, consideration, or fine, and are not liable to see or to be answerable for the investigation of the title, or answerable for a conveyance of land, if the conveyance purports to convey the land in the proper mode, or liable in respect of purchase-money paid by them by direction of the tenant for life to any person joining in the conveyance as a conveying party, or as giving a receipt for the purchase-money, or in any other character, or in respect of any other money paid by them by direction of the tenant for life on the purchase, exchange, partition, or lease.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

43. The trustees of a settlement may reimburse themselves or pay and discharge out of the trust property all expenses properly incurred by them.

Trustees' reimbursement.

44. If at any time a difference arises between a tenant for life and the trustees of the settlement, respecting the exercise of any of the powers of this Act, or respecting any matter relating thereto, the Court may, on the application of either party, give such directions respecting the matter in difference, and respecting the costs of the application, as the Court thinks fit.

Reference of differences to Court.

45.—(1.) A tenant for life, when intending to make a sale, exchange, partition, lease, mortgage, or charge, shall give notice of his intention in that behalf to each of the trustees of the settlement, by posting registered letters, containing the notice, addressed to the trustees, severally, each at his usual or last known place of abode in the United Kingdom, and shall give like notice to the solicitor for the trustees, if any such solicitor is known to the tenant for life, by posting a registered letter, containing the notice, addressed to the solicitor at his place of business in the United Kingdom, every letter under this section being posted not less than one month before the making by the tenant for life of the sale, exchange, partition, lease, mortgage, or charge, or of a contract for the same.

Notice to
trustees.

(2.) Provided that at the date of notice given the number of trustees shall not be less than two, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the settlement.

(3.) A person dealing in good faith with the tenant for life is not concerned to inquire respecting the giving of any such notice as is required by this section.

MISSIONERS; PROCEDURE.

Regulations
respecting payments into Court, applications, &c.

XI.—COURT ; LAND COMMISSIONERS ; PROCEDURE.

46.—(1.) All matters within the jurisdiction of the Court under this Act shall, subject to the Acts regulating the Court, be assigned to the Chancery Division of the Court.

(2.) Payment of money into Court effectually exonerates therefrom the person making the payment.

(3.) Every application to the Court shall be by petition, or by summons at Chambers.

(4.) On an application by the trustees of a settlement notice shall be served in the first instance on the tenant for life.

(5.) On any application notice shall be served on such persons, if any, as the Court thinks fit.

(6.) The Court shall have full power and discretion to make such order as it thinks fit respecting the costs, charges, or expenses of all or any of the parties to any application, and may, if it thinks fit, order that all or any of those costs, charges, or expenses be paid out of property subject to the settlement.

(7.) General rules for purposes of this Act shall be deemed Rules of Court within section seventeen of the Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876, as altered by section nineteen of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1881, and may be made accordingly (a).

(8.) The powers of the Court may, as regards land in the County Palatine of Lancaster, be also exercised by the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine; and Rules for regulating proceedings in that Court shall be from time to time made by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, with the advice and consent of a Judge of the High Court acting in the Chancery Division, and of the Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine.

(9.) General Rules, and Rules for the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine, may be made at any time after the passing of this Act, to take effect on or after the commencement of this Act.

(10.) The powers of the Court may, as regards land not exceeding in capital value five hundred pounds, or in annual rateable value thirty pounds, and, as regards capital money arising under this Act, and securities in which the same is invested, not exceeding in amount or value five hundred pounds, and as regards personal chattels settled or to be settled, as in this Act mentioned, not exceeding in value five hundred pounds, be exercised by any County Court within the district whereof is situate any part of the land which is to be dealt with in the Court, or from which the capital money to be dealt with in the Court arises under this Act, or in connexion with which the personal chattels to be dealt with in the Court are settled.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

47. Where the Court directs that any costs, charges, or expenses be paid out of property subject to a settlement, the same shall, subject and according to the directions of the Court, be raised and paid out of capital money arising under this Act, or other money liable to be laid out in the purchase of land to be made subject to the settlement, or out of investments representing such money, or out of income of any such money or investments, or out of any accumulations of income of land, money, or investments, or by means of a sale of part of the settled land in respect whereof the costs, charges, or expenses are incurred, or of other settled land comprised in the same settlement and subject to the same limitations, or by means of a mortgage of the settled land or any part thereof, to be made by such person as the Court directs, and either by conveyance of the fee simple or other estate or interest the subject of the settlement, or by creation of a term, or otherwise, or by means of a charge on the settled land or any part thereof, or partly in one of those modes and partly in another or others, or in any such other mode as the Court thinks fit.

Payment of costs out of settled property.

48.—(1.) The commissioners now bearing the three several styles of the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales, and the Copyhold Commissioners, and the Tithe Commissioners for England and Wales, shall, by virtue of this Act, become and shall be styled the Land Commissioners for England.

Constitution of Land Commissioners, their powers, &c.

(2.) The Land Commissioners shall cause one seal to be made with their style as given by this Act; and in the execution and discharge of any power or duty under any Act relating to the three several bodies of commissioners aforesaid, they shall adopt and use the seal and style of the Land Commissioners for England, and no other.

45 & 46 VICT.
c. 38.

(3.) Nothing in the foregoing provisions of this section shall be construed as altering in any respect the powers, authorities, or duties of the Land Commissioners, or as affecting in respect of appointment, salary, pension, or otherwise any of those commissioners in office at the passing of this Act, or any assistant commissioner, secretary, or other officer or person then in office or employed under them.

(4.) All Acts of Parliament, judgments, decrees, or orders of any court, awards, deeds, and other documents, passed or made before the commencement of this Act, shall be read and have effect as if the Land Commissioners were therein mentioned instead of one or more of the three several bodies of commissioners aforesaid.

(5.) All acts, matters, and things commenced by or under the authority of any one or more of the three several bodies of commissioners aforesaid before the commencement of this Act, and not then completed, shall and may be carried on and completed by or under the authority of the Land Commissioners, and the Land Commissioners, for the purpose of prosecuting, or defending, and carrying on any action, suit, or proceeding, pending at the commencement of this Act, shall come into the place of any one or more, as the case may require, of the three several bodies of commissioners aforesaid.

(6.) The Land Commissioners shall, by virtue of this Act, have, for the purposes of any Act, public, local, personal, or private, passed or to be passed, making provision for the execution of improvements on settled land, all such powers and authorities as they have for the purposes of the Improvement of Land Act, 1864; and the provisions of the last-mentioned Act relating to their proceedings and inquiries, and to authentication of instruments, and to declarations, statements, notices, applications, forms, security for expenses, inspections, and examinations, shall extend and apply, as far as the nature and circumstances of the case admit, to acts and proceedings done or taken by or in relation to the Land Commissioners under any Act making provision as last aforesaid; and the provisions of any Act relating to fees or to security for costs to be taken in respect of the business transacted under the Acts administered by the three several bodies of commissioners aforesaid shall extend and apply to the business transacted by or under the direction of the Land Commissioners under any Act, public, local, personal, or private, passed or to be passed, by which any power or duty is conferred or imposed on them.

45 & 46 VICT.
c. 38.

49.—(1.) Every certificate and report approved and made by the Land Commissioners under this Act shall be filed in their office.

Filing of certificates, &c. of Commissioners.

(2.) An office copy of any certificate or report so filed shall be delivered out of their office to any person requiring the same, on payment of the proper fee, and shall be sufficient evidence of the certificate or report whereof it purports to be a copy.

XII.—RESTRICTIONS, SAVINGS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS.

RESTRICTIONS, SAVINGS, AND GENERAL PROVISIONS.

50.—(1.) The powers under this Act of a tenant for life are not capable of assignment or release, and do not pass to a person as being, by operation of law or otherwise, an assignee of a tenant for life, and remain exerciseable by the tenant for life after and notwithstanding any assignment, by operation of law or otherwise, of his estate or interest under the settlement.

Powers not assignable; contract not to exercise powers void.

(2.) A contract by a tenant for life not to exercise any of his powers under this Act is void.

(3.) But this section shall operate without prejudice to the rights of any person being an assignee for value of the estate or interest of the tenant for life; and in that case the assignee's rights shall not be affected without his consent, except that, unless the assignee is actually in possession of the settled land or part thereof, his consent shall not be requisite for the making of leases thereof by the tenant for life, provided the leases are made at the best rent that can reasonably be obtained, without fine, and in other respects are in conformity with this Act.

(4.) This section extends to assignments made or coming into operation before or after and to acts done before or after the commencement of this Act; and in this section assignment includes assignment by way of mortgage, and any partial or qualified assignment, and any charge or incumbrance; and assignee has a meaning corresponding with that of assignment.

51.—(1.) If in a settlement, will, assurance, or other instrument executed or made before or after, or partly before and partly after, the commencement of this Act a provision is inserted purporting or attempting, by way of direction, declaration or otherwise, to forbid a tenant for life to exercise any power under this Act, or attempting, or tending, or intended by a limitation, gift, or disposition over of settled land, or by a limitation, gift, or disposition of other real or any personal property, or by the imposition of any condition, or by forfeiture, or in any other manner whatever, to prohibit or prevent him from exercising, or to induce him to abstain from exercising, or to put him into a position inconsistent with his exercising, any power under this Act, that provision, as far as it purports, or attempts, or tends, or is intended to have, or would or might have, the operation aforesaid, shall be deemed to be void.

(2.) For the purposes of this section an estate or interest limited to continue so long only as a person abstains from exercising any power shall be and take effect as an estate or interest to continue for the period for which it would continue if that person were to abstain from exercising the power, discharged from liability to determination or cesser by or on his exercising the same.

Provision against forfeiture.

52. Notwithstanding anything in a settlement, the exercise by the tenant for life of any power under this Act shall not occasion a forfeiture.

Tenant for life
trustee for all parties interested.

53. A tenant for life shall, in exercising any power under this Act, have regard to the interests of all parties entitled under the settlement, and shall, in relation to the exercise thereof by him, be deemed to be in the position and to have the duties and liabilities of a trustee for those parties.

General protection of purchasers, &c.

54. On a sale, exchange, partition, lease, mortgage, or charge, a purchaser, lessee, mortgagee, or other person dealing in good faith with a tenant for life shall, as against all parties entitled under the settlement, be conclusively taken to have given the best price, consideration, or rent, as the case may require, that could reasonably be obtained by the tenant for life, and to have complied with all the requisitions of this Act.

Exercise of powers;

55.—(1.) Powers and authorities conferred by this Act on a tenant for life or trustees or the Court or the Land Commissioners are exerciseable from time to time.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

(2.) Where a power of sale, enfranchisement, exchange, partition, leasing, mortgaging, charging, or other power is exercised by a tenant for life, or by the trustees of a settlement, he and they may respectively execute, make, and do all deeds, instruments, and things necessary or proper in that behalf.

(3.) Where any provision in this Act refers to sale, purchase, exchange, partition, leasing, or other dealing, or to any power, consent, payment, receipt, deed, assurance, contract, expenses, act, or transaction, the same shall be construed to extend only (unless it is otherwise expressed) to sales, purchases, exchanges, partitions, leasings, dealings, powers, consents, payments, receipts, deeds, assurances, contracts, expenses, acts, and transactions under this Act.

limitation of provisions, &c.

56.—(1.) Nothing in this Act shall take away, abridge, or prejudicially affect any power for the time being subsisting under a settlement, or by statute or otherwise, exerciseable by a tenant for life, or by trustees with his consent, or on his request, or by his direction, or otherwise: and the powers given by this Act are cumulative.

Saving for other powers.

(2.) But in case of conflict between the provisions of a settlement and the provisions of this Act, relative to any matter in respect whereof the tenant for life exercises or contracts or intends to exercise any power under this Act, the provisions of this Act shall prevail; and, accordingly, notwithstanding anything in the settlement, the consent of the tenant for life shall, by virtue of this Act, be necessary to the exercise by the trustees of the settlement or other person of any power conferred by the settlement exerciseable for any purpose provided for in this Act.

(3.) If a question arises, or a doubt is entertained, respecting any matter within this section, the Court may, on the application of the trustees of the settlement, or of the tenant for life, or of any other person interested, give its decision, opinion, advice, or direction thereon.

57.—(1.) Nothing in this Act shall preclude a settlor from conferring on the tenant for life, or the trustees of the settlement, any powers additional to or larger than those conferred by this Act.

Additional or larger powers
by settlement.

45 & 46 Vt. r.
c. 38.

(2.) Any additional or larger powers so conferred shall, as far as may be, notwithstanding anything in this Act, operate and be exerciseable in the like manner, and with all the like incidents, effects, and consequences, as if they were conferred by this Act, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the settlement.

LIMITED OWNERS GENERALLY.

Enumeration of other limited owners, to have powers of
tenant for life.

XIII.—LIMITED OWNERS GENERALLY.

58.—(1.) Each person as follows shall, when the estate or interest of each of them is in possession, have the powers of a tenant for life under this Act, as if each of them were a tenant for life as defined in this Act (namely):

- (i.) A tenant in tail, including a tenant in tail who is by Act of Parliament restrained from barring or defeating his estate tail, and although the reversion is in the Crown, and so that the exercise by him of his powers under this Act shall bind the Crown, but not including such a tenant in tail where the land in respect whereof he is so restrained was purchased with money provided by Parliament in consideration of public services:
- (ii.) A tenant in fee simple (a), with an executory limitation, gift, or disposition over, on failure of his issue, or in any other event:
- (iii.) A person entitled to a base fee, although the reversion is in the Crown, and so that the exercise by him of his powers under this Act shall bind the Crown:
- (iv.) A tenant for years determinable on life, not holding merely under a lease at a rent:
- (v.) A tenant for the life of another, not holding merely under a lease at a rent:
- (vi.) A tenant for his own or any other life, or for years determinable on life, whose estate is liable to cease in any event during that life, whether by expiration of the estate, or by conditional limitation, or otherwise, or to be defeated by an executory limitation, disposition over, or is subject to a trust for accumulation of income for payment of debts or other purpose:

(a) This would not extend to a person in whom leaseholds are vested for the whole term, subject to an executory limitation, &c., the expression "fee simple" being a technical one.

(vii.) A tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct :

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

(viii.) A tenant by the curtesy :

(ix.) A person entitled to the income of land under a trust or direction for payment thereof to him during his own or any other life, whether subject to expenses of management or not, or until sale of the land, or until forfeiture of his interest therein on bankruptcy or other event.

(2.) In every such case, the provisions of this Act referring to a tenant for life, either as conferring powers on him or otherwise, and to a settlement, and to settled land, shall extend to each of the persons aforesaid, and to the instrument under which his estate or interest arises, and to the land therein comprised.

(3.) In any such case any reference in this Act to death as regards a tenant for life shall, where necessary, be deemed to refer to the determination by death or otherwise of such estate or interest as last aforesaid.

XIV.—INFANTS ; MARRIED WOMEN ; LUNATICS.

INFANTS ; MARRIED WOMEN ;
LUNATICS.

59. Where a person, who is in his own right seised of or entitled in possession to land, is an infant, then for purposes of this Act the land is settled land, and the infant shall be deemed tenant for life thereof (a).

Infant absolutely entitled to be as tenant for life.

60. Where a tenant for life, or a person having the powers of a tenant for life under this Act, is an infant, or an infant would, if he were of full age, be a tenant for life, or have the powers of a tenant for life under this Act, the powers of a tenant for life under this Act may be exercised on his behalf by the trustees of the settlement, and if there are none, then by such person and in such manner as the Court, on the application of a testamentary guardian or next friend of the infant, either generally or in a particular instance, orders.

Tenant for life, infant.

(a) This section and the next provide a convenient mode of selling an infant's land. Thus, if land descends in fee simple on an infant, trustees for the purposes of the Act may be appointed by the Court upon summons, and such trustees will have power to sell on behalf of the infant and receive the money.

45 & 46 VICT.
c. 38.

Married woman, how to be affected.

61.—(1.) The foregoing provisions of this Act do not apply in the case of a married woman.

(2.) Where a married woman who, if she had not been a married woman, would have been a tenant for life, or would have had the powers of a tenant for life under the foregoing provisions of this Act, is entitled for her separate use, or is entitled under any statute, passed or to be passed, for her separate property, or as a feme sole, then she, without her husband, shall have the powers of a tenant for life under this Act.

(3.) Where she is entitled otherwise than as aforesaid, then she and her husband together shall have the powers of a tenant for life under this Act.

(4.) The provisions of this Act referring to a tenant for life and a settlement and settled land shall extend to the married woman without her husband, or to her and her husband together, as the case may require, and to the instrument under which her estate or interest arises, and to the land therein comprised.

(5.) The married woman may execute, make, and do all deeds, instruments, and things necessary or proper for giving effect to the provisions of this section.

(6.) A restraint on anticipation in the settlement shall not prevent the exercise by her of any power under this Act.

Tenant for life, lunatic.

62. Where a tenant for life, or a person having the powers of a tenant for life under this Act, is a lunatic, so found by inquisition, the committee of his estate may, in his name and on his behalf, under an order of the Lord Chancellor, or other person intrusted by virtue of the Queen's Sign Manual with the care and commitment of the custody of the persons and estates of lunatics, exercise the powers of a tenant for life under this Act; and the order may be made on the petition of any person interested in the settled land, or of the committee of the estate.

SETTLEMENT
BY WAY OF TRUSTS FOR SALE.

Provision for case of trust to sell and reinvest in land.

XV.—SETTLEMENT BY WAY OF TRUSTS FOR SALE.

63.—(1.) Any land, or any estate or interest in land, which under or by virtue of any deed, will, or agreement, covenant to surrender, copy of court roll, Act of Parliament, or other instrument or any number of instruments, whether made or passed before or after, or partly before and partly after, the commencement of this Act, is subject to a trust or direction for sale of that land, estate, or interest, and for the application or disposal of the money to arise from the sale, or the income of that money, or the income of the land until sale, or any part of that money or income, for the benefit of any person for his life, or any other limited period, or for the benefit of two or more persons concurrently for any limited period, and whether absolutely, or subject to a trust for accumulation of income for payment of debts or other purpose, or to any other restriction, shall be deemed to be settled land, and the instrument or instruments under which the trust arises shall be deemed to be a settlement; and the person for the time being beneficially entitled to the income of the land, estate, or interest aforesaid until sale, whether absolutely or subject as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be tenant for life thereof; or if two or more persons are so entitled concurrently, then those persons shall be deemed to constitute together the tenant for life thereof; and the persons, if any, who are for the time being under the settlement trustees for sale of the settled land, or having power of consent to, or approval of, or control over the sale, or if under the settlement there are no such trustees, then the persons, if any, for the time being, who are by the settlement declared to be trustees thereof for purposes of this Act are for purposes of this Act trustees of the settlement.

(2.) In every such case the provisions of this Act referring to a tenant for life, and to a settlement, and to settled land, shall extend to the person or persons aforesaid, and to the instrument or instruments under which his or their estate or interest arises, and to the land therein comprised, subject and except as in this section provided (that is to say):

- (i.) Any reference in this Act to the predecessors or successors in title of the tenant for life, or to the remaindermen, or reversioners or other persons interested in the settled land, shall be deemed to refer to the persons interested in succession or otherwise in the money to arise from sale of the land, or the income of that money, or the income of the land, until sale (as the case may require).

45 & 46 VICT.
C. 38.

- (ii.) Capital money arising under this Act from the settled land shall not be applied in the purchase of land unless such application is authorized by the settlement in the case of capital money arising thereunder from sales or other dispositions of the settled land, but may, in addition to any other mode of application authorized by this Act, be applied in any mode in which capital money arising under the settlement from any such sale or other disposition is applicable thereunder, subject to any consent required or direction given by the settlement with respect to the application of trust money of the settlement.
- (iii.) Capital money arising under this Act from the settled land and the securities in which the same is invested, shall not for any purpose of disposition, transmission, or devolution, be considered as land unless the same would, if arising under the settlement from a sale or disposition of the settled land, have been so considered, and the same shall be held in trust for and shall go to the same persons successively in the same manner, and for and on the same estates, interests, and trusts as the same would have gone and been held if arising under the settlement from a sale or disposition of the settled land, and the income of such capital money and securities shall be paid or applied accordingly.
- (iv.) Land of whatever tenure acquired under this Act by purchase, or in exchange, or on partition, shall be conveyed to and vested in the trustees of the settlement, on the trusts, and subject to the powers and provisions which, under the settlement or by reason of the exercise of any power of appointment or charging therein contained, are subsisting with respect to the settled land, or would be so subsisting if the same had not been sold, or as near thereto as circumstances permit, but so as not to increase or multiply charges or powers of charging.

REPEALS.

XVI.—REPEALS.

Repeal of enactments in schedule.

64.—(1.) The enactments described in the schedule to this Act are hereby repealed.

(2.) The repeal by this Act of any enactment shall not affect any right accrued or obligation incurred thereunder before the commencement of this Act; nor shall the same affect the validity or invalidity, or any operation, effect, or consequence, of any instrument executed or made, or of anything done or suffered, or of any order made, before the commencement of this Act; nor shall the same affect any action, proceeding, or thing then pending or uncompleted; and every such action, proceeding, and thing may be carried on and completed as if there had been no such repeal in this Act.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

XVII.—IRELAND.

IRELAND.

65.—(1.) In the application of this Act to Ireland the foregoing provisions shall be modified as in this section provided.

Modifications respecting Ireland.

(2.) The Court shall be Her Majesty's High Court of Justice in Ireland.

(3.) All matters within the jurisdiction of that Court shall, subject to the Acts regulating that Court, be assigned to the Chancery Division of that Court; but General Rules under this Act for Ireland may direct that those matters or any of them be assigned to the Land Judges of that Division.

(4.) Any deed inrolled under this Act shall be inrolled in the Record and Writ office of that Division.

(5.) General Rules for purposes of this Act for Ireland shall be deemed Rules of Court within the Supreme Court of Judicature Act (Ireland), 1877, and may be made accordingly, at any time after the passing of this Act, to take effect on or after the commencement of this Act.

40 & 41 Vict.
c. 57.

(6.) The several Civil Bill Courts in Ireland shall, in addition to the jurisdiction possessed by them independently of this Act, have and exercise the power and authority exercisable by the Court under this Act, in all proceedings where the property, the subject of the proceedings, does not exceed in capital value five hundred pounds, or in annual value thirty pounds.

(7.) The provisions of Part II. of the County Officers and Courts (Ireland) Act, 1877, relative to the equitable jurisdiction of the Civil Bill Courts, shall apply to the jurisdiction exercisable by those Courts under this Act.

40 & 41 Vict.
c. 56.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 38.

(8.) Rules and Orders for purposes of this Act, as far as it relates to the Civil Bill Courts, may be made at any time after the passing of this Act, to take effect on or after the commencement of this Act, in manner prescribed by section seventy-nine of the County Officers and Courts (Ireland) Act, 1877.

(9.) The Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland shall be substituted for the Land Commissioners.

(10.) The term for which a lease other than a building or mining lease may be granted shall be not exceeding thirty-five years.

SETTLED LAND ACT, 1884.

47 & 48 VICT. c. 18.

An Act to amend the Settled Land Act, 1882.

47 & 48 VICT.
c. 18.

[3rd July, 1884.]

BE it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

1. This Act may be cited as the Settled Land Act, 1884. Short title.
2. The expression "the Act of 1882" used in this Act means the Settled Land Act, 1882. Interpretation.
3. The Act of 1882 and this Act are to be read and construed together as one Act, and expressions used in this Act are to have the same meanings as those attached by the Act of 1882 to similar expressions used therein. Construction of Act.
4. A fine received on the grant of a lease under any power conferred by the Act of 1882 is to be deemed capital money arising under that Act. Fine on a lease to be capital money.
- 5.—(1.) The notice required by section forty-five of the Act of 1882 of intention to make a sale, exchange, partition, or lease may be notice of a general intention in that behalf. Notice under Act of 1882, s. 45, may, as to a sale, exchange, partition, or lease, be general.
- (2.) The tenant for life is, upon request by a trustee of the settlement, to furnish to him such particulars and information as may reasonably be required by him from time to time with reference to sales, exchanges, partitions, or leases effected, or in progress, or immediately intended.
- (3.) Any trustee, by writing under his hand, may waive notice

47 & 48 Vict.
c. 18.

either in any particular case, or generally, and may accept less than one month's notice.

(4.) This section applies to a notice given before, as well as to a notice given after, the passing of this Act.

(5.) Provided that a notice, to the sufficiency of which objection has been taken before the passing of this Act, is not made sufficient by virtue of this Act.

As to consents of tenants for life.

6.—(1.) In the case of a settlement within the meaning of section sixty-three of the Act of 1882, any consent not required by the terms of the settlement is not by force of anything contained in that Act to be deemed necessary to enable the trustees of the settlement, or any other person, to execute any of the trusts or powers created by the settlement.

(2.) In the case of every other settlement, not within the meaning of section sixty-three of the Act of 1882, where two or more persons together constitute the tenant for life for the purposes of that Act, then, notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (2) of section fifty-six of that Act, requiring the consent of all those persons, the consent of one only of those persons is by force of that section to be deemed necessary to the exercise by the trustees of the settlement, or by any other person, of any power conferred by the settlement exerciseable for any purpose provided for in that Act.

(3.) This section applies to dealings before, as well as after, the passing of this Act.

Powers given by s. 63 to be exercised only with leave of the Court.

7. With respect to the powers conferred by section sixty-three of the Act of 1882, the following provisions are to have effect :—

- (i.) Those powers are not to be exercised without the leave of the Court.
- (ii.) The Court may by order, in any case in which it thinks fit, give leave to exercise all or any of those powers, and the order is to name the person or persons to whom leave is given.
- (iii.) The Court may from time to time rescind, or vary, any order made under this section, or may make any new or further order.
- (iv.) So long as an order under this section is in force, neither the trustees of the settlement, nor any person other than a person having the leave, shall execute any trust or power created by the settlement, for any purpose for which leave is by the order given, to exercise a power conferred by the Act of 1882. 47 & 48 Vict.

c. 18.

- (v.) An order under this section may be registered and re-registered, as a lis pendens, against the trustees of the settlement named in the order, describing them on the register as "Trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1882."
- (vi.) Any person dealing with the trustees from time to time, or with any other person acting under the trusts or powers of the settlement, is not to be affected by an order under this section, unless and until the order is duly registered, and when necessary re-registered as a lis pendens.
- (vii.) An application to the Court under this section may be made by the tenant for life, or by the persons who together constitute the tenant for life, within the meaning of section sixty-three of the Act of 1882.
- (viii.) An application to rescind or vary an order, or to make any new or further order under this section, may be made also by the trustees of the settlement, or by any person beneficially interested under the settlement.
- (ix.) The person or persons to whom leave is given by an order under this section, shall be deemed the proper person or persons to exercise the powers conferred by section sixty-three of the Act of 1882, and shall have and may exercise those powers accordingly.
- (x.) This section is not to affect any dealing which has taken place before the passing of this Act, under any trust or power to which this section applies.

8. For the purposes of the Act of 1882 the estate of a tenant by the curtesy is to be deemed an estate arising under a settlement made by his wife. Curtesy to be deemed to arise under settlement.

SETTLED LAND ACT AMENDMENT ACT, 1887.

50 & 51 VICT. c. 30.

50 & 51 VICT.
c. 30.

An Act to amend the Settled Land Act, 1882.

[23rd August, 1887.]

45 & 46 VICT.
c. 38.

WHEREAS by the twenty-first section of the Settled Land Act, 1882 (in this Act referred to as the Act of 1882), it is provided that capital money arising under that Act may be applied in payment for any improvement by that Act authorized :

BE IT therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :

Amendment of
s. 21 of the Settled Land
Act, 1882.

1. Where any improvement of a kind authorized by the Act of 1882 has been or may be made either before or after the passing of this Act, and a rent-charge, whether temporary or perpetual, has been or may be created in pursuance of any Act of Parliament, with the object of paying off any moneys advanced for the purpose of defraying the expenses of such improvement, any capital money expended in redeeming such rent-charge, or otherwise providing for the payment thereof, shall be deemed to be applied in payment for an improvement authorized by the Act of 1882.

Sect. 28 of Settled Land Act, 1882, to apply to improvements
within preceding section.

2. Any improvement for which capital money is applied or deemed to be applied under the provisions of the preceding section shall be deemed to be an improvement within the meaning of section 28 of the Act of 1882, and the provisions of such last-mentioned section shall, so far as applicable, be deemed to apply to such improvement.

Short title

3. This Act shall be construed as one with the Settled Land Act, 1882, and the Settled Land Act, 1884, and may be cited together with those Acts as the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1887, and separately as the Settled Land Acts (Amendment) Act, 1887.

RULES OF THE SUPREME COURT UNDER THE SETTLED LAND ACT, 1882.

1. The expression "the Act" used in these rules means the Settled Land Act, 1882.

Words defined by the Act when used in these rules have the same meanings as in the Act.

The expression "the tenant for life" includes the tenant for life as defined by the Act, and any person having the powers of a tenant for life under the Act.

2. All applications to the Court under the Act may be made by summons in chambers; and if in any case a petition shall be presented without the direction of the judge, no further costs shall be allowed than would be allowed upon a summons.

3. The forms in the appendix to these rules are to be followed as far as possible, with such modification as the circumstances require. All summonses, petitions, affidavits, and other proceedings under the Act are to be entitled according to Form I. in the Appendix.

4. The persons to be served with notice of applications to the Court shall, in the first instance, be as follows:—

In the case of applications by the tenant for life under sections 15 and 34, the trustees.

In the case of applications under section 38, the trustees (if any), and the tenant for life if not the applicant.

In the case of applications under section 44, the tenant for life, or the trustees, as the case may be.

No other person shall in the first instance be served. Except as hereinbefore provided where an application under the Act is made by any person other than the tenant for life, the tenant for life alone shall be served in the first instance.

5. Except in the cases mentioned in the last rule, applications by a tenant for life shall not in the first instance be served on any person.

6. The judge may require notice of any application under the Act to be served upon such persons as he thinks fit, and may give all necessary directions as to the persons (if any) to be served, and such directions may be added to or varied from time to time as the case may require. Where a petition is presented, the petitioner may, after the petition has been filed, apply by summons in chambers (Appendix, Form XXIII.) for directions with regard to the persons on whom the petition ought to be served. If any person not already served is directed to be served with notice of an application, the application shall stand over generally, or until such time as the judge directs. The judge may in any particular case, upon such terms (if any) as he thinks fit, dispense with service upon any person upon whom, under these rules, or under any direction of the judge, any application is to be served.

7. It shall be sufficient upon any application under the Act to verify by affidavit the title of the tenant for life and trustees or other persons interested in the application unless the judge in any particular case requires further evidence. Such affidavit may be in the form or to the effect of Form No. VIII. in the Appendix.

8. Any sale authorized or directed by the Court under the Act, shall be carried into effect out of Court, unless the judge shall otherwise order, and generally in such manner as the judge may direct.

9. Where the Court authorizes generally the tenant for life to make from time to time leases or grants for building or mining purposes under section 10 of the Act, the order shall not direct any particular lease or grant to be settled or approved by the judge unless the judge shall consider that there is some special reason why such lease or grant should be settled or approved by him. Where the Court authorizes any such lease or grant in any particular case, or where the Court authorizes a lease under section 15 of the Act, the order may either approve a lease or grant already prepared or may direct that the lease or grant shall contain conditions specified in the order or such conditions as may be approved by the judge at chambers without directing the lease or grant to be settled by the judge.

10. Any person directed by the tenant for life to pay into Court any capital money arising under the Act may apply by summons at chambers for leave to pay the money into Court. (Appendix, Forms IX., X., XI.)

11. The summons shall be supported by an affidavit setting forth—

1. The name and address of the person desiring to make the payment.
2. The place where he is to be served with notice of any proceeding relating to the money.
3. The amount of money to be paid into Court and the account to the credit of which it is to be placed.
4. The name and address of the tenant for life under the settlement by whose direction the money is to be paid into Court.
5. The short particulars of the transaction in respect of which the money is payable.

12. The order made upon the summons for payment into Court may contain directions for investment of the money on any securities authorized by section 21, sub-section 1 of the Act, and for payment of the dividends to the tenant for life, either forthwith or upon production of the consent in writing of the applicant; the signature to such consent to be verified by the affidavit of a solicitor. But if the transaction in respect of which the money arises is not completed at the date of payment into Court, the money shall not, without the consent of the applicant, be ordered to be invested in any securities other than those upon which cash under the control of the Court may be invested.

13. Money paid into Court under the Act shall be paid to an account, to be entitled in the matter of the settlement, with a short description of the mode in which the money arises if it is necessary or desirable to identify it, and in the matter of the Act. (Appendix, Forms IX., X., and XI.)

14. Any person paying into Court any capital money arising under the Act shall be entitled first to deduct the costs of paying the money into Court.

15. In all cases not provided for by the Act or these rules, the existing practice of the Court as to costs and otherwise, so far as the same may be applicable, shall apply to proceedings under the Act.

16. The fees and allowances to solicitors of the Court in respect to proceedings under the Act shall be those provided by the Rules of the Supreme Court as to costs for the time being in force, so far as they are applicable to such proceedings.

17. The fees to be taken by the officers of the Court in respect to proceedings under the Act shall be those provided by the Rules of the Supreme Court as to court fees for the time being in force, so far as they are applicable to such proceedings.

18. These rules shall come into operation from and after the 31st December, 1882.

19. These rules may be cited as the Settled Land Act Rules, 1882.
